Singletons Cut Sheep Crop Below Average

By LILLIE L. MADSEN
Farm Editor, The Statesman

With singletons instead of twins and triplets appearing in sheep pastures this year, sheepmen are reporting that there may be a smaller crop of sheep than usual — aside from the fact there the ewe numbers are far below the recent 10-year average.

While lambing is just getting well underway, growers are saying that to date the percentage of more than one lamb to a ewe is below average. Whether or not this situation will improve and more twins appear in flocks, as the season advances, is only a guess so far.

Sheep and lamb prices recently, however, have shown a stronger price trend, although farm prices of lambs and wool are still well below parity values.

Sheep and lamb prices throughout 1952 worked to lower levels. The largest drop in prices occurred during the latter half of 1952, the low point being reached at most markets during the fore part of December.

Nationally, the average farm price of lambs during December was the lowest of any time for that month since 1946. Lamb prices also during December, were the lowest for any month since January, 1947.

Prices received at the farm on a national basis during December, were a little over $9 less than during the same month in 1951. Sheep prices reached the low point a little earlier than lamb prices, and a strong price trend developed sooner. The December farm price for sheep was slightly higher than the low point reached during November. Sheep prices, however, during December were the lowest for that month since 1946, a price received at the farm level for that nation as a whole for sheep during December were around $6.50 less than during the same month in 1951.

While not many bred ewes were offered for sale in the valley during December this year, there were more during the past two years. Two years ago almost any bred ewe—even the so called old "gummer"—was bringing from $35 to $60 a head. This year good yearlings with a percentage bred, have been obtainable for prices and a strong price trend and bred old ewes, still in good condition, were selling for $10.

A few grade flocks were sold at higher prices, chiefly to newer farmers who had not yet heard that sheep prices were "no longer so good."

Liquor Control Board Income At New High

Net income from all operations of the Oregon Liquor Control Commission during the last fiscal year reached $12,135,409 — highest yearly net income in the commission's history and a 9.29 per cent increase over the previous year's operations. But 53 fewer cases of liquor were sold than during the previous 12-month period. License and privilege tax collections also declined slightly, according to the commission's annual report. Commission statistics attribute the income rise to greater sales revenue after the federal tax on distilled spirits was increased from $9.00 to $10.50 per 100-proof gallon Nov. 1, 1951. Commission markup is taken on total cost of goods. There were 283 fewer licenses issued during the year. Privilege taxes collected from manufacturers and importing distributors of malt beverages and light wines were $938.98 less than collected during the previous year, indicating no apparent increase in consumption of such beverages, according to the commission.

The new 40-bed nursing home is to be built on land adjacent to the present nursing home on South Water Street, but to the rear of the present structure and will extend back to within 20 feet of the creek.

William Healy, assistant secretary of state, has been designated to lead a campaign for funds among state officials and employees, beginning Monday. Estimated cost of the jaunt is $15,000.

A previous suggestion that groups from several cities in the state send mounted representatives to the parade was dispelled recently when the Oregon Mounted Posse Association learned from parade organizers in Washington that such a plan would make the parade too long.

The blueprints were approved recently by the state fire marshal and are now in the hands of the state nursing board for recommendations.

Fire School Starts Today at East Station

A regional fire school, sponsored by five agencies of the state, will be conducted for Salem area firemen today through Saturday at the East Station department, 17th and State Streets. Fire Chief Ellsworth Smith explained that the school is conducted to provide learning techniques for smaller departments so that they in turn can take this knowledge back to their own localities. The school is sponsored jointly by the Oregon Fire Chiefs, the Department of Vocational Education, State Fire Marshal's Department, League of Oregon Cities and the State Association of Fire Fighters.

It was announced Saturday that the Salem fire department received national recognition this week for its control of the Nov. 1 fire at the Hrubetz and Bushnell steel fabricating plant. Recognition was made in "Fire News," official publication of the National Fire Protection Association, in a list of important fires throughout the nation. The department was commended for showing outstanding planning gained from "the benefit of pre-planned fire fighting strategy."

Nursing Home in Silverton Planned

SILVERTON—Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Patterson are awaiting approval of the plans and blueprints of their new nursing home by the Oregon state board of nursing which is expected soon. The contract will then be let out on bids. The blueprints were approved recently by the state fire marshal and are now in the hands of the state nursing board for recommendations.

Payments to Jobless Top UCC Income

Payments to unemployed workers during the past four years topped employers' taxes by more than $15,000,000 or about 30 per cent, State Unemployment Compensation Commission tabulations showed here. Although final figures are not yet available, unemployment assessments for the 1949-52 period are estimated at slightly over $50,000,000, while payments to the unemployed were about $65,500,000. Nearly $7,000,000 of the difference was made up by interest earnings on the benefit trust fund. Comparison of the tax-benefit ratio by main industries for the 1949-52 period reflects trend established since the war. Payments to manufacturing employes have exceeded tax contributions in nearly every line, but wholesale, finance and realty, transportation and utility firms have paid in more than enough to meet compensation allowed to their former employes. Retail trade benefits have exceeded taxes by a small margin, while service and construction lines have a somewhat larger unfavorable balance. Food processing leads with 197 per cent of its taxes figured as benefits while lumber and logging payments are almost exactly 150 per cent of their assessments.
