PORTLAND (U) — Eight Sabre-jet fighter planes left Portland Monday for Washington, D. C., where they will take part in the inauguration ceremony Jan. 20. They will be part of the 450 planes in the sky over Washington that day. The jets are from the 357th fighter-interceptor squadron at Portland. They are representing Air Force installations in the Pacific Northwest.

5 Oil Firms Reject Truman Ultimatum In Criminal Cases

WASHINGTON (U) — President Truman met a stormy refusal Monday when he offered to drop the government's criminal case against five giant American oil companies and substitute a civil anti-trust suit against them.

Arthur Dean, counsel for the Standard Oil of New Jersey, called it outrageous blackmail. Lawyers for the other companies agreed.

As the next step in the fast-moving drama, the Justice Department promptly announced it would accept the terms, the government will go ahead with the criminal action based on allegations that the companies have set up a worldwide price-fixing monopoly.

Truman had conditioned his offer by stipulating that in return for calling off a federal grand jury investigation of criminal anti-trust charges, the oil companies would have to agree to produce their records as a basis for a civil suit.

Highly volatile international interests, coupled with fears that the American firms might lose their multi-million dollar foreign oil rights to Soviet Russia were reported to have motivated the President's proposal.

The White House announced the plan at noon. Two hours later, 35 attorneys for the oil companies went to Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery's office, at his request to learn the terms as laid down on direct instructions from the President.

After an hour and 20 minutes with McGranery, the attorneys stormed out of the office and let loose a roar of protest.

Dean told newsmen that as far as Standard Oil of New Jersey is concerned, the President's terms were completely unacceptable.

"Dean is talking for all of us," said Lowell Wadman, attorney for the Arabian-American Oil Company.

"Cold Turkey" Dean quoted McGranery as saying the President's offer was "cold turkey" — i. e., final.

"The attorney general was discourteous and insulting," Dean said.

"In effect, he asked us all to sign a blank check for the government."

government to go ahead with a civil suit — a suit which the government would have the right to amend any time during the 90 days after the final document is signed by the prosecution.

"He gave us until 11 a. m. tomorrow to go along with this," Dean said. McGranery stated that the most insulting I have ever heard during 20 years at the J.

Shortly after the oil company lawyers angrily left the Justice Dept. sent word to newsmen that he had been informed what Dean "had to say" about him and that he had no comment.

Sterrett Lists Goals of Salem Industry Drive

Salem's industrial future looks good, but "we must go out and sell our potentialities," Chester K. Sterrett, manager of the Portland Chamber of Commerce Industries department, told Salem Chamber of Commerce members Monday noon in the Senator Hotel.

"The future is what we make it," Sterrett said, and warned against overlooking existing industries in efforts to "go all out" for new firms.

Sterrett based his talk on the six basic objectives of the newly-created Industrial Council of the Salem chamber.

1.—Encourage existing industry. Sterrett said some cities neglect old industries in going after new ones. He pointed out that one man on the Portland Chamber does nothing but keep in contact with existing companies and aid in their development.

2.—Seek new industries and inter-related industries. Salem should try to get branch factories of nationally-known firms to locate here, Sterrett said, but cautioned against those which "can't pay their own way."

3.—Develop industries through development of natural resources. Lumber processing is the number one industry in the state, Sterrett noted, but too much lumber is shipped out "raw."

More lumber products should be manufactured in the state, he said, and gave as examples stock screen doors or a complete line of wood office furniture.

About 40 per cent of the nation's aluminum is produced in the Pacific Northwest, yet much of it goes to the East for further fabrication, which could be done in Oregon.

The food processing industry, which is seasonal, should find one or more industries which would "dovetail" with it for more balance, the chamber official advised.

4.—Study markets and search for expanded distribution of locally produced goods.

"People make markets and large numbers of people are continuously moving here," said Sterrett.

5.—Fill in the gaps of present industries. A plant which manufactures fibre board containers for canneries should be set up here, Sterrett also sees additional paper plants coming and more use of waste wood from saw mills for various products.

6.—Encourage all types of businesses to participate in the industrial expansion program.

"It's not one man's job, but a job for everyone," Sterrett said. He praised the Salem chamber for adopting a five-year program for industrial development and noted that it was a slow, scientific process which cannot be done overnight.

Szigeti Shows Versatility in Salem Concert

By MAXINE BUREN
Statesman Music Editor

Joseph Szigeti, one of the world's great violinists, on Monday night justified this reputation when he gave a long and difficult program at Salem High School Auditorium.

