Lie Detector

Trips Up Killer In Seattle Case

SEATTLE (AP)—Police checked off as solved Sunday the 1944 slaying of a pretty Seattle girl, and said she paid with her life for finding a neighbor boy prowling through her home.

Police Chief J. E. Lawrence said a full confession to the puzzling murder of 18-year-old Frances Radecop, honor high school graduate, was signed late Saturday by Carl E. Jones, 23.

Jones, a truck driver, re-enacted the slaying Saturday in the Radecop home in the presence of several detectives, and said he was "glad it was over" after being haunted for eight years by the knowledge of the girl's death.

He said the girl recognized him when she discovered him ransacking a bedroom, and that in his fear she would "tell on me" he choked her and beat her over the head with a baseball bat. Jones said she pleaded with him to spare her life.

The slain girl's father, A. R. Radecop, went up to the young man Sunday before he entered the house and said "Carl, I'm sorry. I can't make it up to you in any way that I can."

Jones, then a boy of 15, lived only a few doors from the Radecops at the time of the killing.

Prosecutor Charles M. Carroll said Sunday night he will charge Jones either with first or second degree murder.

Jones' arrest was described by Lawrence as due to a lucky break and "the best police work I've ever seen."

Lawrence said Jones had been one of the chief suspects since a woman employer tipped detectives he acted strangely when he saw a newspaper story two years ago pertaining to the then unsolved murder.

Detectives waited patiently for a chance to question him while using a "lie detector." Their opportunity came when Jones was brought in Saturday in connection with the recent theft of an outboard motor.

A few casual queries about the Radecop case caused a violent reaction on the "lie detector." Jones then was grilled intensively, Lawrence said, and finally blurted out a confession. He signed a full statement later.

Clark Rejects Truce Talks On Red Terms

TOKYO (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark, supreme U.N. commander, Monday refused to resume suspended Korean armistice negotiations on terms laid down by the Communists.

In a message to the top Red commanders he said the U. N. command will never force unwilling Red prisoners to return to Communist territory, nor will it negotiate further on any proposal to do so.

Prisoner of war exchange deadlocked the Korean armistice talks many months. The U. N. Command on Oct. 8 indefinitely recessed the talks at Panmunjon, saying it would be willing to resume the meetings when the Reds either accepted one of three U. N. plans for prisoner exchange or presented an acceptable one of their own.

Clark told Kim Il Sung and Peng Teh-Huai, commanders of the North Korean and Chinese Red forces, respectively, that a proposal they submitted last Thursday "does not constitute a valid basis for the resumption of delegation meetings."

Clark added that the U. N. Command is "ready and willing" to resume the talks as soon as the Reds show willingness to negotiate in good faith.

But he told the Red bosses "the underlying nature of your proposal last Thursday is clearly revealed in your demands that all war prisoners be delivered to and received by your side."

"This is nothing more than a demand that the United Nations Command turn over to your custody by force thousands of prisoners of war who have stated positively that they would violently resist repatriation to your side."

"You further glibly propose that after the United Nations Command has forced unwilling prisoners into your hands you would then carry out a classification as to nationalities and area of residence and repatriate prisoners in accordance with this classification."

"As far back as July you proposed such a classification, knowing full well that irrespective of nationality many prisoners were determined not to go back to your side."

"The United Nations command exposed the falseness of this device of yours months ago."

"Thus, when all is said and done, your so-called new proposal is nothing more than the same old package containing your worn demand that the United Nations Command give unwilling prisoners back into your custody."

Anderson Arrives In New York to Lead Adlai Group

Anderson said formal announcements to his appointment to head the new committee will be made Monday.

At Idlewild Airport, where he arrived from Portland, Anderson told newsmen that he was impressed by Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic candidate for the presidency, and had become "quite distressed" over the trend of the campaign of his original choice, Republican Candidate Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Aerial Search Over Cascades

KLAMATH FALLS (AP)—Air Force and civilian pilots flew over the mountainous region north of here Sunday searching for a missing plane and its two occupants.

Everett Logan, 34, of Yakima was the pilot of the missing plane. His 19-year-old wife, Pat, was believed to be a passenger.

They were en route from Yakima to Medford Saturday to visit relatives. They had stopped at Redmond, Ore., for oil. Logan had a five hour supply of gasoline. When that time expired early Saturday afternoon the CAA alerted the Klamath Air Search and Rescue Unit.

