

SPOKANE, Wash.—Look what Frank W. Elmore of Spokane, Wash., wears on his head—a hat radio. The dial is in front, tubes sticking up like horns on top and that circular thing is the aerial. A pocket battery, earphones and some other equipment inside the helmet do the rest. Just the thing for a gardener, says Elmore, an electrician. His hat tunes in all the local radio stations. Telegraph Strike Ends, Employees Approve Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Western Union strike ended early Monday. Employees ratified a settlement providing for wage increases or reduced working hours.

The strike, which had been on for 52 days, officially ended at 12:01 a. m., Monday, local time.

Major communications points such as Washington and New York were expected to get back into stride quickly.

With the settlement of the Western Union strike, the Salem office will return immediately to its normal hours, 8:30 a. m. to 11:30 p. m. Manager Arnold Davis said Sunday night.

The office has been operating from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. during the strike with about half of its personnel working, Davis said. About five additional workers will go back on duty, probably today, he said.

The agreement which resulted in the strike ending was completed by company and union officials Friday. It was then submitted to union locals across the country for acceptance or rejection.

Telegraph workers across the country had been voting over the weekend on whether to approve or reject a strike settlement negotiated by the CTU and the Western Union Telegraph Co.

The agreement calls for pay raises or reductions of working hours. It was hinged to government permission for Western Union to raise its rates. The union agreed to support a company plea before the Federal Communications Commission for a rate boost.

The requested increase may be a 10 per cent, union officials said they understood.

The union said raises under the new agreement would boost average worker earnings to $1.50 an hour except for messengers. Messengers would be raised to an average of 83 cents an hour.

The union said the new pay average for all employees would be $1.73.

Third of U. S. Business Linked to Defense Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top government economists said Sunday up to one-third of the nation's total business activity now springs from the defense buildup.

Before Korea, only about 7 to 10 per cent of business stemmed from national security spending, they estimated.

Commie PW's on Kojé Forming Army, Gen. Boatner Says

KOJE ISLAND (AP) — Tough Communist leaders in this big stockade are forging a crudely-equipped army to beat back a United Nations force attempt by United Nations forces to impose control over 80,000 North Korean and Chinese prisoners of war.

That is the virtually unanimous conclusion of the American and South Korean soldiers who have been watching the surly, rebellious prisoners for months.

A careful survey of the prison island's 17 occupied compounds supports that ominous conclusion.

Brig. Gen. Hayden L. Boatner Monday said the Reds probably could have won control of the island a week or two ago—"if they had wanted."

The Reds, still holding untested control inside their compounds, were busy Monday hammering out knives and spears.

Big 3 to Sign West German Pact Today

Johnny Says Silent 'I Do', Sings 'Cry' for Admirer

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Ray, the crooner who cries more than he croons, was inaudible for several minutes Sunday at his own wedding.

Ray and Marilyn Morrison, the daughter of a California night club owner, were married in a quiet ceremony in a private suite at the Hotel Warwick in mid-Manhattan.

Mayor and Mrs. Vincent Impellitteri were among the 40-odd guests.

Uninvited guests were a fluctuating crowd of bobbysoxers.

They hung around the hotel lobby and the sidewalk outside for more than two hours to get a glimpse of the man who made weeping in public fashionable through his records.

Just before the ceremony Ray said he was "paralyzed."

Afterwards he said he felt much better and couldn't get over "how nice that Mr. and Mrs. sounds."

But during the ceremony Ray lost his famous voice almost completely.

Even in the small room, none could hear him say "I do."

The ceremony was performed by Special Sessions Judge Herman Barshay, who ended the proceedings with:

"I sentence each of you to a life of health, contentment and happiness."

Then Ray allowed a representative from the bobbysoxers to come up.

Jean-clad Rene Magrisso, 14-year-old head of a Ray fan club in Brooklyn, listened in awe as the weeping crooner reeled off one of his favorite songs, "Cry."

Top things off, he kissed her and gave her a sip of champagne.

The teen-ager wandered back, dazed, to her companions.

The singer and his bride hurried off to their reception.

Parents "dazed"

Almost as dazed as the lucky bobbysoxer were Ray's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ray of Roseburg, Ore.

The singer's father, a millwright for 30 years, recently retired.

"Johnny did that," he explained. He added that they would soon move onto a big new farm Johnny had bought them at Salem, Ore.

He thought the wedding and reception, and meeting people like Milton Beale, were terrific.

Motherly-looking Mrs. Ray said she wasn't too surprised—she had always thought Johnny would amount to something, ever since he started playing the piano at the age of two.

"But we never expected quite this," she said. "As the New Yorkers say—it's fabulous."

Dog's Barking Saves 4 Lives

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ten years ago a German shepherd pup strayed to the home of a nearby Penn Township family.

They gave the dog asylum and called her "Lady." And "Lady" never forgot their kindness. She proved it Sunday by saving four persons from possible death in their gas-filled home.

