

Miss Janet Gaiser Becomes Bride Of Bruce MacDonald, Saturday

Memorable for its beauty was the wedding of Miss Janet Gaiser, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Gaiser, and Bruce MacDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm MacDonald, which took place in the colonial edifice of the First Presbyterian Church Saturday night. It was at 8:30 o'clock that Dr. Paul Poling officiated at the nuptials before a large gathering of relatives and friends of the couple.

The altar was banked with all white bouquets of gladioluses and woodwardia fern and the alternate pews were marked with white tapers and clusters of ivy tied with white satin bows. Miss Virginia Bitar of Longview, Wash., was the soloist and before the bridal party entered Prof. and Mrs. Ralph Dobbs played an organ and piano selection.

For her wedding the attractive, brunette bride wore the handsome white satin gown that her sister, Mrs. Richard Maxfield (Rosemary Gaiser), wore at her marriage four years ago. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a double bertha collar and a sweetheart neckline. The train length skirt was made with an overskirt of the satin caught up with lace rosettes centered with pale lavender flowers. Her train length veil was of French illusion bordered in lace and cascaded from a lace cap enhanced with insets of satin adorned with seed pearls. She carried a crescent of white roses and stephanotis arranged with orchid and net.

Freeds the Bride

A sextet of pretty attendants wearing ballerina organdy frocks over taffeta with embroidered organdy bodice with off-shoulder necklines preceded the bride to the altar. Mrs. Richard Maxfield was her sister's honor matron and wore white organdy over lavender with a violet sash and carried a fan shaped bouquet of violet delphinium. The bridesmaids, Miss Janet MacDonald, sister of the groom, Miss Joan Marie Miller, Miss Jean Goodman and Miss Donna Lee Chamberlain of Crescent City, Calif., wore white organdy over green taffeta with lavender satin sashes and carried fans of lavender delphinium. The attendants all wore white pumps and bandeaux in their hair, matching their sashes to which were caught short French veils.

The junior bridesmaid, Mary Lou MacDonald, younger sister of the groom, who walked immediately before the bride, wore a floor length lavender organdy frock with tiered skirt and bertha collar. She carried a miniature nosegay of lavender and violet delphinium.

Richard Welch Jr. of Portland, a classmate of the groom's at Yale University, served as best man. Seating the several hundred guests were James Gilmore, cousin of the bride, Robert Bowes, cousin of the groom, Glenn Kicen, Richard Fuhr, Jerry Inskip of Oregon City, and Fred Meikle of Portland.

Mrs. Gaiser selected a lavender crepe gown with violet accessories for her daughter's nuptials. Her corsage was of rubrum lilies and fuchsias. Mrs. MacDonald attended her son's marriage in a mint blue chiffon gown with white accessories and a corsage of rubrum lilies and fuchsias.

Reception at Gaiser Home

of the bride's parents in Manbrin Gardens, the garden and home both used for the occasion. The bridal party received in the living room and the bride's table was arranged in the dining room. The punch table was set on the patio, where the ushers assisted.

Miss Victoria Gaiser of LaGrande greeted guests at the door. Presiding at the coffee urns were Mrs. Brown E. Sisson, Mrs. C. L. Bower, aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Ivan Stewart. Cutting the cake were Mrs. Charles A. Sprague, Mrs. Melvin H. Geist, Mrs. Robert L. Elfstrom, Mrs. Victor Rogel of Ritzville, Wash., aunt of the bride, Mrs. B. F. Williams and Mrs. Joseph Galt of LaGrande, Mrs. James T. Brand and Mrs. Tinkham Gilbert invited guests into the dining room. Assisting about the rooms and serving were Misses Bonnie Stewart, Alice Waters, Edna Marie Hill, Joyce Armstrong, Mary Campbell, Elaine Stanley, Janice Plummer, Roseburg and Mrs. William F. Johnson.

When the just-weds left on their honeymoon to Victoria, B. C., the new Mrs. MacDonald donned a white dress with pleated skirt, a white bertha collar with bell sleeves, a navy straw hat and navy and white accessories. Pinned to her coat was a corsage of red roses. The couple will be in Salem for the summer and have taken a house at 3175 Garden Road. In the fall, they will leave for Branford, Conn., to make their home while Mr. MacDonald completes his senior year at Yale University.

Always One Attendant

For an informal wedding, when the bride does not wear a traditional wedding gown, she may always have one attendant, either a maid or matron of honor, or a flower girl. But no bride should have bridesmaids, unless she herself is dressed as a bride.

Carry Your Flowers

With afternoon or dinner dresses flowers held in the hand look much more graceful than flowers pinned on. Corsages look best with street dresses and suits. Gloves are not necessary when flowers hide the hands, but both gloves and bag are essentially required with street clothes.
