

Grave Reveals Rich Danish Woman Slain

COPENHAGEN (AP) — A crumbling skull covered with golden blonde hair and a convulsively twisted skeleton established all but conclusive proof Monday that a beautiful young widow was slain by ghosts after being buried alive 133 years ago.

The remarkably well-preserved remains of Giertrud Birgitte Boden-hoff, one of the richest women in Eighteenth-Century Europe, were uncovered after ten days of digging, scraping and brushing in a caved-in vault at Copenhagen's Assistens Cemetery.

All the evidence immediately at hand indicated she had been murdered in her coffin. For one thing, her skull was found face downwards, although there could be no doubt that she had been buried lying on her back.

And there was a distinct dent in her brow as if she had been hit with some sharp instrument—perhaps a spade, as the old tale had it.

Even more convincing to the medical experts was the curiously twisted position of the skeleton, which was uncovered shortly afterwards.

The whole skeleton was lying partly turned over, the thighbones and spine bent convulsively backwards as if the young woman had been writhing in agony at the moment of her death.

An ancient tale claimed Giertrud was buried while in a state of suspended animation, and the night after the funeral grave-robbers had made their way into the vault intent on stealing jewelry the rich young widow had on her when buried.

When one of them tore violently at an ear ring, the story ran, Giertrud awoke with pain and sat up in her coffin.

Unmoved by her horror, the ghoul's raped her and killed her with a spade.

"It seems to be the true version, too," said Dr. Viggo Starcke, fourth generation relative of Giertrud and organizer of the search for her remains.

Tuesday surgeons will start X-raying the skull. Within a few days they expect to have final proof of Giertrud's after-burial murder.

Sec. Benson Praised by Dr. Burt Wood

CORVALLIS (AP) — Oregon State's Dr. Burt Wood, a member of the Interim agricultural advisory committee appointed by President-elect Eisenhower, has high regard for Ezra Taft Benson, secretary-designate of the Department of Agriculture.

Wood, head of the college department of agricultural economics, has just returned from a meeting of an advisory committee of 14 agricultural leaders with Benson.

"Secretary Benson is earnestly and sincerely trying to develop a program which will be not only to the advantage of the nation's farmers but to the nation as a whole," Wood said in an interview. He emphasized that the committee is an advisory, not an administrative body.

The committee made certain recommendations, he added, but final decisions rest entirely with the secretary and his staff. He said another meeting of the committee was discussed, but no date was set.

Wood declined to discuss specific problems covered at the three-day conference. Comment on these, he concluded, should come from the secretary.

He did say that the major attention of the conferees was discussed on reorganization of the Department of Agriculture for greater economy and effectiveness, and on international food agreements.

COMMISSION TO MEET BOISE (AP) — The Columbia Basin Interstate Compact Commission will meet again in Portland Feb. 9 and 10, Commission Secretary Mark R. Kulp said Monday.
