4 'Pioneers' Feted, Church Project Starts

SILVERTON, Ore., (AP)—Four people, who joined the Silverton Methodist church more than 50 years ago were honored Sunday afternoon at the ground breaking for the new Methodist church. Mrs. P. L. Blackerby, who joined the local church 58 years ago was present Sunday for the event and spoke briefly on early memories of the church and congregation. Mrs. Blackerby is now at the Methodist home in Salem.

Mrs. Roscoe Langley, who has been a continuous member for 51 years was also present and spoke briefly. Honored as four "pioneers" of the church were Mrs. Langley, Mrs. H. J. Winter and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Adams. The Adams and Mrs. Winter reported they had been members since 1905.

The first shovel of soil was turned by Norman Naegeli, chairman of the official board. The second shovel of soil was turned by the four pioneers. Other members of the building committee introduced during the afternoon ceremony included Edgar Boyce, Dr. Norman L. Dodds, E. A. Firaly, Mrs. Floyd Fox, Sr., Harry Riches, Mrs. W. Dale Lamar, and Ben Sprick. James L. Payne, Salem, architect, The Rev. D. Lester Fields of Woodburn, former pastor of the church, and Mrs. Fields, each spoke during the program.

Organist for the ceremony was Miss Frances Fox.

MEDFORD LEADER DIES
MEDFORD (AP)—John C. Mann, 88, civic leader and founder of Mann's Department Store here, died at his home Sunday afternoon. He had been a resident of Medford since 1915. His widow and two daughters survive.

Fear of Huge State Financial Deficit Drops

The nearer it comes to the 1953 legislative session the less fear officials have that there will be more than a nominal financial deficit in state funds to meet requirements of the next biennium.

A few months ago some officials predicted a deficit of between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 by the end of the year 1953. With the large income tax collection and estimated increase in collections by other state activities officials have expressed optimism regarding the future.

"Unless there is a wild spending spree on the part of the 1953 legislature the state should break even in the next biennium," a veteran member of the joint ways and means committee said.

Requested appropriations for state institution construction were expected to be far less for the next biennium than during the current two-year period, officials agree. The board of control has not yet been advised how much money will be sought by the state board of higher education for construction purposes.

Income tax collections this year, based on 1951 incomes, are the largest in the history of the state and state tax commissioners said there would be no reduction during the next few years provided business conditions continue on their current level.

This year's receipts of the state insurance commission, state corporation department and state real estate division also were expected to show gains for this biennium when compared with the previous two years.

Vote Canvass to Take 2 Weeks

State canvass of the recent primary election vote is well under way but the job will not be completed for two weeks, David O'Hara, registrar of the state elections bureau, said Sunday.

No errors in the county returns have been discovered up to this time.

As soon as the canvass is completed the nominees will be certified to the county clerks for the November election.

Poulson to Present Diplomas at OTI

Oscar I. Poulson, state director of vocational education, will present the diplomas to the graduating class of Oregon Technical Institute in Klamath Falls, June 9.

Ceremonies coinciding with the graduation of the class of 234, largest in the school's history, will be over a two-day period June 8 and 9.

Demo Absenteeism In Congress Said Costly to Fair Deal

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP)—House Democratic leaders are seeking a cure for chronic absenteeism which on occasion has been costly to the Truman administration's program.

"I don't know what the remedy is," Rep. Priest (D-Tenn.) told a reporter. "They just don't seem to care. Many of them are busy campaigning."

Kimsey Urges Harvest Hands To Check Pay

Oregon Labor Commissioner W. E. Kimsey advised harvest hands here to keep a close check on wages due them.

Kimsey said he gets complaints every summer from farm workers who have been cheated out of their wages.

If their wages are not paid, the workers can file liens against the grower's crop within 30 days after quitting.

Perry Buren to Address Meeting

The Navy Department also reported the birth of a son to Mrs.

Woman Convict Loses 'Good Time'

Prison officials said Sunday they had wiped out 20 months of "Good Time," accumulated by Mickey O'Brien, who escaped from the penitentiary several months ago. She was apprehended in Seattle a week ago and returned to the prison.

At the time of her escape she was employed in the home of Deputy Warden Eugene Halley on the Penitentiary grounds. She stole approximately $35 from Mrs. Halley's purse before departing.

Miss O'Brien was received from Clatsop county in January, 1951, on a forgery charge.
