Who says they don't come big in the Deschutes? As anyone can plainly see, fly fishing is now excellent.

A post card from Elton (Bud) Lafky, 1325 N. 21st St., Salem, who is taking a short vacation up Canada way indicates that he is finding the fishing up there all that it is cracked up to be. To date his largest sea-run cutthroat weighs in at 2 lbs. and he has one 32-inch Summer steelhead to his credit. The "picture card," postmarked Courtney, B. C., says that he is working his way on toward the Campbell River where the fish really come big.

Chas. (Chuck) Fearing, Salem, reports by telephone that he and a party of three went in to Marion Lake last Sunday and brought back near limits of rainbow running from 10 to 16 inches. Fish are in excellent condition according to Chuck, but they turn down every offering except single eggs. Also found at Marion were a few scattered bruins, one of which got a bit pugnacious and ruined an angler's camp. Looks as if a trip to the high lakes calls not only for a bottle of insect repellent but also a couple of jugs of bruin bait. We'll lay odds that we could beat the bear over the mountain, stiff leg, cane and all.

'Ducks Unlimited' Waterfowl Faces Threat of Drought

A late report from Bert Cartwright, chief naturalist for DUCKS UNLIMITED indicates that waterfowl breeding is progressing most favorably. There is, however, a threat of drought hanging over the Southern prairies. Unless that part of the breeding area receives rainfall in short order, it could well mean that a goodly portion of the duck crop will have a tough time of it.

Th unexpected drought conditions emphasize the great need for further DUCKS UNLIMITED projects. That organization has done an amazing job in furnishing watered areas for the security of our waterfowl. They operate strictly on donations which come mostly from American sportsmen and without which the organization would be handcuffed.

Cartwright states that already one hen pintail has been observed with a near record brood of 14 tiny ducklings. She appeared quite proud and unconcerned over the future drought prospects. We certainly hope that water arrives in time to prevent the loss of that and many other broods.

The Deschutes River is affording some excellent fly fishing now for those who are inclined to try the feathers on the wily brown trout. The river from Bend downstream to Lower Bridge not far out of Redmond is one of the favorite stretches of water for the fly man who likes to wade and fish.

Both Rainbow and Brown Trout Being Caught

The Deschutes above Bend is also turning out some nice fish to the fly man and in the up-river water both rainbow and brown trout are tempting the anglers. Trolling small plugs is also accounting for some nice catches as is spin fishing with small lures. This upper river is best fished from a boat as it is wide and non-wadable. The river is smooth for the most part and is an easy boat trip for those who know what an oar or a motor is for.

For those anglers who like to beat the waters of the Crooked, Metolius and lower Deschutes, may we remind you that it pays to keep the eyes open at this time for rattlesnakes. It is advisable to have one of the pocket "snake bite" kits along at all times in this lower river area. One of the more elaborate snake bite kits that have to be left at camp or in the car are going to do NO good at all in case of the rare snake bite accident. Have a small one on your person and then take added precaution by not placing your hands on over-head rock ledges where you cannot see. Avoid walking past under-cut banks that are heavily covered with brush. Watch where you step and sit.

There is really no need to fear the Pacific rattler if you take a moment to investigate where you are climbing. You may well respect the rattler even if you don't fear him. If you are accidentally struck, dont get excited. Follow the directions with your kit (read them before, not after) and take it easy. Get to a doctor as soon as possible after all necessary first aid work is done. Above all, use common sense and live longer.

Weekend Fishing Forecast Listed 'Fair' by Commish

PORTLAND (AP)—Fair fishing conditions in Northwest Oregon were reported by the State Game Commission Thursday. The report:

Northwest—Coastal streams are fair. The water is slightly murky and rising but will probably be down by the weekend. Spring chinook fishing at Tillamook Bay has tapered off. A few sea-run cutthroat are being caught in tidewater in Lincoln County streams. Fishing on the McKenzie and upper Willamette rivers continues fair to good. The water is generally high but expected to improve by the weekend. Dorena Reservoir is fair to poor. Clear Lake in Linn County is improving and most of the trout are being taken on single eggs. Linton Lake on the McKenzie Pass is fair. Road to High Rock Lakes in Clackamas County is still closed. Fishing on the Clackamas and Molalla Rivers is fair with bait best.

Southwest—Fair catches of trout are being made with May flies in central coast lakes, and although central coast streams are low some catches are being made with bait and flies. Warm water game fish in central coast areas are biting well. Trout angling remains good throughout the North Umpqua area with the main stream producing better catches than the tributaries. Flying caddis and other large light-colored flies are reported best. Some summer steelhead are beginning to show below Winchester Dam, but fishing is still slow.

