

Russ Papers Drop Anti-Jewish Line as World Reaction Heard

LONDON (AP)—Soviet propaganda organs which have been trumpeting charges against nine Moscow physicians in anti-Semitic terms dropped the case abruptly as world reaction built up Wednesday.

Obviously acting under orders, the Moscow radio and Soviet newspapers turned mysteriously from their biggest story of 1953.

This was the story to which they devoted thousands of words Tuesday—the arrest of the nine as a Western-backed "terrorist group" accused of killing Andrei A. Zhdanov and Alexander S. Scherbakov and trying to kill other Russian leaders since World War II through improper treatment.

Why the muzzle was applied at this stage is a question.

Millions of Russians and Westerners were talking of the case, which was officially represented as linking the physicians with a Jewish relief agency, the American Joint Distribution Committee, and U.S. and British intelligence services.

A belief developed in London that the fantastic case heralds a showdown between Georgi M. Malenkov and Lavrenti P. Beria, both deputy premiers. Beria has headed the Soviet secret police.

If this thesis is correct, the stakes are high. The winner could be the successor to the aging Prime Minister Stalin. The guess—and that's all it is—is that the Western-backed "terrorist group" accused of killing Andrei A. Zhdanov and Alexander S. Scherbakov and trying to kill other Russian leaders since World War II through improper treatment.

Why the muzzle was applied at this stage is a question.

Millions of Russians and Westerners were talking of the case, which was officially represented as linking the physicians with a Jewish relief agency, the Stephen Little, Mike Rolow, Ada Hartman and Bill McDonald will vie for the presidency of the Leslie Junior High School student body in the primary and final elections to be held Jan. 16 and 22, respectively.

To get on the ballot they were required to get 50 names on each of their petitions as were the other candidates for office.

They are, for vice president, Linda Herrall, Mary Stevens and Donna Zeh; secretary, Kathy Helzel, Ann Finley and Karen Ringwald; treasurer, Beverly Burgoyne, Connie Pursley, Loretta Bates and Nancy Snider; song queen, of which two are chosen; Roni Cardale and Judy Templeton; Peggy Reed and Marliou Allen; Linda Kendrick and Nancy Ladd; Betty Johnson and Lynne Enyaert and Jeanne Jones and Barbara Gerlinger; yell king, Larry Holverson; Gerald Estun and Larry Baker; and sergeant at arms, Jerry Carleton, Duane Smith and Ronnie Woolery.

All candidates will give short speeches before the primary and final elections.

SALEM HIGH SCHOOL
Howard Saling has been appointed head of the letter club concessions for Salem High School basketball games by Vera Gilmore, adviser of the letter club.

The letter club runs all concessions at the games. The proceeds will be used to purchase sports movies for the club.

Sicks Given Safety Prize By Brewers

NEW YORK—Sicks' Brewing Company of Salem, Ore., completed 1952 without a disabling injury and was awarded first prize in Class A of the annual safety contest conducted by the United States Brewers Foundation, which held its closing session of its 77th annual convention Wednesday at the Waldorf-Astoria.

Edward V. Lahey, foundation chairman and president, announced that fewer brewery workers were injured on the job in 1952 than in any previous year, attributable to industry cooperation in safety campaign begun by the foundation in 1948. This year's injury frequency of 20 per million manhours of employment compared with 35 in 1948.

Nearly 150 companies participated in the contest.

Sicks' Brewing Company tied with four other breweries in Class A, which included breweries employing less than 100 persons.

Morse Claims Independents in Political Peril

WASHINGTON—Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon called on independents Wednesday to "make clear to all the American people that Americans face a great political peril because we're coming into an era now where party politics and political expediency rule."

"Political expediency will characterize the Eisenhower administration as it characterized the

Tuberculosis Drug's Value Temporary

SAN FRANCISCO—The new drug isoniazid, hailed a few months ago as the most powerful agent ever found to combat tuberculosis, is of value only temporarily in the treatment of the disease, a Stanford University physician reports.

Chief drawback of the drug, said Dr. H. Corwin Hinshaw, head of the Stanford chest disease division, is that it doesn't kill all of the TB germs at once; those which survive its first onslaught reproduce microbes resistant to it.

Dr. Hinshaw reported in the current issue of the Stanford Medical Bulletin.

Dr. Hinshaw based his findings on the outcome of three different kinds of treatment given to 45 patients. Dr. Mildred Thoren, director of the Weimar Joint Sanatorium, Weimar, Calif., participated in the tests.

Some patients received isoniazid alone, some received isoniazid and streptomycin and the others got isoniazid and paraaminosalicylic acid.

After two months all the patients were improved. In the next four months, half those who received isoniazid alone had relapses. But 90 per cent of those who received isoniazid in combination with either streptomycin or paraaminosalicylic acid continued to get better.

Four months after the beginning of treatment, 95 per cent of the TB germs in the patients who had received only isoniazid were resistant to the drug, Dr. Hinshaw said.

The results indicate, he added, that the new drug should be used only in times of crisis, such as in preparing the patient for surgery or to fight some sudden, alarming extension of the disease.

Camas Man Bound To Grand Jury on Auto Theft Charge

A Camas, Wash., man, Earl D. Baker, 22, waived preliminary examination in Marion County district court Wednesday on an auto theft charge and was bound over to the grand jury. He is being held in jail in lieu of $3,000 bail.

Baker is charged with taking a car belonging to Willis E. Billingham, Route 4, Salem, here Monday night about 10:30. State police arrested him an hour later at Gladstone with Billingham's car.

Baker and Billingham told Salem police that Billingham had given Baker a ride from Portland to Salem Monday evening. After arrival here, Baker left Billingham in a business establishment. Later, Billingham found his car had been stolen.

