

Battle Shapes Over Probe of Wilsons Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A major battle shaped up Friday on whether the American Bar Association should permit a special committee to probe the background of a two-year-old Washington state slaying.

The issue, it was learned, will come before the association's board of governors at an executive session Monday.

The committee is known as the special committee on convictions and incarcerations of innocent persons.

The dispute over its activities stemmed from a request of Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington that the committee investigate the background of the convictions of Utah and Turman Wilson.

The brothers were convicted of the brutal kidnap-slaying of Jo Ann Dewey in March, 1930, and sentenced to death, but have been granted a 90-day reprieve.

Gov. Langlie asked the committee to study the case and advise him what action it would take if it were in his place.

Members of the committee include Harlan S. Don Carlos, Hartford, Conn., insurance company attorney, who is chairman; Eric Stanley Gardner, the mystery story writer; Cody Fowler, past president of the ABA; James V. Bennett, director of the federal bureau of prisons; and Henry Franklin, formerly of the FBI.

Opposition to an investigation of the Wilson case led to the possibility the question of whether the committee can continue its undercover investigative operations may be placed before the lawyers' convention next week.

Among the leading opponents to the committee's work is Frank Holman of Seattle, a former president of the ABA.

Bobcats are known to live within 25 miles of Manhattan Island.

Minister Masquerades As Woman to Swindle Couple of Life Savings

AUBURN, Calif. (AP)—A highly-respected minister Friday was accused of masquerading as a woman to rob a couple of their $23,000 life savings.

Dr. Carl R. Jackson, assistant superintendent of DeWitt State Hospital, quoted the jailed pastor, the Rev. William C. McCalmont of Roseville, as saying he had been blackmailed by an unnamed woman for three years.

The Rev. McCalmont, 35, was arrested on grand theft charges Thursday night on the grounds of his First Presbyterian Church at Roseville. Authorities said the pastor had been "traced" by what they called "sugar coated" bills that were part of the loot.

Jailed as a suspected accomplice was Harry Daniels, 42, Roseville yardmaster for the Southern Pacific railroad and captain of the Placer County sheriff's serial posse.

Bail for both men has been set at $5,000 each.

Dist. Atty. Al B. Broyer said the two men signed statements admitting they bilked Joseph and Amelia Lemos, operators of a fruit stand in nearby Loomis, of the sum last month. The couple signed the complaint.

Broyer told this story of the swindle: After the minister had delivered his Sunday sermon on Aug. 24, he went to the Lemos home dressed as a woman, wearing a wig. Daniels was with him in male attire.

The two told the couple they were federal agents. They told Mrs. Lemos they had learned she and her husband kept much money in the house and that the federal Treasury Department was going to investigate.

Then they advised the woman they would take the money and keep it out of the house so Treasury investigators wouldn't find it. Otherwise, Lemos could get ten years, they told the woman.

Mrs. Lemos accepted the offer on the assurance the money would be returned the following night.

Sheriff Charles Ward quoted the minister as saying he made three previous trips to Loomis "with intention of taking the money by violence" but had changed his mind.

Dr. Jackson said the pastor had told him, in a two-hour interview Friday, that three years ago a woman came into the pastor's study and that, on leaving, she had disarranged her clothes so as to indicate she had been molested.

As she left, the doctor quoted McCalmont, another woman was standing outside the door and since then that second woman has been extorting money from him.

Sheriff Ward appraised this testimony as "not completely explaining the minister's motives." Ward said the pastor also had considerable debts and has been known to give much money away for charity.

Ward called the minister for questioning Thursday after he learned the pastor deposited unusually large sums in three Roseville banks.

Some of the money, Ward explained, was identified as that of the Lemos through a chance occurrence.

Some time ago some of the bills became water-soaked, Ward said, and Mrs. Lemos dried them on a cookie sheet. Some sugar and flour particles stuck to them.

Banks had been alerted to look for such bills.

Ward said $22,000 has already been traced.

The sheriff said "a prominent Roseville woman" deposited $10,000 of the traced bills but, when questioned, she told the sheriff the minister gave it to her in repayment of a loan. Ward withheld her name "until this matter is cleared up."

Indian Meet Slated Here

Problems of Indians in various states will be discussed at a three day meeting of the executive committee of the governors' interstate Indian council Wednesday in Salem.

