

Wife of Young Pakistan Ambassador Interested

By JANE EADS
 WASHINGTON (AP)—Begum Mohammed Ali, wife of the Pakistan ambassador, helps him to represent one of the newest nations and one of the oldest cultures in the world.
 Typifying this, she takes an avid interest in modern doings, especially sports, but at the same time clings to the long scarf-draped sari, the ancient native costume of the land from which she comes.
 This slight, graceful, intelligent woman from the East joined her husband and sons, Hammad, 14, and Hamda, 12, last summer in a series of golf lessons on a public course and now is taking up bowling. The distinguished couple had learned something of the latter game in Canada, where for two years the ambassador had served as Pakistan's first high commissioner. They also took up ballroom dancing.
 "We all like being here," Begum Ali told me over a cup of tea in the beautiful gold damask salon of the embassy. Since their arrival last February they have visited many parts of the U. S. Learn While Traveling
 "The boys went with us because we believe travel itself is an education," she added. "By traveling we are also learning many things which will help in the development of our own country. Our country is new and backward. When we were partitioned from India the factories we had went to India. Things are growing, like jute and for music in her, but her chief interest is in painting. She works with water colors mainly, but has studied oils. She does landscapes and still life. "I once tried to do a portrait of my son Hammad from a photograph, but my teacher told me I was too ambitious," she said. "You can paint a tree not too straight, but a bent nose, no."

Wears Sari
 Begum Ali wore a sari of sheer white chiffon, exquisitely printed in a black border, draped about her slight figure. Underneath she wore a light grey sweater. She said she imported most of the saris from Paris and is always dreaming of a new one.
 "I'm so used to saris I can't seem to part with them," she said.

EASY DOES IT
 When washing walls or ceilings, you can save yourself having water run down your arms merely by tying a cloth around your wrist.
DFY FLAT
 Rag rugs will hold their shape better after washing if you put them on a flat surface to dry instead of hanging them on a line.
JUST ENOUGH
 A nine or ten-inch pie plate will yield six or more servings; to serve four generously or five adequately, use an eight-inch pie plate.

Cranberry-Orange rolls are holiday food but also good family food. Fresh cranberries go on top of rolls made from a package of mix, or into a batch of baking powder bread.

Fruity Roll Is Festive . . .

Cranberries, which have made their debut in the past few years as fine fruit for all through the autumn and winter season, here appear as a fruity topping for home made rolls. They may be made with your own recipe for yeast rolls or this quicker-mixing way:
CRANBERRY-ORANGE ROLLS
 (Makes about 18 Rolls)
 1 package prepared hot roll mix
 2 tablespoons melted margarine
 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
 3/4 cup water
 1/2 cup sugar
 1 cup fresh cranberries
 1 cup confectioner's sugar
 4 tablespoons water
 3/4 teaspoon lemon extract
 Prepare hot roll mix according to package directions. When ready to shape, roll and cut into 3-inch rounds. Spread with melted margarine. Mix grated orange rind and 3 tablespoons sugar; sprinkle over melted margarine. To shape into Parker House rolls, fold top half of roll over bottom half. Place in greased 12x9-inch pan. Let rise until double in bulk. Bake according to package directions. Meanwhile, boil water and sugar together 5 minutes. Add cranberries and boil without stirring 5 minutes longer or until cranberries are candied. Drain thoroughly; place cranberries on paper toweling to absorb excess moisture. Blend confectioner's sugar, water and extract to smooth paste. After rolls are baked, remove from pan. Ice while still warm. Top with candied cranberries.

 Here's another bread using cranberries:
CRANBERRY QUICK BREAD
 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
 1 teaspoon salt