Children, Candle Said Cause of House Fire

Youngsters playing with a candle were believed to have started a fire early Wednesday night which destroyed a bed and mattress and some clothing in a second-floor bedroom at 2770 1/2 N. Front St. The children were uninjured.

Firemen were called about 7:45 p. m. to the house which is rented by Mrs. Doris Starr and owned by Mrs. Hazel Taylor of 2770 N. Front St.

Damage was estimated at $150.

Eisenhower Campaign, Morse Said in an NBC Television Program

He added that the Senate action in denying him seats on two committees was "the cracking of a political whip on a man that can't be controlled."

Mrs. Small Rites Friday

Statesman News Service
ALBANY—Funeral services for Mrs. Emma C. Small, 85, who died Wednesday will be held from the Fortmiller - Fredericksen Chapel Friday at 2 p. m. Mrs. E. W. Wright, Christian Science reader, will conduct the service.

Interment will be at Riverside Cemetery.

Mrs. Small died in a local hospital following an extended illness. She was born in Eugene, Dec. 17, 1869, and spent her early years in Eastern Oregon.

At Prineville in 1913 she was married to Elvert E. Small. Since then they have lived in Albany. She was a member of the Albany Christian Science Church.

Surviving is the widow and a daughter, Mrs. Hazel Chase of San Bruno, Calif.

Rites in Albany Saturday for PFC Whitaker

Statesman News Service
ALBANY—Funeral services for PFC Donald L. Whitaker, 18, who died in Korea Oct. 20, 1952, following battle injuries, will be held from the Fisher Funeral Home Saturday at 2 p. m.

The Rev. George Huber will officiate. Interment will be at Willamette Memorial Park at Albany. Military graveside rites will be held by American Legion, Albany Post 10.

Whitaker was born Feb. 21, 1934, at Toledo, and had lived nearly all his life in Albany. He is the son of Mrs. Lawrence Adkins of Albany. He entered the Army on his 17th birthday and left for Japan last January.

In Korea he served with the 17th Buffalo Infantry Regiment and was awarded the Purple Heart and other service awards.

Surviving in addition to the mother are a sister, Mrs. Walter Foley of Albany and grandmother, Mrs. Frank Roth of Lebanon.

Cash, Clothes, Tires Among Items Stolen

Five dollars in cash, a man's shirt and two pairs of pants and two tires were among items missing in separate thefts and burglaries reported to Salem police Wednesday.

Berg's Market in the Capitol Shopping Center was entered by burglars sometime Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning—for the second time in recent months.

A cash drawer for making change on bottle deposits was opened but cash in it amounted to less than $5, said Elmer Berg, owner.

Entry was made by piling up boxes behind the store and breaking a window, police said. The same method was used a few months ago when the store safe was burglarized.

It was believed no merchandise was taken.

Thriftway Cleaners at 956 E. Commercial St. reported the theft of a man's corduroy shirt and two pairs of men's Army officer pink trousers.

And Chaffings Motor Co., 2645 S. Commercial St., told police someone stole two tires Tuesday night from behind the company's office building.

ACORNS FROM THE Oak Room
WITH DEL MILNE

"I say, Del ol' boy, will there be room in the Oak Room for ye townspeople during the legislative session?" one of our good friends asked. "Well, there sure will be room and I do not want the townspeople to feel that they are not welcome . . . after all I depend on you to patronize my place all year, every year, and any time you want to come down and brush elbows with a Senator or Representative come on over. Better still, if you'd like to meet them let me know—they are a fine group of men, real fellows. They are working for you, you're paying the wages, why shouldn't you know 'em."

Already we have chef Andreian dancing like he had ants in his pantry "boy ol' boy, that I was busy like everything when I was in Sacramento but things were never like this. Down there they think they are busy like bees but up here they should come to see them hum." Well he had a little trouble with his Armenian English but you get the idea.

Charcoal broiled steaks, chicken and turkey. Prime Ribs cooked to your liking and Armenian dishes just like Omar Khayyam serves in San Francisco.

1-Way Traffic Considered for Stayton Bridge

Marion County Court Wednesday considered a plan calling for one-way traffic on the narrow Marion-Linn county bridge over the North Santiam River at Stayton.

The court received a petition from the Cascade Highway Association and the Stayton Union High School District asking for control rights at both ends of the bridge to provide one-way traffic. The span, the petition stated, is too narrow for cars and buses or trucks to pass freely.

The bridge has a high center span, they added, making it difficult for approaching drivers to see each other.

Marion County Court members said they would confer with Linn County officials regarding cost of the project.

The highway association said that traffic over the bridge probably would increase because of road improvement going on in that area.

Car Driver Turns Sleuth

A Portland man turned sleuth Wednesday night and apprehended a Salem driver who he accused of side-swiping his car on the Pacific Highway south of the city.

State Police said Donald M. Varney of 11885 S.E. Powell Ct., Portland, reported his car was struck in a hit-and-run accident about 7:15 p. m. on 99-E between S. 12th Street junction and the Salem city limits.

Varney told police a car coming towards him side-swiped his vehicle and then darted up a side street.

Police and Varney searched separately for the hit-and-run driver and Varney's search paid off first.

In Jefferson justice court early today Varney signed a complaint charging Callen Ellis, 59, of 3560-A S. Commercial St., with failure to stop at the scene of an accident.

Rainfall Cut, River Recedes

Cooler temperatures and less rain are holding Willamette Valley streams down, the U.S. Weather Bureau at McNary Field reported early today.

Only .02 of an inch of rain fell on Salem Wednesday compared with almost an inch the previous day. The Willamette River at Salem was reported receding after reaching almost 14 feet early Tuesday.

Headwaters of nearly all coastal streams in northwest Oregon were recording a slight fall Wednesday. The State Highway Commission warned motorists to carry chains because of snow in east-