The dog barked, scratched and clawed until Joseph Kelly, 60, an internal revenue bureau auditor, awakened and found a leak in a service line.

6 Men Missing, One Dead as Ships Collide

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Two ships collided shortly before midnight in the Delaware River 15 miles south of her Sunday night.

At least one man was reported dead. Two were rescued and at least six others reported missing.

The names of the seamen involved in the crash were not immediately available.

The Coast Guard identified the ships as the 10,441-ton tanker Michael, owned by J. M. Carros, Inc., of New York, and the oil barge E. D. Dodge.

The Dodge exploded after the collision. The boat split in two and observers said the stern section sank while the bow remained afloat but burning.

Latest reports said the tanker Michael was afloat and burning but was trying to limp to port, presumably to Wilmington.

One of the two rescued men was reported in critical condition.

The officer reportedly told the Coast Guard there were 15 men aboard the barge Dodge. Previous estimates said there were 40 men aboard the Michael.

Salem Unit to Participate in Next A-Test

Seven Salem soldiers, all members of the 369th engineer boat and shore regiment, originally a Salem reserve unit, will take part in the next atomic bomb test in Nevada.

Associated Press reported the news from Las Vegas, Nev., where Brig. Gen. Harry P. Storke, director of the exercises and commander of the Camp Desert, Rock, Nev., made the announcement.

Storke said the headquarters and headquarters company, shore-battalion, quartermaster and medical detachments, 369th engineer amphibious support regiment, Ft. Wainwright, Wash., and the 94th veterinary hospital, 1st Medical Detachment, Ft. Lewis, Wash., both will be among those units participating in the next tests, whose date was not announced.

Commanding the 369th is Col. George Spaur, on leave from his post as State Forester. Out of the original company which left Salem in 1950 to go on active duty at Ft. Worden, seven men still are attached to the unit. One of these, Capt. Richard Chase, will not participate in the exercises.

Now in Salem on his way to duty at Ft. Worden, he told the Statesman Sunday night that he was separated from the unit June 15.

Others in the unit are Lt. Robert Gray, M. Sgt. Edgar R. Stowell, Sgt. Wayne L. Jacobson, Sgt. Raymond C. Ladd, Cpl. Ward N. Jacobson, and Pfc. Charles E. Thomas.

They are now stationed at the Nevada camp, undergoing preliminary training for the atomic tests.

Ingrid Bergman Casts First Vote as Italian

ROME (AP) — Ingrid Bergman cast her first vote as an Italian citizen Sunday. The Swedish-born film star is expecting twins with her husband, director Roberto Rossellini, in the polls in the hotly contested Rome municipal election. She didn't say how she voted.

Air Force ROTC Unit to March Tuesday at President's Review

State officials, civic dignitaries and members of the Willamette AFROTC program will participate in the university President's Review on Tuesday at McCulloch Stadium, starting at 1 p. m. First presentation of its kind in Salem, the review will be open to the public.

Governor Douglas McKay will present the principle award of the day when he bestows the Governors' pennant to Squadron A of the AFROTC which was judged top squadron in competition held Tuesday, May 20.

The winning squadron will bear the coveted pennant until next year's competition.

Members of the adjudicating board for the Governor's pennant were: Lt. Col. Robert C. Irwin, Capt. Berle D. Yarn, and 1st Lt. Robert O. Reeves, of the United States Air Force Reserve and Edwin H. Armstrong, executive secretary to the Governor.

In the reviewing party with President G. Herbert Smith of Willamette will be Governor Douglas McKay, Ashley Greene, Commander of the Oregon Wing of the Air Force Association; Carl G. Steelhammer, Exalted Ruler of the Salem Elks; W. L. Barnett, Commander of the Salem VFW; Hollis Hull, Department Commander of the American Legion; Dean Mark O. Hatfield and Dr. Howard W. Runkel, members of the AFROTC affairs committee; Mayor Alfred L. Loucks of Salem and Maj. Norman W. Campion, professor of air science and tactics at Willamette.

Presentation of the Air Force Association Achievement medal to the most outstanding advance AFROTC student will be made by Ashley Greene. Granting the Elks award to this year's most outstanding AFROTC student, which is being given by BPOE lodge 336 of Salem, will be Carl G. Steelhammer.

The VFW honor from Marion post No. 661, awarded to the most outstanding basic AFROTC student, is to be presented by W. L. Barnett. Hollis Hull will issue the American Legion Capital Post No. 9 award, which goes to this year's most outstanding AFROTC rifle team member.

Following the President's Review, the AFROTC drill team will present a short demonstration, falling in for the drill immediately after marching off the field.

Objections by France Erased By Negotiators

BONN, Germany (AP) — A peace contract giving West Germany enough freedom to enter an armed alliance with the West was completed here Sunday. Last-minute French objections were overcome after long hours of negotiation.

