

Service Cut Proposed to Provide Raise

Reducing state services is one way in which to finance wage increases for state employees, Forrest Stewart, executive secretary for the Oregon State Employees Association, said Thursday.

In a letter to James M. Clinton, director of the Oregon State Civil Service Commission, Stewart said that services or agencies which are found to be non-essential or those benefitting only small groups of citizens should be eliminated.

Purpose of the letter was to urge the civil service commission to place before the State Board of Control a proposed salary and wage increase for state workers.

The original request for the salary boost was made to the commission last December, but to date has not been acted upon.

Stewart said there are thousands of state workers who have not received any salary adjustment for two years. He said the cost of food in this area has gone up 11 per cent since the last salary adjustment. He said many trained workers are leaving state employment for better-paying private industrial jobs.

The employees association is seeking a raise which would boost each worker upward two steps in its civil service classification. Stewart estimated that about one-half of the state's 12,000 civil service employees are in the Clerk I and Clerk II classifications which start out at $163 and $201 per month respectively.

Rites Set Today For John M. King

Haag Named To Assessment Protest Board

Appointment of A. C. Haag, Salem businessman, to the Marion County equalization board was announced Thursday. The board will meet Monday, May 12, to consider property owners' protests as to tax assessments.

Haag who will serve with Judge Hartley and Manton Carl of Hubbard, who is the senior lay member of the county budget committee. This is a new type of organization, as in past years the equalization board has comprised the County Court. This was changed by the 1951 Legislature.

Haag ended a three-year term on the budget committee last June 30.

A letter from the State Tax Commission to the County Court urged use of the county assessor's experience and consultation with him as to values and methods by the equalization board. The law authorizes his appointment as technical adviser.
