

41st Division Parades for Gen. Maison

NORTHEAST FORT LEWIS, Wash.—The famous 41st Infantry Division rolled across Gray Field at Fort Lewis Saturday in the fifth annual parade of the Oregon and Washington national guard since World War II.

The 5,500 guardsmen closed out the first week of the summer training camp with a parade of tanks, trucks and marching troops before the homefolks, governors of both states and ranking officers of Fort Lewis, 6th Army headquarters and the National Guard bureau.

The division paraded for its new commander, Maj. Gen. Harold G. Maison, Salem, for the first time. Governors of both states, Arthur B. Langlie of Washington and Douglas McKay of Oregon, were in the reviewing stand, along with Maj. Gen. Thomas E. Rilea, adjutant general of Oregon; Brig. Gen. Liburn Stevens, adjutant general of Washington; Brig. Gen. John J. Burns, commanding general of Fort Lewis; Maj. Gen. W. H. Abendroth, chief of army division, National Guard bureau, Washington, D. C.; Brig. Gen. George S. Cook, Seattle, assistant division commander, and Col. Frederick L. Wiegand, Portland, division chief of staff.

The 41st Infantry Division association trophy for outstanding service during the year was presented to Capt. James J. Anderson, commander of the tank company, 186th infantry regiment, from Woodburn. The trophy was presented by Capt. Jesse T. Wilkins, Jr., president of the association. The tank company won in competition between national guard companies in Oregon and Washington. The units were rated on training efficiency, attendance, strength and army extension sub-course completion.

Brig. Gen. John P. Pence of Tacoma, new commander of the division artillery, led the artillery units from the two states in the parade. Commanders of the two Oregon regiments were Col. James D. Allgood, Dallas, the 162d, and Col. Robert L. Irving, Roseburg, the 186th.

This week, the last week of summer camp, the guardsmen will be busy as ever. Today will be the day for excursions, with three interesting trips offered. One tour by bus, is scheduled to the alpine scenery of Mt. Rainier. Another will take the guardsmen to Victoria, B. C., on the "Princess" liner and another trip is scheduled for the Bremerton navy base. Monday the division moves to the wooded hills east of Fort Lewis proper for three days of army field test and command post exercises. The civilian soldiers will take pup tents along for the brief stay in the field.

Lewis & Clark College Wins Church's Award

First place "for all around development in the past ten years," was awarded to Lewis and Clark College, Portland, by the National Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church in a report of its 42 affiliated colleges.

Summing up its report the inspection committee said the college has made almost phenomenal strides, both academic and physical, since it moved to its new campus on Palatine Hill several years ago.

Nazarenes End Conclaves

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Two international Nazarene Church organizations completed quadrennial conventions here Saturday with elections of general councils. Ten council members were elected. They included Eugene Stowe, Salem, Ore.; William Summerscales, Vancouver, B. C.; Gerald Johnson, Couer D'Alene, Idaho.

The new women's missionary council members include Mrs. Gordon Olsen, Eugene, Ore., and Mrs. Edward Lawlor, Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

Sweden Asks Russians Tell Fate of Plane

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Sweden demanded Sunday that Russia say whether Soviet military aircraft shot down a missing Swedish air force Douglas plane that disappeared in the Baltic Sea June 13 with a crew of eight.

A Swedish note dispatched to Moscow said a life raft from the plane had been recovered and bore evidence that the Douglas was shot at before it dropped from sight.

A Swedish Catalina flying boat searching for the Douglas was shot down by two Soviet MIG-15 fighters last Monday, west of the Baltic island of Dagoe. The Catalina crew of seven was rescued, but two were wounded.

Protests Rejected

Last week Russia rejected angry Swedish protests over the Catalina incident and countered with the claim the Swedes fired at the Russians first and were over Soviet territory. The Swedes stoutly maintained that Catalina was not armed and at least 15 miles out to sea.

The Swedish Foreign Office announcement of the query to Russia on the original, June 13, incident of the Douglas plane said instructions had been sent to the Swedish Ambassador in Moscow, Rolf Eohlmann, to press for a reply.

In the exchanges of protests, Sweden acknowledged to Moscow that one search plane accidentally flew over Russian territory, but quickly departed, and said the Swedes regretted this infringement.

Not Closed Incident

Sunday's Swedish action made it clear the Swedes are unwilling to regard the Baltic shooting as a closed incident despite Russia's protests and counter-charges.

Orders to return fire if attacked have been issued to Swedish air and naval units in the Baltic and still stand. Swedish vessels and planes are continuing their regular training operations in the Baltic, determined to defend their rights in international waters.

Anti-Russian feeling is expected to soar still higher following the official announcement the Douglas plane had been fired on before it crashed.

SOVIET PLANES

LONDON (INS)—A Royal Air Force intelligence officer says that the Russians are developing a long-range six-engine bomber. Asher Lee, in his book "The Soviet Air Force," also said that reports from Russia indicate the Soviet air force is developing flight refueling techniques designed for operation over Arctic air routes.
