

Archivists Seek to Eradicate 'Book Worms'

A fumigation room, for use of the state library, was completed this week at the State Prison grounds. Shown inside the room, stacking old books to be de-bugged and treated for mold, are (from left) Norris Myren, State Archivist David Duniway and Herbert J. Salisbury, all with the state archives office.

Fumigation Room Finished At State Pen

A long-awaited fumigation room was completed at the State Prison grounds this week and used for the first time Wednesday by members of the State Archives office. "We've needed this fumigation room for a long time," said State Archivist David Duniway. The room will be used by the archivists to treat old books and documents for mold, bugs, moths, silverfish, paper wasps and other harmful elements. The room located outside prison walls in the penitentiary's greenhouse, also will be used by prison gardeners to fumigate plant bulbs. A product of recent state legislation the $1,000 room was built by prison inmates. It is built for gas fumigation.

Oregon Flyer Safe After Air Collision

LUKE AIR FORCE BASE, Ariz. (AP)—Capt. James F. Byers, 29, Bend, Ore., made a safe landing Monday after his plane crashed in the air with another. The pilot of the other plane, 1st Lieut. Walter R. Sexton, 24, of West Jefferson, N. C., was killed. They were flying P-51 Mustang fighters over the Gila Bend gunnery range. Byers is a veteran of 103 combat missions in Europe and 100 in Korea.

Salem Rotary Club Host to 3 New Citizens

How "tough" it is to become an American citizen, without being born that way, was depicted to Salem Rotary Club Wednesday by three new citizens. They also showed how quickly they acquired an Americanize sense of humor. The club had as guests 17 of the 26 Marion County residents granted final citizenship papers Monday, along with officials involved in the naturalization program. These include Circuit Judge George R. Duncan, County Clerk Henry Mattson and Claude A. Keila, who has instructed Salem YMCA citizenship classes steadily since 1921, resulting in more than 1,500 new Americans. Carl E. Abrams, chairman of the YM education committee, was program chairman.

Dr. "Theodors" Staprans, a State Hospital physician, said that naturalization requires proof of such things as five-year U. S. residence, good morals and that you have only one wife. Lauding Kells for "trying to implant the meaning of America" as well as knowledge of its laws and institutions, Staprans expressed gratitude for his family's acceptance by Salem people and for people's help to them.

Dr. Adolfs Lietuviets, also a State Hospital physician and also from Latvia, portrayed the difficulty some of the immigrants had in even getting to America. The family tried to flee to Sweden from the Russians but were intercepted by a German warship. Some of the questioning by occupation forces and immigration authorities, when he told this story, almost made him "blow his top." But he said his experiences have taught him that "people who don't appreciate nonsense never appreciate sense." The only slavery he found here was of husbands who wash dishes while their wives enjoy themselves.

Third speaker was Dr. Cameron Paulin, from Canada and now an art professor at Willamette University, who paid tribute to the enthusiasm of Americans, their interest generally in contributing rather than "resting on what was done in the past."