The council is composed of the governors or their representatives from all states which have a substantial Indian population. States to be represented at the Salem meeting include Washington, California, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, North Dakota, South Dakota, Arizona, New Mexico, Montana, Idaho, Colorado, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Oregon and Oklahoma.

Purpose of the council is to cooperate with all existing agencies in an effort to raise the social and economic conditions of the American Indians.

Oregon has been a member of the governors' council since its inception in 1948. Harvey Wright, State Department of Education, represents Oregon on the council. He also is chairman of Governor Douglas McKay's state committee on Indian affairs.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery Friday demoted Ellis N. Slack, who has been under Congressional fire in the investigation of St. Louis tax scandals, and hinted at further shakeups in the Justice Department.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery replied: "I think it is in the making." McGranery already has accepted the resignations of five top-level Justice Department officials since he took over the nation's No. 1 law enforcement job last May 27.

In addition, he has fired a U. S. district attorney and a U. S. marshal in the field.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

Crandall Chosen Head Of Traffic Engineers

F. B. Crandall, traffic engineer for the Oregon State Highway Department, was elected president of the American Association of Traffic Engineers it was announced Friday after his return from the Chicago convention held Sept. 7-11.

Crandall, first vice-president for the association for the past year, is the first president of the organization to be elected from the West.

He succeeds Nathan Cherniak of New York City, N. Y. Next meeting of the group is to be held in Buffalo, N. Y., in September, 1935.

He made the pledge to an applauding audience in an Albuquerque high school auditorium. School officials estimated the crowd at 5,200 persons, about 200 or more than the seating capacity.

The Democratic Presidential nominee, making the last scheduled campaign tour, arrived here by plane after addresses during the day at Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz.

Here in Albuquerque, Stevenson jabbed at Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, saying the Truman administration set up a federal workers loyalty program three years before McCarthy made his "shrill discovery of the Communist menace."

The Illinois governor also spoke out against Sen. William Jenner, Indiana Republican who has accused Gen. George C. Marshall of being "a traitor."

He criticized Eisenhower for endorsing Jenner for reelection.

HAMBURG, Pa. (AP)—Police mobilized Pennsylvania's biggest manhunt in many years Friday against three shotgun-toting jailbreakers who held a family captive in its home 19 hours, then sped 65 miles to rob a roadside diner and a little later raced past a police roadblock on a main highway to New York City.

Hundreds of state and local officers, and a swarm of FBI agents, joined in the search. They were cautioned by FBI circulars that the convicted bank robbers are "desperate and vicious."

The hunted men were carrying six shotguns and seven boxes of ammunition stolen from a West Reading, Pa., sporting goods store 24 hours after they fled the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg in the foggy predawn hours of Wednesday.

The fugitives are two brothers from Harlan County, Ky., Joseph Wayne Nolen, 26, and Ballard French Nolen, 22, along with slender, tattooed Elmer Schuer, 21, of Chicago.

The Nolen brothers were serving 25-year terms for a Cincinnati, O., bank robbery in 1950. Schuer, who has the word "lucky" tattooed over a horseshoe on his right arm and the motto "death or glory" over a dagger on his left arm, was serving 13 years for the 1950 robbery of a Chicago bank.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery Friday demoted Ellis N. Slack, who has been under Congressional fire in the investigation of St. Louis tax scandals, and hinted at further shakeups in the Justice Department.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

Gov. Stevenson Promises to Keep Reds Out

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson promised Friday night that as President he would order federal agencies to deal "sternly and mercilessly" with any Communist conspirators who try to betray this country.

He made the pledge to an applauding audience in an Albuquerque high school auditorium. School officials estimated the crowd at 5,200 persons, about 200 or more than the seating capacity.

The Democratic Presidential nominee, making the last scheduled campaign tour, arrived here by plane after addresses during the day at Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz.

Here in Albuquerque, Stevenson jabbed at Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, saying the Truman administration set up a federal workers loyalty program three years before McCarthy made his "shrill discovery of the Communist menace."

The Illinois governor also spoke out against Sen. William Jenner, Indiana Republican who has accused Gen. George C. Marshall of being "a traitor."

He criticized Eisenhower for endorsing Jenner for reelection.

