Civil Rights Plank Stalls Republicans

CHICAGO (AP)—Republican platform drafters ran smack into a tough dispute over their civil rights plank Monday and it threw them a day behind schedule.

Sen. Millikin of Colorado postponed until Wednesday a meeting of his 106-member Resolutions Committee to approve the platform. The policy statement is scheduled to be laid before the full GOP convention Wednesday night.

Millikin had planned to clear the document with his committee Tuesday, but Monday night he announced the switch in plans.

A foreign relations plank, which had shaped up in advance as one which might be the toughest nut for the platform writers to crack, won approval from Sen. Taft and Gen. Eisenhower.

The Eisenhower approval was unqualified, while that of Taft was qualified to the extent that he asked to be given the right to go over the final draft again, after editing and polishing was completed.

After criticizing the way the Roosevelt - Truman administrations conducted foreign affairs, the plank promises to take effective measures to curb Communist aggression and to offer "hope of

But platform drafters were having less success in getting agreement on the controversial civil rights issue.

Millikin declined to discuss the civil rights snag in any detail, but indicated he and a few others may toss aside two conflicting planks submitted him by a subcommittee and write a compromise which he would ask his full committee to approve.

Millikin reported that drafting committee has completed work on planks relating to labor, agriculture, veterans affairs, communism and corruption, taxation, and small business and economic affairs.

"F" said he was in prison in Mexico City for bankruptcy. He said he had a trunk-full of U. S. currency in a U. S. custom house.

He added that if the Salem resident would get in touch with him and help him out of his predicament he would give him a share of the loot.

"Nearly every summer these letters turn up," said Gragg. "Only last year they were signed 'W'."

Know your OREGON MILK CONTROL LAW

"You mean to tell me Milk Control holds prices up?"

Yes The dairy industry is under more complete regimentation in Oregon than in any other state. The main purpose of the Oregon Milk Control Law is to hold prices up. To do this it gives the Milk Administration authority to set prices at the farm, wholesale and retail levels. It is unlawful to sell milk below these set prices, but Milk Control sets no upper limit on prices. The effect of this regimentation on YOU is that well managed businesses that keep their costs down are not permitted to pass their savings on to the customer. Such regulations protect high-cost operators, and actually require low-cost operators to take a larger profit than is necessary.

In other words, you have no chance to get as low a price as the best merchandisers can afford to give you.

SHOP SAFEWAY... FOR FINE FOODS AT EVERYDAY LOW PRICES

The questions and answers below show some other ways in which Oregon Milk Control affects YOU.

- Q. Does Milk Control discourage competitive distribution of milk?
 - A. YES. No one can enter the milk business if the Administrator says such new competition might disturb existing distributors.
- Q. Does Milk Control allow you a lower price when you carry milk home yourself?
 - A. NO. You pay the higher costs of door-to-door delivery whether you use this service or not.
- Q. Does Milk Control limit the richness of milk?
 - A. YES. The richness (butterfat content) of milk sold in each price range is limited by the rulings of the Milk Administrator.
- Q. Does the Oregon Milk Control Law regulate sanitary conditions?
 - A. NO. It has absolutely nothing to do with the sanitation, health inspection, cleanliness, or the purity of milk.
- Q. Does Milk Control limit the supply of Grade A milk?
 - A. YES. To sell Grade A milk for your use a farmer must first get permission from the Administrator. If he gets permission (and many do not), he is given a quota. If he produces more he must often sell the surplus at a lower price for cheese or other factory uses.
