It is also reported that a higher percentage of adults in Marion County were examined by portable tuberculosis X-ray units than all other Oregon counties except one. Over 69 per cent of Marion County adults were so examined for tuberculosis.

City Council To Face Light Agenda Monday

Scheduled business appears light for Salem City Council at its Christmas week meeting Monday night, but flareups may occur over the long-pending fire truck bids and tie vote for Ward 3 alderman.

City Attorney Chris J. Kowitz is slated to report again on the tie between incumbent Claud Jorgensen and Clayton Jones, who were candidates in November for the Ward 3 seat. Kowitz had ruled that with no legal means of breaking the tie, the incumbent could keep the office.

Jones made a formal bid for the office to the Council at its last meeting. This was referred to the attorney. Jones said Saturday he would consult his own attorney and would appear at the meeting Monday in City Hall.

Council members have so far shown little disposition to initiate any settlement of the tie vote beyond accepting legal advice that Jorgensen apparently is entitled to keep the office.

The fire truck bids are in the hands of a special committee of aldermen. This group had earlier recommended that specifications be redefined and new bids called for, which was done. Low bidder both times was the maker of Seagraves fire truck equipment, which has been purchased by the city two or three times in recent years.

In legislation ready for final action there is one zone change, so far uncontested. This would permit establishment of a drive-in restaurant on Center Street across from Capitol Shopping Center.

Marines Have Homecoming With Parents

Two Marine sergeants are having a Christmas homecoming reunion with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lewis, 890 N. Lancaster Dr.

Sgt. Rolland Collins, one of the sons, is home to stay, having just completed a three-year tour in the Marines, including 11 months' combat in Korea and Japan with 1st Marine Air Wing and more recently nine months in Korea. He is a Salem High School 1949 graduate.

For Sgt. Harold Lewis, 20, the other son, Christmas also is homecoming in two ways. He's here for holiday leave and he's also here to go on duty Dec. 28 at the Navy and Marine Armory. He applied for transfer to the West Coast and was surprised to receive the Salem assignment. His hitch will be over at the end of February.

Lewis went into the Marines before graduation from Salem High, and has completed requirements for graduation in the service.

Lewis was in the 1st Marine Division and during his combat service in Korea was able to meet his brother once, at Kempo Air Base.

Record Birth Rate in County Almost Certain

An almost certain new annual birth record for Marion County, the second in three years, was indicated Saturday by the county health department.

Births reported through Dec. 15 totaled 2,618, only 47 under the year's record of 2,665 set in 1950. At the rate of births so far in December has averaged seven per day, which, if maintained, will put the total past the 2,700 live births mark this year.

Through November, the boy-girl ratio of births was holding to the usual trend, with totals of 1,302 to 1,211.

The busiest day reported recently was Dec. 3, when 14 babies arrived in the county, according to reports to the health department.

As usual births are ahead of deaths by a 2 to 1 ratio. While births during the past five years have shown a gain of more than 30 per cent over the previous five-year period, deaths have been barely equal.

From 1943 through 1947, deaths totaled 4,010, compared to 4,150 from 1948 through Dec. 15, 1952. Births rose from 9,605 to 12,716 in comparable periods.
