Minister Rules No Girl Can Become Angel

HURST GREEN, Eng. (AP)—There are Angels in Heaven, no doubt, the Rev. Charles Godfrey Bell said in his sermon Sunday. But, he added with a touch of sadness in his voice, no little girl can ever hope to be one.

His discourse on Angels was comment on a debate which has shaken this village of 700. It started some weeks ago when the vicar objected to the erection of a marble figure of an Angel over the grave of 9-year-old Kathleen Reese.

A Church of England official, the chancellor of the diocese, refused to permit a memorial of such design, and now citizens are signing a petition to the Archbishop of Canterbury, pleading with him to sustain little children in the faith that they may become Angels.

The vicar's point was that the figure of an Angel in a cemetery is inappropriate if it suggests a hope that humans, even the sweetest of little girls, might attain an angelic status.

"Nothing official has been said that denies the existence of Angels nor our belief in immortality," the vicar said. "What has been said is that neither we ourselves nor our children become Angels when we die. Angels are a separate order of creation. Man is made lower than the Angels. His destiny is not to become an Angel but to become one of the family of God."

Angels and men worship together, and often, particularly at Christmas time, they sing together, the Rev. Bell continued. Often, when a person is in difficulty, a Guardian Angel comes to his side, and may call to his assistance the Archangels Gabriel, Michael and the rest, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reese, the parents of little Kathleen who may have no Angel over her grave unless the archbishop overrules the vicar, were not satisfied with the clergyman's explanation.

"It is not a question of whether there are Angels," said Reese. "The point is that a little girl had been taught to believe in them, and did believe in them."

The parents said they had letters from sympathizers all over the country who believe Kathleen should have an Angel over her grave.

Miners Term New Contract 'Great Victory'

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Jubilant soft coal miners, fear of a budget-wrecking strike lifted from their minds, hailed their new contract, giving them a pay boost of $1.90 a day, as "a great victory," Sunday.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, reached agreement with Northern soft coal operators Saturday, halting a strike of 170,000 workers set for Monday.

Lewis likely will insist on, and get, the same terms from the rest of the industry for his 300,000 other members.

The agreement raises the Northern miners' pay to $18.25 a day. The operators also will pay 40 cents a ton into the miners' welfare fund, instead of 30 cents, as in the past.

From miners and their families in Western Pennsylvania came expressions of unalloyed happiness.

"Sure I'm happy," said 20-year-old Raymond Busch of Guys Run Road. "We're all happy. Who wouldn't be? It was a grand victory for John L."

Ben Marchese, 25, a motorman in the Wheeling Steel Company's 700-man Harmar pit at Harmerville, Pa., declared: "There couldn't be better news for me. My wife is expecting her first baby in January."

They were saying about the same thing that John A. Busarello, director of UMW Dist. 16 at Pittsburgh, put more formally: "It is the greatest victory ever achieved by any labor leader in America for the benefit of the United Mine Workers and the coal companies as well."

SPY CHARGES LEVELLED LONDON (AP)—Forty Bulgarian Roman Catholics, including 28 priests, have been accused by the Communist government in Sofia of planning a coup d'etat and spying for the Vatican and France, the Moscow radio said early Monday.

The smallest star is believed to be about 2,500 miles in diameter, says the National Geographic Society.

Protestant Church Closed Again in Italy

ROME (AP)—Police blocked all entrances to the American Church of Christ building Sunday for the second straight Sunday and prevented the holding of religious services.

In defiance, Cline R. Paden of Brownfield, Tex., rounded up four taxis and two private automobiles and took about 30 members of the church to San Cesario, a small village about 20 miles southeast of Rome. There services were held in a small Church of Christ without interference.

The churches are required to obtain government recognition under laws passed during Mussolini's fascist regime.

Police also have stopped services held by two other Protestant groups, the Assembly of God and Pentecostal Church.

The Italian government, through a police officer, Dr. Roberto Papi, has said, "there is no issue whatsoever of religious liberty. These churches have not complied with Italian law requiring recognition and permission to operate. Other cults are operating without interference."