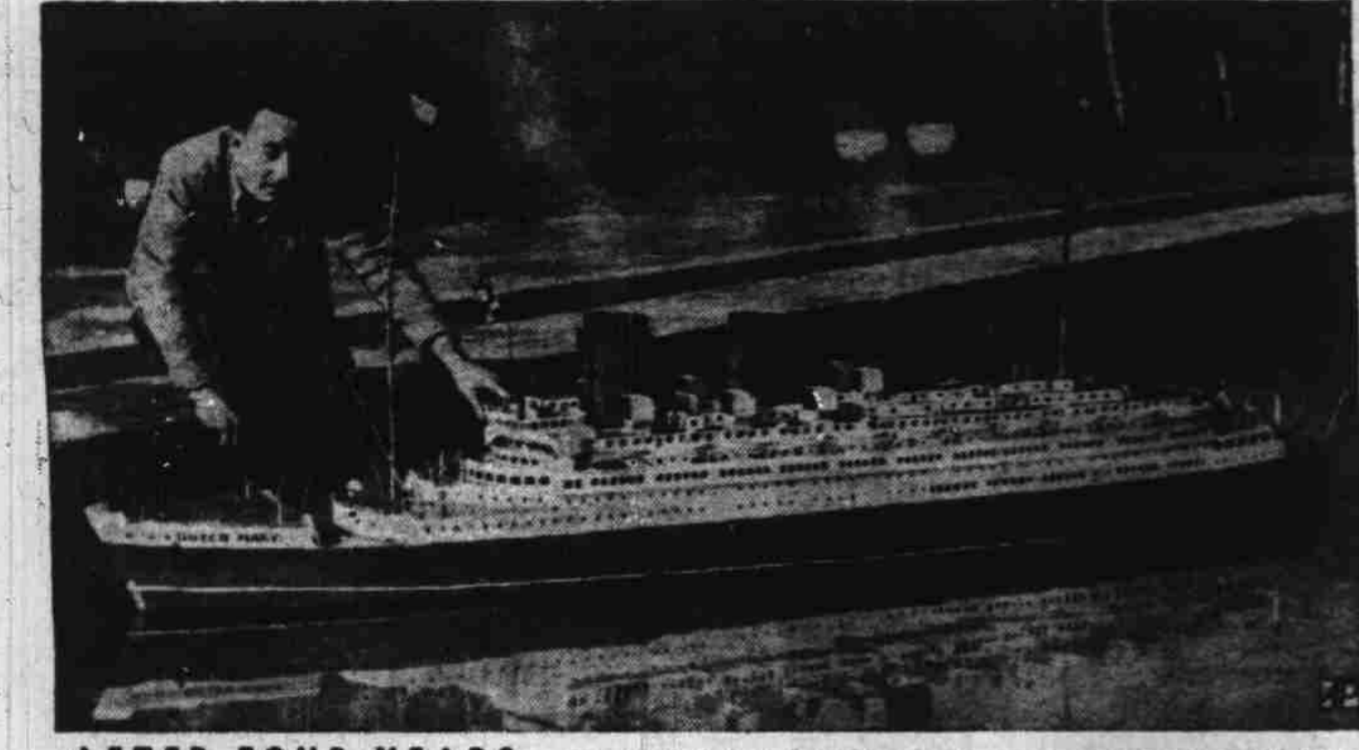

1 teaspoon baking powder
 1 teaspoon baking soda
 1 cup sugar
 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 1/2 teaspoon allspice
 1/2 teaspoon clove
 1 cup whole wheat flour
 1 egg
 1 cup milk
 2 tablespoons melted shortening
 1 cup fresh ground cranberries
 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
 3/4 cup dried ground apricots
 Sift together first eight ingredients. Add whole wheat flour. Combine egg, milk and shortening; add to dry ingredients mixing thoroughly. Stir in cranberries, nuts and apricots; pour into well-greased loaf pan lined with wax paper (9x4x3). Bake in moderate oven 350 degrees about one hour and ten minutes, or until done. Makes one loaf.

Meals Biggest Problem for Farm Women

Statesman News Service
HAZEL GREEN—What is the most perplexing problem confronting farm women today? It is how to prepare quick, eye-catching meals that are also nutritious, according to a survey conducted by Mrs. Clarence Zelnick at the meeting of the Hazel Green Home Extension unit to determine the program for next year.
 Several were interested in learning how to make the best use of the home freezer. Others were interested in the care of synthetic fabrics and use of other new products, including Jergens. Several expressed a desire to learn about refitting and redecorating furniture. Other problems ranged from how to make money go farther at the dinner table to making family entertainments seem a pleasure instead of a duty.
 All home extension units are making similar surveys and next year's program will be made up from the topics most in demand.
