Dorothy Caspar, Gayle Juve, and Maurine Jones, all of Salem, are three of twelve senior women at Oregon State College to receive practical experience at the two home management houses on the campus. The students rotate duties including laundress, cook, housekeeper and baby director for a six week period. A baby is provided to each of the houses from adoption homes.

Art Museum Head to Be Speaker

"The role of the sculptor in contemporary society" will be presented to the Salem Branch, AAUW, by Frederic Littman, head of the Department of Sculpture at the Portland Art Museum. At the luncheon meeting on Saturday, Feb. 16, at the Senator Hotel.

Mr. Littman studied in Budapest and Paris, taught at the Academie Ranson in Paris, and was artist in residence at Antioch College in Ohio and Reed College in Portland. He has fulfilled commissions and exhibited continuously, including a one-man show in New York in 1940. Currently he is at work on a six foot head of Franklin D. Roosevelt, commission for Grand Coulee Dam, and conducts a class of 80 sculpture students at the Portland Art Museum. He is particularly interested in architectural sculpture, local examples of which may be seen in his bas-reliefs on the First National Bank building at Liberty and Chemeketa, and the new State Highway Department building, Willamette University and the Portland Art Museum also have examples of his work.

AAUW members may call Mrs. Thompson for reservations if not contacted by Thursday, Feb. 14. This luncheon will be in honor of past presidents of the Salem Branch, and will carry a Valentine motif.

Other business at the board meeting held last week at the home of Mrs. Lawrence C. Merriam included plans for attending the State Meeting of AAUW at Gearhart April 17-19. There are now 258 paid up members of the Salem branch.