HAMBURG, Pa. (AP)—Police mobilized Pennsylvania's biggest manhunt in many years Friday against three shotgun-toting jailbreakers who held a family captive in its home 19 hours, then sped 65 miles to rob a roadside diner and a little later raced past a police roadblock on a main highway to New York City.

Hundreds of state and local officers, and a swarm of FBI agents, joined in the search. They were cautioned by FBI circulars that the convicted bank robbers are "desperate and vicious."

The hunted men were carrying six shotguns and seven boxes of ammunition stolen from a West Reading, Pa., sporting goods store 24 hours after they fled the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg in the foggy predawn hours of Wednesday.

The fugitives are two brothers from Harlan County, Ky., Joseph Wayne Nolen, 26, and Ballard French Nolen, 22, along with slender, tattooed Elmer Schuer, 21, of Chicago.

The Nolen brothers were serving 25-year terms for a Cincinnati, O., bank robbery in 1950. Schuer, who has the word "lucky" tattooed over a horseshoe on his right arm and the motto "death or glory" over a dagger on his left arm, was serving 13 years for the 1950 robbery of a Chicago bank.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery Friday demoted Ellis N. Slack, who has been under Congressional fire in the investigation of St. Louis tax scandals, and hinted at further shakeups in the Justice Department.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

McGranery indicated other heads may roll in talking with newsmen immediately after the announcement Slack had been stripped of his assistant attorney general title and dropped to a lesser post in the department.

Slack, who scoffed at reports three days ago that he was going to be fired or demoted, was relieved of his post as chief of the department's tax division and returned to his old assignment as head of the division's appeals section.

As a replacement, McGranery reached into a House tax investigating committee — which has been looking into various phases of the Justice Department's handling of tax fraud cases—and appointed 35-year-old Charles S. Lyon as the new tax division chief.

Salem Obituaries

ZERNAN Elisabeth A. Zernan, at the residence, Salem Route 4, Sept. 10, at the age of 80. Survived by the widow, Mrs. Zernan; a daughter, Mrs. Elsie Wendland, Salem, and three grandchildren. Services at Rowell-Edwards Chapel at 1:30 p. m. Saturday, Sept. 13, with concluding service at Belcrest Memorial Park.

STEINKE In this city Sept. 11, Karl K. Steiner, late resident of Salem. Son of Mrs. Hazel K. Kelly of Salem. Services will be held Saturday, Sept. 13, at 10:30 a. m. at the W. T. Hagdon Chapel and Dr. Lloyd T. Anderson officiating. Interment at Belcrest Memorial Park.

DUDLEY Lester Knox Dudley, at the residence, Salem Route 4, Sept. 11. Survived by wife, Mabel Dudley of Salem; daughter, Mrs. Dorine Wenger of Salem; son, Dale of Peabody, Mass.; sisters, Mrs. Charles Springer, Miss Iris Dudley, both of Iowa; brothers, Henry of Minneapolis, Minn.; Myron and Corliss, both of Iowa; four grandchildren. Services will be held in Clough-Barwick Chapel at 1:30 p. m. Saturday, Sept. 13, with the Rev. Ernest Goulder officiating. Interment will be in City View Cemetery.

GRANE Bernet N. Grane, at a local hospital Sept. 13, at the age of 73. Survived by wife, Mrs. Grane.

ODSGARD Paul J. Odegard, at the residence, 1009 N. Commercial St., Sept. 12. Survived by wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Odegard of Salem; step-daughter, Miss Betty Odegard of Salem; step-sons, Leonard C. Odegard of Salem and Earl Odegard of Thief River Falls, Minn.; three sisters, Olea Nyloken, Marie Lien and Arzol Bergum, all of Norway; granddaughters, Mrs. Robert Kroppin of Salem, two great grandchildren, Margie Susanne and Melody Kroppin, both of Salem. Announcement of services later by the Virgil T. Golden Co.

Misses Mrs. Olga Reitan and Mrs. Anna Wolford, both of Salem. Announcement of services later by the Rowell-Edwards Co.

STERNHOUT Celina Sternhout, at a local hospital Sept. 12. Late resident of Cornelius. Survived by husband, Frank of Salem; son, Frank Jr. of Cananda