Bright Future Predicted for Dairy Farms

Even though there is a temporary lack of active interest in increasing Oregon's dairy cow numbers, the state is still out in front with high individual production records and high herd production averages, Harold P. Ewalt, Oregon dairy specialist, Corvallis, points out as June Dairy Month draws to a close. Jerseys continue to lead national records with a milk and butterfat top made at the Ralph Cope farm at Langlois, in Southern Oregon. C. J. Berning, Mt. Angel, still holds a national Holstein butterfat production record. M. C. Fleming, Troutdale, has a similar national record for Guernseys. Oregon Brown Swiss are out in front with high records at the Albert Meier farm, Beaverton, where a new class leader was recently announced. Ayrshires are also represented in Oregon with a number of good producing herds. Ewalt believes that dairying offers a bright future for young men interested in farming. The steady population increase in the Pacific Coast states, he points out, spells an increasing demand for more milk, especially for fluid use. This latter use is in the most lucrative position. If Oregon dairymen fail to supply this milk, the specialist warns, dairymen outside the state will likely take over the market. How long can an increased production per cow help to offset the decrease in cow numbers being milked in Oregon? June milk production has decreased three percent since the year previous. Bottle and can milk usage, meanwhile, is on the increase and without a hike in total production, this milk must come from herds which formerly supplied manufacturing milk and have now qualified for grade A. In British administered Islands of Oceania, head hunting was, until recently, a vital part of the ceremonial life of the people and its suppression led to social decay and a sharp reduction in population.

"Most-Wanted" of Them All!

It will probably occasion no surprise on your part to be told that the Cadillac car is the most wanted and sought-after automobile on the American highways. But you might be surprised to learn how widespread the desire to own this great motor car has become. Statistics indicate, for instance, that there are more than twenty million motorists in America who would like to call a Cadillac their own. And were the whole of the world's motorists to be taken into consideration, this number would grow well-nigh beyond comprehension. There is reason to believe, in fact, that Cadillac may be wanted by more people than any other product manufactured in America today. It might well be called the great desideratum of the American people. Naturally, a motor car has to offer many wonderful things in order to occupy such a unique position in the hopes and aspirations of so many persons. In order to be so universally accepted as the "car of cars," it has to be instantly recognizable as the "car of cars." And so, it has to offer—great beauty! In order to have created so enduring an impression on so many motorists, it would also have to act like the "car of cars." And that means it must offer—brilliant performance! In order to have become the logical ambition of so many millions, it would have to be practical to own, as well as wonderful to drive. And so, it would have to offer—extraordinary economy! And finally, to be admired so highly by so many, it would have to offer wonderful prestige! On every street and highway in the world, it would have to be a testimonial to the taste and standing of the person at its wheel. If this sounds like the description of the car that you, yourself, would like to own and drive, then come in and see us—soon. Perhaps the time has come for you to join the hundreds of thousands of motorists who have stopped wanting a Cadillac—and started enjoying one! We'd be happy to see you any time.
