PROJECT ESTIMATED
An estimate of $46,853 for reconstruction of some 2 1/2 miles of County Road 634 southwest of Mt. Angel was presented to Marion County Court Thursday by County Surveyor A. D. Graham. He offered a map of the present road and proposed improvements and the new right-of-way needed. The cost does not include rebuilding of a Pudding River bridge.

Navy Cadet Exams Near

Written and physical examinations for the Naval aviation cadet program will be given at the Portland Navy recruiting station at 10 a.m. Saturday. The NavCad Procurement Office will give the tests in Portland due to the fact that many college students in Oregon cannot take time out from classes to go to Seattle.

All men interested who have two years of college or will complete their second year in June may take the examinations, according to the Salem Navy recruiting station. It will furnish transportation if qualifications are met.

Any man who meets the requirements of two years of college, who is 18 to 27 years of age, unmarried, and able to pass a rigid physical examination may enroll as a cadet even though he may have taken a pre-induction physical.

Eugene Firm Bids Low on Highway Jobs

Low bids on construction along the new East Salem by-pass highway were submitted by the Eugene firm of Glenn Snook Co., the State Highway Commission announced Thursday.

A Salem firm, E. L. Gates and Co., submitted the lowest bid on one of the largest projects under construction, the grading and paving of 3.45 miles of Winchester Bay-Clear Lake section of Oregon Coast highway in Douglas County. The firm's low bid was $731,139.

Two other Salem firms were low bidders on traffic signal installations in three Oregon counties.

The Glenn Snook Co. submitted a total low bid of $98,626 for the two by-pass highway projects. One is a crossing to carry the highway over the Southern Pacific Railroad's Silverton branch track, bid by the firm at $27,990. The other project is an undercrossing which will take D Street and Center Street through a viaduct under the new highway. The firm bid $70,636.

Mill Electric Co. of Salem was low bidder for furnishing and installing traffic signals in Coos Bay and Bend. The company submitted a bid of $12,818 for four signals in Coos Bay and $2,692 for signals at one Bend intersection.

The other Salem firm submitting a low bid was Electric Corporation, estimating $5,460 for traffic signals at two Corvallis street intersections. Bids on grading of 3.54 miles of the by-pass highway, from Hayesville School to State Street, will be opened by the Commission today.
