

Reds Stage Bloody Riot in Germany to Protest Arms Plan

ESSEN, Germany (AP)—Police gunfire broke up a bloody clash Sunday between anti-Reds and 30,000 Communist youths demonstrating here against the rearming of West Germany for European defense. A 21-year-old Communist youth from Munich was killed.

It was the first time in West Germany's postwar history that anyone had been killed in clashes between police and rioters.

Society Hears Courthouse Cupola Plea

The disposition of the Marion County courthouse cupola was brought officially to the attention of the County Historical Society Saturday night.

Michael U. McKeon of 643 Union St. attended the meeting and proposed to the society that it confer with the Marion County Court on the possibility of the cupola acting as trustee of the cupola until a permanent disposition can be arranged.

No official action was taken by the Society, Murray Wade, president said, although the interested members indicated further information on the cost of removing and preserving the cupola would be sought.

McKeon was instrumental in proposing the salvaging of the cupola to the Salem Eagles lodge last summer. He told The Statesman that with the possibility of a new courthouse "time is growing short in which to settle this matter, and I thought the Historical Society was the group which would be most interested in it."

The main portion of the meeting was taken up with a talk by Heddia Swart on early Marion County roadbuilding and floods. He described in detail from records the flood of 1861, during which a steamboat moored on the east steps of the County courthouse. He also pointed out some of the watermarks left on city buildings by night.

Dispute Over Mac Firing Stirred Anew

BALTIMORE (AP)—The controversy over the firing of Gen. MacArthur flickered anew Sunday night with talk of a mysterious intercepted enemy message.

Brig. Gen. Bonner Fellers (Ret) said the message prompted MacArthur, then in command of United Nations forces battling the Communists in Korea, to propose a truce conference.

The implication was that MacArthur had learned from the intercepted communication that the enemy was reeling and might entertain a suggestion to surrender.

Fellers told of the message in a speech recorded at a Baltimore American Legion gathering and broadcast in part Sunday night.

He said a translation of the message indicated it was sent by Communist front troop commanders to headquarters in Peking.

Fellers quoted the translation as follows: "We are out of ammunition. We are in a very untenable position at the front. Our losses are terrific. We've got to have tanks, we've got to have supplies and we've got to have air power. Get us a cease fire until we can build up."

Fellers said in his recorded broadcast, "it was a result of that message that caused MacArthur to ask his opposite number, the Chinese commander, to talk truce or cease fire."

He added: "This was one of the reasons MacArthur was lifted out. They said he'd gone way beyond his job as a military commander." Fellers, now living in Washington, is a former chief of psychological warfare for MacArthur.

Pen Escapee Claims Guilt in Shooting of Ballplayer Waitkus

LEWISTON, Idaho (AP)—An escaped Oregon prisoner Friday claimed that he, rather than a girl arrested for the crime, shot Eddie Waitkus, Philadelphia major league baseball player, at Chicago in June, 1949.

But police officers here expressed doubt about the story, and in Chicago, chief of detectives Andrew Aiken discounted the man's story by saying no one but the girl who confessed could have shot Waitkus.

Sheriff W. W. Hays said Edmund P. Werner, 21, told officers he shot Waitkus in a room of the Edgewater Beach Hotel in a robbery attempt. A girl, Ruth Steinhagen, confessed to the shooting at the time and later was committed to a mental institution. Waitkus recovered.

Werner was arrested at Lewiston Friday after escaping from the Salem, Ore., county jail where he was awaiting trial on a forgery charge.

Friday morning, Hays said, Werner called officers to his cell and told them his version of the Waitkus shooting.

Werner said he met Miss Steinhagen at Boston in June and that they traveled together to Chicago. He said she had a "crush" on Waitkus, first baseman of the Philadelphia Phillies, but that she was going to stab him.

She had purchased a .22 caliber rifle and a knife from a hardware store, Werner told the officers. At the hotel, she called Waitkus and told him to come to room 314. Werner said Waitkus came in while he hid in a closet. When the girl failed to stab Waitkus, Werner said he opened the closet door and shot Waitkus in the stomach.

Werner told the officers he had intended to rob Waitkus, but fled instead while the girl ran for a doctor.

Later, he said, he hitchhiked to Eugene, Ore., and has since spent his time at Eugene, Salem and Lewiston. He told officers he worked for a time as an orderly at a Lewiston hospital.

Dewey Scoffs At Import of Acheson Talk

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gov. Dewey of New York said Sunday a talk with secretary of State Acheson and Supreme Court Justice Frankfurter Saturday night was not a "conference" and they did not discuss Republican support of foreign aid or the Far Eastern policy.

Dewey, Acheson and Frankfurter talked in a Washington hotel, and reports of the meeting indicated Acheson had urged that a Republican nominee support the administration's foreign aid program.

The reports also said Dewey expressed objections to Acheson's Far Eastern program.

Dewey, who is supporting Gen. Eisenhower for the Republican presidential nomination, denied on a television show Sunday that these subjects were discussed.

He said the conversation was "as secret as if we'd held it in Macy's window"—referring to the big New York department store—and added that "twenty-five other people were within five feet of us."

Jack Bell, Associated Press political writer, who reported the talks, commented later that he was one of two reporters who saw the conference in progress.

Services for Mrs. Gibbs, 77, Planned Today

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. today in the Clough-Barick chapel for Mrs. Millie Jane Gibbs, retired Congregationalist minister, who died Saturday in a local hospital. She was 77.

Interment will be in Flagler, Colo., where she had lived most of her life.

Mrs. Gibbs was born at Ferris, Ill., Oct. 31, 1875. Later she moved to Indian Territory, now Oklahoma, where she married Charles Parke in 1895. They moved to Flagler, Colo., shortly after their marriage where they operated a cattle ranch. They moved from Colorado to Miami, N. M., by covered wagon. Parke died there Dec. 4, 1911.

With her four children, Mrs. Gibbs returned to Flagler, Colo., and two years later married George P. Gibbs, a Congregationalist minister. She was ordained in the same church and preached for several years in Colorado and Nebraska. After retiring from the ministry, she operated a general store in Flagler after the death of her husband until 1948. After an illness that year, she moved to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Rosenau in Turner where she resided at the time of her death.

She was a member of the Rebekah lodge.

Surviving besides Mrs. Rosenau are two other daughters, Mrs. Edith Opal Beatty of Denver, Colo.; and Mrs. Walter Spencer Roundup, Mont.; a son, C. G. Parke of Salem, and a brother, Charles Jackson of Flagler. She is also survived by eight grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Over Oregon, for the 5-15-year-old group, drowning is the most frequent cause of accidental death. In 1951, exceeding even vehicle accidents 25 to 23, according to Vernon Olsen, county health educator.

Fred Corda, physical director of Salem YMCA, said observance of a dozen common-sense safety rules would prevent most accidents, and "everybody should learn to swim."