Before Paden led his group to San Cesario he said police had barred the entrances to his Rome church building so effectively that "no one can come in, not even into my quarters."

Gladiator Show Proves Flop

ROME (AP)—Gladiators fought again in the Colosseum Saturday night but the show flopped.

Less than 6,000 persons, mostly tourists, turned out to see a highly publicized pageant: "The Colosseum through the centuries."

After the first hour only a handful remained. In ancient days, 70,000 Romans used to watch the bloody circuses.

One Roman critic summed up the revival: "Something for a rural fair."

Ethel Barrymore Declines Comment On Tax Settlement

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actress Ethel Barrymore declined to comment on the Internal Revenue Bureau's disclosure she settled an income tax claim of $98,660 for $7,500 back in 1937.

Miss Barrymore did make this observation to a newsman, however: "I think it's foul of the papers to print such stories. The press must be hard up for news if it must go back to 1937. Why don't they go after Sen. Nixon?"

Senate 'Rich Man's Club,' Morse Warns

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Morse (R-Ore.) said Sunday night something has got to be done in this country "about political financing" because "too many politicians are not free men."

Appearing on a television interview CBS "Man of the Week," Morse indicated he was not talking about Sen. Richard Nixon of California, the Republican vice-presidential nominee whose trustee fund has raised a furor in the current campaign.

"It is too early to jump to a conclusion until we have all the facts in the case," Morse said, adding that Nixon did nothing dishonest although he may have made a personal mistake.

Morse said the Senate is "rapidly becoming a rich man's club" and that the only way he himself broke even was to make from $800 to $700 a month on lectures. The Oregon Senator added he felt it an obligation not to take advantage of his position and that he limited his lectures to only enough to keep out of the red.

The Nixon situation, Morse said, serves notice on all politicians that they must account to the public every year the amount and source of all their income whether they consider it an invasion of their privacy or not.

Says No Proof Given Asked if the dispute robbed the Republican campaign of the corruption-in-government issue, Morse said he didn't think so because "I don't think there's been any proof that Nixon's been corrupt."

Morse, who recently said he would not campaign for the Republican ticket after Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) threw in actively with the GOP nominee, Dwight D. Eisenhower, predicted a realignment of the Democratic and Republican parties.

This shift has been going on since the Bull Moose movement of 1912 and "obviously we cannot continue with two parties split right down the middle," Morse said.

Morse said he planned to vote for Eisenhower as of now but was watching the campaign "very carefully" and would vote for "the candidate I think will serve my country best."

The continuity of the British monarchy has only been broken once in over 1,000 years.

Prisoners Learn More From Lecture When Told by 'Champ'

CHICAGO (AP)—Prisoners jammed into a basement room in the Cook County (Chicago) jail Sunday.

They were gathered—several hundred of them—for the usual weekly lecture on how to stay out of trouble when they are freed. But this one was different. Nobody yawned. None of the men fidgeted. There was no scraping of shoes on the floor.

The silence remained unbroken until 30 seconds after the talk was finished. Then the "boys," overcoming their uncertainty about what they should do under the unusual circumstances suddenly let loose with cheers and applause.

Shake "Champ's" Hand While guards watched nervously, prisoners rushed forward to shake hands with the speaker—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world.

Dempsey harked back to Sept. 22, 1927, when he lost his attempt to regain the cherished title from Gene Tunney. The old champ said: "Twenty-five years ago I thought I had received a tough break. It seemed a tough break at the time, but it turned out to be the greatest single thing that ever happened to me."

Mentions Long Count "I'm referring to the long-count decision in my fight with Tunney at Soldier Field. I made the mistake of not walking to a neutral corner after Tunney was knocked down. Everybody blamed the referee, but it was my fault. "From that day on, everybody has been for me. So, you see, if a break goes against you, keep your head because things will straighten themselves out. Make the best of your situation here and some day the crowd will be with you, too."
