Don't Look Now ...

but ... we're serving notice, that when a man invents a milk can that fits into the can opener, we will be a regular customer. You see, we flatten out our tin cans, not having a garbage disposal unit to grind them up in.

Busman ... ever notice that when a newspaper man writes a travelogue he always manages to get his family into the pictures?

Nothing daunted ... Mother Nature, too, can go modern. Here she was sitting back for centuries, watching man bring forth wonderful new things. Now she steps out and changes the mirage in the mirage and everyone sees saucers. Why can't she throw out the obsolete camel caravan and oasis and substitute a modern piece of crockery without all the fuss?

Saturday noon ... we saw everyone going someplace. Young fathers with trailers full of household goods finding a new nest, older folks and youngsters headed for the beaches, tourists touring. We too are heading out west—for home, to stay for two nice air-filled weeks. We won't sit at a desk or punch a typewriter or smell a paper mill or think a thought. ... Maxine Buren