Definitely the master of classic as well as modern, Szigeti included the showpiece Chaconne by Bach, the difficult Kreutzer Sonata by Beethoven and the modern Ravel Sonata.

His final group included works of Pizzetti, Haydn, Mompou, Scriabin and Stravinsky. For all the length and difficulty of the program, the violinist was generous with encores, seeming to enjoy playing even those extra works.

Carle Bussotti, hard-working accompanist, played an important role in the evening's entertainment and did his part with excellence.

The concert, one of the highlights of the winter musical fare in Salem, was third in the Willamette University series. Marian Anderson is scheduled for Feb. 24.

'Human Bomb' Uses Dynamite For Suicide

WESTON, W. VA. (U) — Don McCray, 47, crashed himself into a human bomb Monday, setting off several sticks of dynamite strapped to his waist.

He was blown to bits and his divorced wife and her lawyer were critically injured. Three others escaped serious injury.

State police said the scene took place a few minutes after Donzel Raymond McCray, 47, and jobless, walked into Magistrate W. S. Fultz's office.

"Look what's going to happen here," he said as he unbuttoned his sweater to display the five or six sticks of explosive.

As the horrified group watched, he applied a set of small batteries extending from the dynamite and set off the explosion.

Mrs. McCray, who had born him six children and was divorced from him last November, suffered a badly mangled face, shock and other injuries.

Her lawyer, Charles N. Gland, suffered wounds in the face, legs, and the entire front of his body. Both were pronounced in critical condition later at a hospital.

Fultz, who had concluded a property settlement shortly before the explosion, was knocked off his chair. A nother attorney was knocked unconscious. They were treated at Weston Hospital for minor injuries and were released.

Only a moment before the blast McCray had asked his son George,

22, and his stepfather James McCarty, to leave the office. State Trooper Robert Elliott said. He said the son was unable to give any reason for McCray's act. Although kangaroos can grow to be 7 feet tall, they are less than an inch long at birth. Some of the ice on the Antarctic continent is 7,450 feet thick.

ACORNS FROM THE Oak Room

WITH DEL MILNE
LEGISLATOR'S PARADISE — Yes, that's the Oak Room at the Marion Hotel. The Oak Room is brand new, it is open from 6 p.m. to midnight, so fellows whenever you get the urge to eat your dinner you can depend on Chef Anderson to take care of you. A Senator who checked in last week told me the Oak Room would certainly be the Legislator's Paradise, he said, "Del, this is certainly an improvement over the last time we were in Salem. Now we can eat whenever we get thru with our work without leaving the hotel. You see we have lots of discussions, etc., that sometimes keeps us going until 9 or ten o'clock at night before we get a chance to eat dinner and it will sure be nice to just amble down to the Oak Room instead of running around town or to the outskirts to find a place to eat and relax." Well, he just about summed it up — it is really nice to just amble down to the Oak Room. If you're entertaining, do it at the Oak Room.

Irene Dodd, at work in the traffic office at Albany, Oregon, where she assists in the supervision of some 90 telephone operators.

IRENE DODD—YOUNG LADY GOING PLACES

In just a few years, she has advanced in the telephone business from student operator to assistant chief

1. In August, 1943, Irene Dodd came to work for Pacific Telephone as an inexperienced student operator. Since then, she's had several promotions—to operator in charge, supervising operator, and recently to her present position as assistant chief operator. This is a familiar telephone success story. For advancing our telephone men and women as their skill and experience grows is just one more way we work to make your telephone ever more efficient and valuable to you.

2. Combines marriage and career. Mrs. Dodd has found that marriage and a career can go together. In addition to her important responsibilities at work, she enjoys keeping house—and baking special lemon pies for her husband. It's a good and satisfying life, too. As she herself puts it: "Telephone work really gets in your blood. Every day is exciting."

3. Enjoys helping others. Mrs. Dodd says she finds deep satisfaction in helping people with their telephone calls. Gratifying, too, is the feeling that she is helping new people get ahead in the telephone world. It's all part of telephone tradition—a tradition of service which insures that a well-trained force of men and women stands behind the good telephone service you enjoy every day.

A good place to work

One reason why telephone jobs are good jobs is the fact that each year thousands of telephone men and women are promoted to more responsible positions in the hundreds of communities we serve locally here in the Pacific West. Their goal: to help keep your telephone service the finest in the world.