A B-17 from McChord Field arrived here Sunday morning to lead the search. Capt. Ray Costello is in charge. Some 20 private planes from Klamath Falls, Redmond and Medford also have joined the search.

2 Injured as Car Topples

WOODBURN—Two Willamette Valley men were injured Sunday night when their car overturned three miles east of here on the Woodburn-Mt. Angel highway.

Taken to Salem General Hospital were the driver, William Coe, Forest Grove, and his passenger, Grover Barker, Gaston. Coe suffered a crushed chest and Barker a broken leg and lacerations about the head when their westbound auto failed to negotiate a turn in the road.

Investigating state police said it appeared that the cause of the accident was excessive speed. No citations were issued. Hospital authorities Sunday night said their conditions were "good."

Test-Grading Machines Topic For Convention

Grading of school examinations by machine will be studied by elementary school principals of many Oregon cities in Salem today for their annual convention.

How far grade schools could go to use this modern development of school tests will be discussed as the Oregon Elementary School Principals Association hears a report from Lynn Johnson, a Portland principal, on University of Oregon's recommended school testing bureau for that purpose.

Johnson told members of the association board, in session Sunday night at the Senator Hotel, that some public schools are now using tests suitable for machine grading, in experimental stages with U of O and with Oregon State College. Such tests may be standard tests or may be drawn up by the local school, so long as the paper and the pencils used are of the type which can be "machine-graded," he said.

Miss Mathilda Gilles, principal of Salem's Richmond School and president of the state association, conducted the Sunday night board meeting as principals began arriving for the two-day general meeting.

Association meetings will be held in First Christian Church, beginning at 9 a.m. today. Dr. Harold Spears, assistant superintendent of San Francisco public schools, top convention speaker, will address the opening session, after greetings by Rex Putnam, state superintendent of public instruction, music by Coralie Doughton of Willamette University and invocation by the Rev. Dudley Strain.

The supervisory functions of elementary principals will be stressed in speeches and discussion groups throughout the convention.

5 Teen-Agers Involved in Liquor Charge

Gov. McKay Heads List of GOP Leaders Rebuking Sen. Morse

Republican hierarchy and various Salem citizenry, for the most part, took a "dim view" Sunday on the recent decision by Sen. Wayne Morse to support Democrat Gov. Adlai Stevenson for president.

In telephone interviews Sunday they were asked their reaction to the senator's decision, where they thought he stood now in the Republican party and what his future in the party might be.

Gov. Douglas McKay said, "Sen. Morse will be a lonely man when he returns to Oregon. I personally was shocked at his decision to desert Gen. Eisenhower after he once pledged him his support, but I felt it was going to happen after his (Morse's) expression of dislike over the party selecting Richard Nixon as the vice-presidential candidate. Sen. Morse could never be a true Republican again."

State Representative Mark O. Hatfield explained, "I have never been so completely disappointed about any man as I have about Sen. Morse. Both the officers and the rank and file of the Republican party have lost confidence in him. I felt Morse was wavering, but I didn't think he'd take such a drastic step."

Wilson Hunt, chairman of the Marion County Central Committee, said he felt Sen. Morse has been "consistent in being inconsistent." "This latest move by the Senator is something you'd expect him to do, but I really don't think it will change many votes. For my part, the whole thing should be ignored."

Contrairely, Donald Scarborough, editor of the Willamette Collegian, who recently came out in favor of Gov. Stevenson, said he thought Morse's action "pointed out the fact that there are an increasing number of people who are coming to realize Eisenhower isn't the intelligent, free-acting candidate that everyone, including Morse, had once expected. Morse has probably lost prestige in the eyes of a lot of voters who profess that politicians must go along with the party or get out."

A. M. Church said "The Senator's decision suits me all right. In my way of thinking principle is more important than the party. Being a Republican doesn't mean losing one's right of independent thought."

LET'S GET 2 FACTS STRAIGHT

- 1 The out-of-state grocery chain, through the Affiliated Milk Committee, promises "rich milk at lower prices." THE FACT is that the milk they sell in uncontrolled markets is generally neither richer nor cheaper than ours! They say it but they don't do it!
- 2 They also infer that Oregon's dairy farmers want the so-called "protection" of their tricky price control initiative. THE FACT IS—over 80% of Oregon's grade "A" dairy farmers are fighting to keep our present FAIR law and protect your steady supply of healthy milk.
