Education of Children is Discussed

The education of Oregon's exceptional children, both the physically or mentally handicapped and the gifted, was the subject matter presented to Salem Branch of AAUW at Saturday's Senator Hotel luncheon by Dr. Walter Snyder, Assistant Superintendent of the State Department of Education. Dr. Snyder defined the exceptional child, which is his particular concern in his position, as one who deviates from the norm to a marked degree. The educational problem rests more in how to teach such a child rather than what, since the basic needs of all children are essentially the same. He advocates as little segregation as possible in order not to cut the child off from the world, and the use of special education only after adequate physiological and medical examinations show it to be necessary.

Suggests Three Programs
Although at present Oregon law does not provide a general educational program for the gifted child, Dr. Snyder's recent report on education asked for a survey on what can be done in that field. Dr. Snyder suggests three possible programs for gifted children: to start them early and move them rapidly through school as their talents permit, since surveys have shown that bright children are not likely to be maladjusted out of their chronological age group; to set up special classes to handle particular needs of bright children; or to enrich school curriculum as a whole, particularly in art, literature, and social studies. The important goal is that every child, no matter what his mental or physical state may be, will have the opportunity to develop his talents to live successfully in and contribute as much as possible to society.

AAUW members attending the luncheon were seated with alumnae of their own or nearby colleges. A winter theme was carried out with snowmen and white candle trees. Mrs. R. S. Grette was in charge of decorations. Hostesses were Mrs. Ervin Potter, Mrs. Sylvia Krapps, Mrs. George Moorhead, and Mrs. Richard Meyer, all of the hospitality committee.

The next regular meeting of the chapter will be Feb. 16, also a luncheon at the Senator Hotel.
