

Top Advisers To Taft, Ike Trade Blasts

By The Associated Press

Among the Republicans, whose nominating convention opens in Chicago a week from Monday, verbal blows were traded Saturday by David S. Ingalls and Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, respective campaign managers for Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"Taft and his advisers are resorting to desperate last minute tricks to thwart the will of the rank and file of the Republican Party," Lodge said in a statement.

He said defeated national committeemen from Vermont and Rhode Island were seeking to seat proxies on the committee "in a barefaced bid to keep control" for Taft forces.

Ike Said Inconsistent

Ingalls contrasted the announcement that Eisenhower will move his headquarters to Chicago during the convention with the January statement by the general that he would not actively seek the GOP nomination. He said it "emphasizes the inconsistency of the general's whole demeanor in the 1952 presidential campaign."

Ingalls said delegates might ask "whether responsible leadership would flow from a candidate who can be led to such radical shifts in position in a period of only six months."

Eisenhower spent a quiet day in Denver Saturday, mapping strategy, while Taft was declaring in Washington that "the only thing anybody has got against me is the claim that I can't carry the election and there is no basis for that."

Says People Convinced

"It's the only effective argument left," Taft told a news conference. "There is no other argument. Whether you win depends on the kind of campaign you make and I think I have convinced most people I can make a winning campaign."

Taft came in for another attack from Averell Harriman, the mutual security administrator, also delivered before the Colorado Democratic convention. In a speech seeking support for his candidacy for the nomination, Harriman said:

"We can not and will not compromise with a man like Taft who for political reasons would jeopardize the security of the nation. . . . We can show Taft's policies are what Stalin would have us do; that Taft is Stalin's candidate."

Choose Delegates

After listening to Harriman and

Sen. Kefauver, Colorado Democrats got down to completing their slate of 18 delegates to the national party convention which opens in Chicago on July 21. Two had been named earlier.

State party rules require that the delegates go to the national convention uninstructed.

Colorado's selection leaves only 28 of the 1,230 Democratic delegates still to be picked. They are Virginia's.

The Associated Press tabulation, based on known and conceded alignments, gives Kefauver 251 1/2 to 135 1/2 for Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia and 99 1/2 for Harriman. Nomination requires 616.

The AP tabulation gives Taft 481 to 406 for Eisenhower, with 129 scattered among other aspirants and 190 uncommitted or in dispute.

Nomination requires 604 of the 1,206 delegate votes, all of whom have been named.

Colorado's 16 Democratic votes were wooed by two other candidates besides Kefauver and Harriman.

Russell Speaks

Russell spoke at Denver Friday night, making thinly-veiled attacks on Taft and Eisenhower who, he said, had been trying to sell the idea that there is a cheap path to national security.

Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma told the state convention that Eisenhower, if he were nominated, would be unable to put over his foreign policies because a "hard core of isolationists would be in control of Congress."

An Associated Press poll of the credentials committee which will weigh delegate disputes at the GOP convention indicated Taft supporters hold a slight edge thus far. Each state delegation names one member of the credentials committee, which will consider appeals from temporary seating decisions made by the national committee itself.

To Offer Contests

The AP poll showed that of the credentials group's members already chosen, Taft backers number 19 and Eisenhower backers 17, with two neutral. Four states where there are contests—Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and Texas—probably will present rival members. Six others are still to be chosen.

Texas supporters of Taft moved into Chicago Friday with a heavy filing cabinet which they said contains "millions of words" to prove they should be seated. They claim they were lawfully selected by the Republican organization in the state. Eisenhower backers say they were frozen out of the state convention and thus forced into a rump session which named its own slate of 38 delegates.

In Indianapolis, Taft backers contended efforts were being made to woo away Indiana delegates pledged to the Ohio Senator. Frederick E. Schortemeier, chairman of the Indiana Taft for President Committee, attributed

Dallas Couple Hurt in Crash at Middle Grove

An automobile accident Saturday morning near the Middle Grove School on the Salem-Silverton highway resulted in injuries to a Dallas man and his wife, an expectant mother.

Injured were Mr. and Mrs. Clifford E. Chastine, Dallas, Mrs. Chastine suffered severe lacerations about the face, a possible fractured right arm and a possible fractured left leg. Her husband, who was driving, suffered lacerations about the face, possible internal injuries and a laceration of the right arm above the elbow. Both were taken first to Salem General Hospital and then to the effort to "a small but desperate pressure group of Truman Republicans."

And in Springfield, Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, who has said repeatedly he is a candidate only for re-election, was asked once again if he could be drafted for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I have no comment on that subject—which is getting mighty tiresome," Stevenson said.

Dallas Hospital by Salem City Ambulance.

They were reported by Dallas Hospital officials as in various degrees of shock late Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Chastine was said to have incurred no complications.

Chastine said he was forced off the road and into a telephone pole when a car immediately in front of him stopped to make a left turn off the highway. Oncoming traffic prevented his driving around this auto.
