Hewitt Doubts Value of Party Conventions

"These conventions must never occur again," said Roy Hewitt, recently returned delegate to the Democratic national convention, in a speech Wednesday noon to members of the Hollywood Lions Club.

"The danger of conventions is not in sophomoric rah-rah and carnival procedure — the danger is that mob psychology can be used to stampede delegates into a bandwagon choice," said Hewitt, who advocates a national primary nominating election.

Referring to conventions as "the greatest show on earth," Hewitt said they gave the USSR press the chance to say that a president was elected by the group that could make the most noise.

"Let's not open ourselves to malicious criticism — let's select in a regular, orderly manner," said the Salem attorney.

The convention "show" said Hewitt, which is staged for the benefit of the radio, movies, television and the press, is the result of the psychological background of its delegates. A delegate, he said, wouldn't feel satisfied if he didn't find self expression at the convention. He expresses himself, said Hewitt, by talking.

In an average convention audience, he said 5 per cent listen to the speaker, 5 per cent are trying to hear someone else talk which leaves 90 per cent free to talk themselves and they do!

A delegate, said Hewitt, wants to feel superior. He wants to vote for the man who wins. After the third day, he said, everyone is watching for the bandwagon choice and he can cast his vote in the "right" direction.

The delegate also wants to be important. Hewitt cited the case of a South Carolina man who called for a poll of his delegates, not because it was necessary but because he had promised his wife she would see and hear him on television.

Speaking of the differences between the Republican and Democratic conventions, Hewitt said that, "Republicans viewed with alarm while the Democrats pointed with pride."

Savage Tells Of Formation of Foreign Policy

The State Department works in close liaison with the military establishment of major foreign problems of the U.S. these days, a Salem audience was told Wednesday by Carleton Savage, Marion County native who is a career man with the cabinet department.

Foreign policy, Savage told Salem Rotary Club at a Marion Hotel luncheon, shapes up from State Department study, correlation with the military and, in most cases, consideration by the National Security Council before it goes from the President to Congress for approval.

"Congress has often been very helpful by providing useful ideas in the development of U. S. foreign policy," he said.

Savage is on the 10-member policy planning staff which prepares the studies on all foreign policy matters bearing on future international issues.

Savage will be interviewed over KSLM at 9:45 p.m. Thursday. His father, J. C. Savage, and brother-in-law, Bryan Goodenough, were with him at the Rotary meeting yesterday.
