

Election Effects on City Budget Will Be Given Study Tonight

Effect of the recent city election on Salem's municipal budget for the coming year will be considered tonight by the citizens' budget committee and City Council.

The committee will organize for the annual budgetmaking task at a 7:30 p.m. meeting in City Hall. Between now and July 1, start of the city's fiscal year, the committee will study City Manager J. L. Franzen's budget and suggested revisions, conduct hearings and draft a finished budget subject to final action by the Council.

Committee members have had Franzen's early budget draft for several weeks, but this is due for some immediate changes in the light of the city voters' decisions on tax and bond issues proposed at the election last Friday.

Defeat of a proposed special annual millage tax to pay for street lighting will mean lighting cost of about $54,000 will have to be paid from regular budget funds, as in the past. This apparently will eliminate some street resurfacing which the city manager had planned if the tax carried.

On the other hand, approval of a one-mill park and recreation annual tax will mean extra money for general park improvements as well as for the proposed Bush's Pasture irrigation and the perennial playgrounds program financed jointly by city and school district.

Zoning Board Votes Against Added Floor

Salem Planning and Zoning Commission Tuesday night recommended against a proposed expansion of the V. J. Osko office building at 1455 N. Capitol St.

Osko sought permission to add a second story, for rental purposes, under procedure similar to the special business zoning he had obtained a year ago for establishing the insurance building in a residential area.

A neighboring property owner, George Weller, 945 Shipping St., protested last night on grounds of added traffic congestion and possible deterioration of residential property values.

The City Council has the final say in zoning petitions. A proposed business development of L. H. Periman property on the north side of Pine Street near the Pacific Highway figured in a zone change which the commissioners tabled pending more information. A garage business is contemplated there.

Approval was recommended to the Council for special business zoning which would permit Giles Smith to erect a two-story business building on the south side of Center Street near North Capitol. Tentative approval, pending a June 17 public hearing, was granted Miss Mildred Christenson for an apartment zone on Judson Street, three blocks west of South Commercial. She said she would erect a duplex there.

Amendments made that Mayor Alfred Loucks appointed Realtors George Grabenhorst Sr. and James B. Young as consultants to work with the zoners' committee now in the process of revising the entire city zoning code.

New members of the executive committee elected Tuesday are Winston Taylor, Mrs. A. E. Ullman and Dr. Wolcott Buren.

Coronation, Games Slated For Festival

Annual May Festival, honoring Queen Evelyn I. will take place Friday at Salem Academy.

Queen Evelyn, a senior in high school and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fisher, Salem Route 6, and her two princesses, Shirley King and Renabelle Dyke, a student juniors, were chosen by a student vote recently.

Activities will begin at 9 a. m. with an open house at the school. An inter-class track meet will take place from 10 a. m. to noon, followed by a lunch in the cafeteria. A baseball game will take place from 2 to 5 p. m. The Rev. Henry Turnidge, Salem Academy superintendent, will crown the queen.

Juvenile Detention Home Plan Backed

Separate detention homes for juvenile offenders were endorsed Tuesday by Mrs. Claire Argow, executive of the Oregon Prison Association, in a talk at the Senator Hotel before East Salem Lions Club.

Mrs. Argow also praised recent innovations by Warden Virgil O'Malley at Oregon State Penitentiary.

Circuit Judge Joseph B. Felton was a special guest at the luncheon meeting.

Paper Mill's 'Frangrance' Topic of Talk

The nature of the aroma from Salem's paper mill indicates the quality of the cooking of a batch of pulp, John B. Beck, general superintendent, told Salem Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

Drawing on the experience of 35 years in the paper industry, and as a member of the third generation in his family to follow the line, Beck said it's the underdone "cook" that sometimes irritates noses and throats. But he called all of the smells "frangrance." He noted the difference between the odor of the sulphite process used at Oregon Pulp and Paper Co. and the sulphite process of some other plants.

Beck traced the development of paper-making from the Chinese about 100 A.D., noting that wood pulp has been used extensively as the raw material for only about 75 years.

Sacred Heart Pupils Elect Vance Cooney

Cooney was elected prefect, Richard Artz vice prefect, Margaret Rath secretary and Joan Steiner secretary.

Rural School Budget Plan Goes to Defeat

Defeat of the countywide rural school districts' consolidated budget election was confirmed Tuesday as additional returns from the Marion County districts came in.

The vote reached 1,172 against the extra levy to 172 for it, in a compilation of 26 of the 63 districts.

Mrs. Agnes Booth, county school superintendent, said that "the trend looks as if the budget is defeated, so each district will hold its own election." The non-high school district will ballot on Monday, June 30, and she suggested that grade districts in that area vote at the same time.

Each district is entitled to a proportionate share of the tax levy which is within the 6 per cent increase limitation. This is a small part of the total proposed levy, so nearly every district will have to vote on an extra levy to meet next year's expenses, according to Mrs. Booth.