Central—Colder weather in the central region with showers and some snow in the higher areas has caused the angling pressure to drop off. The road to Lava Lake is now open and many limits of Eastern brook are being taken. Limit catches of blueback continue to be made at Blue Lake on troll. Odell Lake continues very good for rainbow. Blueback fishing is dropping off somewhat and Mackinaw fishing is still good. Spinner and worms and orange flat fish are the best lures here. Crescent Lake is producing very good catches of rainbow orange flat fish. Black streamer fly at Davis Lake is best with a nine pound rainbow taken last weekend. Diamond Lake is good with quite a few limits taken with bait and East Lake continues good with a twenty pound trout weighed in Sunday. Paulina Lake is good trolling and on bait. The road is open into Elk Lake Lodge on South Century Drive. The Upper Deschutes is good on troll and fly and the Lower Deschutes is producing a few nice catches on bait and fly. Ochoco Reservoir and Crane Prairie Reservoir both continue to be very good. Lower Deschutes River has partially cleared since rain and is dropping. Fishing should be fair to good with best catches taken on eggs or worms.

Duke Smothers Oregon State Beavers

Blue Devil '9' Nabs Tourney Clash by 18-7

OMAHA (AP)—Duke, the tournament favorite, staked a rousing comeback to rout Oregon State 18-7, in the NCAA baseball meet Thursday. After firing a first inning 4-run blast the Southerners saw their lead wiped out in the next inning when Oregon State pounded Duke's ace, Joe Lewis, for six runs on four hits, two walks and two errors.

Veteran coach Jack Coombs refused to remove his pitching star and his confidence was well justified.

Lewis, boosting his season mark to 21-1, held the Beavers to four hits the rest of the way while he and his mates jumped all over Oregon State pitching. Lewis doubled to score three runs in the sixth to give Duke an 8-7 lead.

Dick Johnson was the top hitter for the winners with a 350-foot homer over the right field wall, two doubles and a single.

Duke's triumph followed a 5-3 victory by Penn State over Texas, the opening game of the eight-team, elimination tournament.

Holy Cross stopped Western Michigan, 5-1, as Jim O'Neill turned in a five-hitter for the Crusaders.

Tourney Next As Mat Fare

A one night, single elimination tournament, with eight gladiators to appear in seven matches, will be the main feature of next Tuesday night's Armory wrestling program, Matchmaker Elton Owen has announced. The winner will get a trophy and a shot at the new Coast junior heavy mat titlist, Rogers Mackay of Los Angeles.

Owen had hoped to rematch Tol Yamato and George Dusette after their stormy brawl of this week, but Yamato refused to again appear here with Harry Elliott as referee. When Owen stood by Elliott as his third man, the sinister Jap, who was squashed by Dusette Tuesday, thumbed down the rematch. He has consequently been suspended indefinitely by Owen.

Dusette will be one of the eight matadors in the tourney. Gordy Hessell and Hal Kanner will be two others, and the rest of the clan will be lined up and signed later. All matches will be one-fallers limited to 15 minutes. In the evnt they aren't decided by falls, three ringside judges will vote for winners.

Angels Slate Oregon City 9

MT. ANGEL—(Special)—The Oregon City Elks are scheduled to play the Mt. Angel Townies in Ebner Baseball park Friday night, starting at eight o'clock.

Oregon City finished second in the first half of the Portland City League and will pitch Len Zimmerman against the Townies' Gale Buchheit in the local fray. Zimmerman is the brother of the catcher signed recently by the Boston Red Sox for a reported $80,000 bonus.

Matthews Opens Marciano Drills

Seattle (AP)—Deacon Jack Hurley Wednesday ordered Harry Matthews to do some hiking in the hills as the first move in preparation for his July 28 fight with Rocky Marciano in Yankee Stadium.

"Two weeks of heavy gym training should be enough for Harry," the manager said. Hurley returned Tuesday from New York, where he arranged for the bout.

1. What river of Europe flows in some places on the same level as the roofs of neighboring houses?
2. What three U. S. President's first name was John?
3. What famous British playwright died in 1951?
4. What Biblical character symbolizes old age?
5. What is the largest deer?

ANSWERS

1. The Po, in Italy. Because of the settling of sediment through the centuries, the bottom if the river has been raised and the people have built dikes to prevent overflow, in some places 30 feet high, and thus the surface of the water is much higher than the plain through which it flows.
2. John Adams, John Quincy Adams, and John Tyler.
