

Senators Take Nightcap From Tri-City, 8 to 2

By AL LIGHTNER
Statesman Sports Editor

The Salem Senators salvaged the second game of last night's double bill with Tri-City at Waters Field, notching an 8-2 triumph after losing the opener, a real heartbreaker, 1-0 in 12 innings. Young Jack Hemphill, making a strong bid for a regular starting role for the Salems, hurled the victory, spreading seven hits and yielding runs only in the fifth and ninth innings.

Illegal Price Cutting Laid to Chain Stores

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) Sunday accused the big Safeway and Kroger grocery chains of knowingly accepting price discriminations from suppliers of merchandise.

The result, FTC said in the complaint, is that Safeway and Kroger are in position to spend more on business promotion or offer lower prices than their competitors. Either or both of those things tends to lessen competition and lead toward monopoly, the commission said.

It noted that Safeway ranks second in size among American grocery chains and Kroger third. Each has about 2,000 retail stores and annual sales volume around one billion dollars.

Hearings on the question of violation of the Clayton Act are set for Safeway in San Francisco on July 21 before examiner Abner E. Lipscomb, and for Kroger in Cincinnati August 25 before examiner Webster Ballinger.

Safeway immediately called the complaint "completely unjustified" and Kroger branded it as being "entirely without foundation."

A statement issued at Safeway's Oakland, Calif., headquarters by President Lingan A. Warren asserted Safeway's constant policy has been to comply with all laws applicable to its business and said further:

"Safeway has not knowingly induced or received any prices, discounts, or allowances in violation of the law, and we are confident that the evidence will prove it is not guilty of the commission's charges."

President Joseph B. Hall of Kroger said in a statement at Cincinnati, headquarters for the vast grocery concern:

"A charge that our buying practices have been in violation of any law is entirely without foundation."

The complaints allege that for some grocery store merchandise the suppliers have charged competitors of Safeway and Kroger higher prices than those charged the two chains for products of like grade and quality.

"These transactions were unlawful," the FTC said in the complaints, because the chains purchased the merchandise with the knowledge that the prices they paid were lower than those paid by their competitors and by wholesalers who resell to such competitors.

League Airs City Problems

PORTLAND (AP)—City problems which would be solved by legislative statute were discussed here Sunday by the legislative committee of the League of Oregon Cities.

Among recommendations were: A budget law which would limit city expenditures for utilities to the amount budgeted.

State aid for cities installing sewage disposal facilities which also serve state institutions.

A uniform traffic code for all cities.

Motorcycle Crash Kills 2

GOLD HILL, Ore. (AP)—Two persons were killed near here Sunday when their motorcycle collided with two cars.

Dead are Merlin Paul Simmons, 20, and his sister, Carol Simmons, 16. State Police said their motorcycle collided with two cars which had stopped because the wheel of a trailer attached to a wheel car had come off in the middle of a highway five miles south of here.

The Simmons, who were killed outright, are survived by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Simmons, Gold Hill.

"I don't expect you to think that our national house is in perfect order. But I do expect you to feel some sense of personal responsibility about it," he said.

Earlier in an interview Ewing criticized what he called the "hierarchy" of the American Medical Association as "the greediest group that exists."

He said this group was responsible for the defeat in Congress last week of a revised social security act. He said the AMA believed that one provision of the act might lead to socialized medicine.

Mid-Valley Iris Gardens Draw 1,500 Visitors

By LILLIE L. MADSEN
Garden Editor, The Statesman
That irises are a popular flower was proved again Sunday when more than 1,500 people visited the widely known iris gardens in the Salem-Silverton area. The mecca of the iris tourists were Schreiner's gardens north of Salem in the Quinaby area, the display gardens and iris farm of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Cooley and the hybridizing gardens of Dr. R. Kleinsorge at Silverton.

Dr. Kleinsorge, who began hybridizing some 30 years ago has won international recognition for his many fine creations. Sunday the hundreds of visitors were permitted to view not only many of his old favorites such as Auburn, introduced in 1945; Ballet Dancer, 1949; Black and Gold, 1943; Bryce Canyon, 1945 (still one of the most popular of the coppery shades); Cascade Splendor, 1945; Daybreak, 1941 (one of the very early pink irises introduced); Cordovan, 1946, a seedling of Bryce Canyon; Pretty Quadroon, 1948; Prince of Orange, 1940, as well as many of the newer ones, including Lovelight, Rosebella, Spanish Fringed and Solid Gold, all introduced a year ago.

In addition to these, visitors at the Kleinsorge gardens Sunday, were delighted with many of the new yet unnamed seedlings just coming into bloom. There was a heavenly blue being the tag number 392A, which had one of the best branching habits that I, for one, had ever seen on any iris.

A new, shorter growing iris, which proved popular with many of the visitors was Alline Roger. A most unusual one with all the rainbow colors, was No. 375. The outer edge of the fall of this were bronzy and yellow while the center of the falls was a deep blue.

Another one, our own party liked particularly well was No. 355, a mixture of old gold and bronze with a blue center. Dr. Kleinsorge has excelled in his hybridization.

Among the visitors to the three gardens Sunday was the Northwest branch of the American Iris Society, headed by Bennett Jones and Mrs. J. Jones. Approximately 100 were in this party all of whom stopped for a pre-arranged luncheon at Toney's at Silverton. The society has been holding a week-end convention at Portland and the Sunday tour was the final event of the affair.

The annual iris show, held at the iris house in the Cooley Display Gardens, will continue open to the public Monday.

Elfstrom to Quit Liquor Board Post If Elected

In case Robert Elfstrom is elected state representative from Marion county at the general election in November he will resign as a member of the state liquor control commission, Governor Douglas McKay said Sunday.

Elfstrom is serving as chairman of the commission.

Elfstrom, ex-mayor of Salem, was nominated by the Republicans for one of the four Marion County seats in the house at the recent primary election. He was third in the contest.

The law provides that no person shall hold two lucrative public offices at the same time. McKay said that Elfstrom, at the time he accepted membership on the liquor control commission, indicated he would retire within 18 months.

Elfstrom indicated that if chosen as representative from Marion County he would sponsor several needed amendments to the Knox liquor control act. These amendments, it was indicated, would strengthen the enforcement features of the law, instead of weakening them.
