Rotary Club Hears Talk on Fluoridation

The growth of fluoridation of public water supplies as a tooth decay preventive was depicted to Salem Rotary Club Wednesday by Dr. D. M. Witter of the State Board of Health.

He said interest began in 1908 with research on "Colorado brown stain" which is reportedly the only ill effect when the fluoride concentration is less than five parts to one million. The optimum use is one part to one million, which is being placed in water systems.

The fluoridation began seven years ago in Grand Rapids, Mich., and today more than three million persons drink water with fluorides, 356 cities with seven million persons have added fluorides and 324 cities with 11 million have approved the plan, said Witter.

Comparisons of the teeth of children in areas with and without fluorides were presented both in statistics and in slides. Witter said Oregon stands the fifth highest in the nation in number of dental caries.

He said placing in the public water system is the only way to get the benefits of fluoride to all persons in a community.

Nurseryman License Given To Jack Hurd

There was no actual intent to defraud or deceive purchasers "or a negligence so gross as to be equivalent to an actual intent to defraud," the State Agricultural Department held here Wednesday following a hearing on the application of Jack Hurd, Oswego, for renewal of his state nurseryman's license.

The license was renewed but Frank McKennon, writer of the order, made it plain that if the nurseryman law would permit a probationary period pending full and faithful compliance with the spirit of the law, such action would have been taken in the Hurd case. The law provides, McKennon said, the department must either grant or withhold nursery licenses of applicants whose activities have been brought into question.

McKennon is chief of the plant industry division of the State Agricultural Department.

Hurd operates two retail concerns known as Riverside Gardens and Lake Hopman in the Portland area.

Witnesses who appeared at the hearing for the state charged that Hurd failed to act promptly in filling orders, had been slow to answer complaints, and that some adjustments had been unsatisfactory.

Hurd contended his principal trouble with customers developed in connection with a large order of imported roses which had been advertised on a national scale and which turned out to be diseased stock.

Complaints reached the agricultural department over a period of two years, McKennon said.

OLD CEMETERY FOUND
KHARTOUM (AP) — A Christian cemetery dating about 800 A.D. was uncovered by accident in the Gezira district. A sand hill was being dug up to provide building material when a large collection of bones and pottery was uncovered.

Rodeo Participant Unloaded

Newly arrived and almost ready for this year's Oregon State Fair is one of the future participants in the rodeo who is being unloaded from his rolling box-car by Wimpy Jones and Joe Sullivan of Oklahoma and Claude Morris of Arizona. The rodeo is to staged each night at 8 o'clock in the stadium building.

Unfilled Job Openings Rise

Unfilled job openings increased last month but failed to catch up with the 2,129 reported a year ago, the State Unemployment Commission reported here Wednesday.

The gain of 305 up to 2,034 during July contrasted with a loss of 241 in the same period last year. Reports indicate that still more unfilled opportunities will be on file at local employment offices early in September. Demand for unskilled workers showed a drop but most other groups remained about the same as a year ago.

Agricultural placements made a good gain over July, 1951, with 34, 116 against 24,674. Industrial and trade referrals registered a decline from the previous month and year. Both job openings and placements reported by local offices have been somewhat lower during the 1951-Aug. 19, 1952, at State and Church Streets.

Smith is contesting the commission's authority to reduce his valuations.

After hearing two hours of arguments, the commission ordered a recess until Sept. 3, when the hearing will be resumed at the Multnomah County Courthouse in Portland. The delay was granted to enable witnesses for the company to come from the east to testify.

Tax Hearing On Reynolds Plea Opens

The Oregon Tax Commission opened a hearing Wednesday on the appeal by the Reynolds Aluminum Company for a $795,733 reduction in the assessed value of its property in Multnomah County.

The commission granted the company a $783,715 reduction from last year's assessed value, but Multnomah County Assessor Wiley Smith refused to put the reduction into effect. This matter now is before the State Supreme Court.

This year's assessed valuation of $7,333,085 was fixed by Smith. The company asked the figure be reduced to $6,537,352.

The reduction ordered by the commission last year was from $7,099,145 to $6,315,430.

Allen Hart, Portland attorney for the company, told the tax commission it should order the reduced valuation on the same bases as it did last year.

Multnomah Tax Rule Fails to Shift Burden Elsewhere

Reduction of 10 per cent in merchandise assessments in Multnomah County, ordered by the State Tax Commission on June 30, 1952, has not caused any shifting of the tax load to other classes of property there, the commission said Wednesday.

Robert Maclean, commission chairman, said he was advised by the Multnomah county assessor on August 26 that the latter had picked up an additional $11,000,000 in unreported merchandise.

"The 10 per cent reduction order," Maclean said, "involved only $12,000,000 so it is evident that the assessor will pick up enough additional value to more than offset the reduction given by the tax commission." Maclean emphasized that the order was a part of the equalization program.

It Means So Much - To So Many!

In all the history of commerce, it is doubtful whether another manufactured product has ever had such a hold on the affections of its owners as the Cadillac car.

There is a well-to-do gentleman in a southern state, for instance, who will permit no one to minister to his Cadillac except himself—other than for its mechanical needs. He washes it, polishes it, cleans it and drives it . . . himself.

There is a family in New York which has owned a long series of Cadillacs to which have been given the names of people—because they regard their cars as all but members of the household.

There is a professional man in the midwest who insists that his whole life changed for the better when he got his Cadillac.

These are but typical of innumerable instances of the deep regard in which Cadillac owners hold their cars. The loyalty and respect a Cadillac engenders are extraordinary indeed.

What can there be about a motor car to make it mean so much to so many?

The answer is not far to seek.

Because of its world-wide standing as one of the better things in life, it reflects credit upon its owner and indicates that he is a person of substance and good taste.

Because it performs so well and so dependably, it is conducive to his desire to travel and to see the world—an inspiring companion for his daily movements among his fellows.

Because it is beautiful and luxurious, it is a joy to own and a pleasure to contemplate.

Standing in his driveway, rolling down the streets of his favorite city, or parked at the entrance to a distinguished club or hotel—it is a credit to his judgment and a testimonial to his work.

No wonder he cherishes it, and thinks of it as all but a part of his own personality.

Don't you think that a car which can mean so much to so many could mean a great deal to you?

Better come in today—and talk it over.
