

When the thousands of Oregon anglers reach their "secret" fishing holes this morning they will probably be greeted by conditions as pleasant as ever. "Old Crusader After Em" will be there. As usual, Mrs. Crutchin After Em will probably hold the biggest fish of the day as she is doing in the photo. Even our good friend Emory (Broken Tip) Lehold can be seen in the background. . . broken

Hundreds of happy and excited youngsters will be swarming the length of Mill Creek this morning as the third annual Junior Tournament sponsored by the Salem Lions Club and the Isaac Walton League gets under way.

in Vermont, the enthusiasm is no less stinted and the Mill Creek Kids are fortunate in having one of very few streams of its size in the U. S. set aside for their own pleasures. Most waters set aside for juniors are ponds and small lakes that contain warm water species of fish such as bass, crappie, bluegill and even catfish and carp.

red and all. This quiet, lonely fishin' hole was photographed in our Outdoor Editor's living room. His inspiration came from the painful knowledge (born of experience) that opening fishin' day maybe isn't the best time to go angling. . . if you want to keep somebody's hook out of your ear.