The contract is to be signed Monday by the Big Three foreign ministers and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in a ceremony starting at 10 a. m. (1 a. m., PST.)

But on the very day the historic document was completed, the Russians made their third demand in three months for a four-power conference to frame a peace treaty for a united and completely "sovereign" Germany.

It was Moscow's newest move in the struggle for Germany, apparently another baited bid to keep the Germans out of the Western camp.

The West German pact—a partial peace treaty for only part of the former enemy Reich—will not be published until after the signing ceremony.

To Create Army

It will end the occupation, grant the federal republic near sovereignty and, combined with the six-nation treaty to create a million-man European army with 400,000 Germans in it, bind the 48 million Germans west of the Iron Curtain to Free Europe.

The latter treaty is slated for signature in Paris Tuesday.

Neither pact is effective until ratified and both face long and spiritual parliamentary battles, especially in Bonn and Paris, where strong political groups are hostile to the projects.

In two days of meetings here, America's Dean Acheson, Britain's Anthony Eden, France's Robert Schuman and the 76-year-old German Chancellor ironed out the last few points blocking completion of the pact, which had been in negotiation a year.

Demands Settled

which for a time threatened to block the signing, were virtually settled Sunday. Negotiators agreed on the wording of a British-American guarantee to prevent Germany breaking out of the European army and become again a menace to her neighbors.

Allied officials were confident it would quiet French fears.

But while the way apparently has been cleared for Schuman to sign Monday it was still an open question whether the guarantee would satisfy the French sufficiently to enable the two pacts to be ratified.

Strong Red Push Repulsed

SEOUL (AP) — Chinese Red troops changed their pace Sunday night and threw a solid, two-company assault instead of small patrol thrusts against Allied outposts on the western front.

The Allies were forced to throw in reinforcements and only checked the Reds after five hours of furious fighting in the dark.

Ball Fans Take Early Morning 7th Inning Stretch

The fans at Watters Park had to wait until early this morning for the traditional "seventh-inning stretch" during the second game of the Salem Senators doubleheader with Tri-City Sunday.

Because the first game went 12 innings, five over the scheduled seven, by the time the Senators came to bat in the seventh inning of the second game it was exactly 12:01 a. m. Monday morning (or 1:01 a. m. Daylight time).

Lawn Sprinkler Thefts Reported

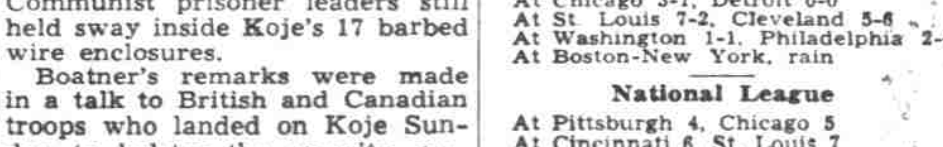

A series of petty thefts, mostly involving loss of lawn sprinklers, plagued city police over the week end.

Sprinklers were reported stolen from two Linden Lane homes, E. D. Burland at 2775 Linden Ln., valued a sprinkler and valve taken sometime Saturday at $37. Another sprinkler was reported missing from the E. A. Linden Jr. residence, at 2775 Linden Ln.

A Coca Cola machine at a service station at 19th and State Street was broken into sometime Saturday and about $6 in coins taken, Manager Frank Chasteen reported.

Animal Crackers

By WARREN COODRICH

"He's interested in nothing but money!"

IT SEEMS TO ME By Charles A. Sorenson

W. M. Tugman, editor of the Eugene Register-Guard has just completed a shuttle trip across the United States. He not only "shuttled" east and west but north and south. And as he traveled he dipped his bucket into Americana. What he came up with he set down in travel letters to his paper.

His was indeed a journey of exploration, not so much into the surface features of America, the street canyons of the cities, the rivers and the mountains, but into the human varieties which people the continent. He studied America through the characters that he met: the "liberal" employe in the TVA office at Knoxville (and the rugged individualist editor who was hostile to TVA), the old idiom-worshiper who had fired him as cub reporter, professors at Harvard, a Negro woman and the high school student whom he picked up while driving along the highway in Georgia, the anti-Truman Texan in the club car of the Sunset limited, the bum taking a sun bath in Union Square, San Francisco.

He summed up his impressions in these paragraphs with which he ended his Americana Epistles:

"America is the sum of millions of loyalties and some of them can be misguided or misplaced, but the essential loyalties run very deep. Again and again we have been reminded of Whitman's lines:

"A GREAT CITY is that which has the greatest men and women... it is but a few ragged huts, it is still the greatest city in the world."

The power of America is not in Washington, D. C. It springs out of the soil in every corner of the land. It attaches to the most unlikely and difficult places. It is a thing inseparable from freedom and dignity in man.

Out of the soil! Tugman has given his readers a fresh version of "Ballad for Americans."
