Marion County Escapes Major Flu Epidemic

Influenza has not been heavy so far this year in Marion County, according to physicians' reports, although other Oregon areas are experiencing many cases, the county health department said Tuesday.

The department, through Dr. W. J. Stone, health officer, offered its services to aid in recognizing a possible epidemic of flu and its direction of spread, as well as to make possible the identification of strains of flu virus. This, said Dr. Stone, might lead to vaccines useful in limiting the spread.

The report said many school absences have occurred over the state, due to flu, including as many as 25 per cent missing at various times from schools in Willamina, Amity and Dayton. Other spots included Burns, Eugene and Klamath Falls.

Although reported cases of flu were not considered unusually numerous for this time of year in Marion County, there was report Wednesday of considerable absence among state employees at the Capitol, due to influenza.

Commenting on health department services available, Dr. Stone said his office stands ready to cooperate in obtaining specimens of throat washings and whole blood, for submission to the University of Oregon Medical School laboratory. He pointed out that information so obtained would be of limited value as to treatment of patients already ill, but might help prevent the spread.

He said health authorities do not recommend the use of commercially available influenza vaccines to control the disease as a public health measure, partially because strains of the disease vary so much and need different control measures.

Frosh Glee Boards Chosen

Nine more committee appointments were made Wednesday by Manager Rueben Menashe, Portland, for the Willamette University Freshman Glee production, March 22.

Menashe named Richard Lewis, Lebanon, as chairman of tickets, to be assisted by Terry Wheeler, Vancouver, Wash., and Ruth Joseph, Weiser, Idaho.

David Jackson, Portland, will be in charge of lighting. On committee will be Augusta Krause and Clara O'Neil, Portland; Hewlett Todd, Palo Alto, Calif. and Allen Young, Echo.

Chairman in charge of chairs and floors will be Tom Schrock, Bend.
