Churches Plan Inauguration Day of Prayer

Churches and individuals of Salem were urged Friday by Salem Ministerial Association to observe next Tuesday as a day of prayer, at the time of the inauguration of a new President of the United States.

The following statement was issued by the Rev. John L. Cauble, president of the association: "Out of the recent biennial convention of the National Council of Churches, came the action that all constituent churches observe Jan. 20 as a day of Prayer for the Nation."

"President Eisenhower and his immediate family will attend a private church service on that morning, preceding the inaugural ceremonies."

"This recommendation for a Day of Prayer for the Nation has gone out to all Protestant clergymen of Salem through the Salem Ministerial Association. The plea is that all churches, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish alike, cooperate in this national endeavor, in their own chosen way. Some have suggested special church services. Others are urging their people to come to the church and pray anytime during the day. This is a measure in which all Christians of America can be solidly one."

Oregon Wheat Car to Boost India Trading

By LILLIE L. MADSEN Farm Editor, The Statesman

Should any of you be traveling in Southern India in the coming months, and note a perfectly modern station wagon, bumping over back trails and roads and stopping at the small unkept home of the south India housewives, you will also note that the car bears the label, "Oregon Wheat Car."

The station wagon has been bought with funds provided by the Oregon Wheat Commission and is used by staff members of the Women's Christian College to go among the Indians and show them the most satisfactory ways that wheat and wheat products can be used for food.

In return for the car, the staff of the college has agreed to do everything possible to promote the use of wheat and wheat products in palatable dishes which will be acceptable to the people and thereby expand the present market for such products in India.

Dr. Eleanor D. Mason, principal of the college in Madras, India, will report periodically to the commission, with a detailed report at the end of each year on the progress being made in the staff's program of research and education.

The present market for wheat is a nicely mixed piece of materialism and altruism. It is the direct outgrowth of India's becoming an important customer of Oregon wheat growers. India began buying big amounts of wheat because she was unable to obtain sufficient quantities for her 350,000,000 people. Her housewives were not familiar with the methods of cooking wheat, and needed help in order to use it properly. The nutrition institute, established some years ago by the Women's Christian College, was doing its best to teach the women how to prepare the grain, but progress was slow. Locally - train - food demonstrators have been visiting villages in the vicinity of the college, showing the housewives how to prepare wheat. With the aid of the car the project is being greatly expanded. The whole export project has
