State to Join in 50th Birthday Of Airplane

Oregon's part in the observance of the 50th anniversary of powered flight is taking shape this week after the appointment of a state-wide governor's committee to arrange for recognition ceremonies.

Executive secretary of the committee, W. M. Bartlett, announced that chairman of the committee is to be Harry K. Coffey, Portland, director of the national advisory board of the Civil Air Patrol. In Salem, Reynolds Allen, chairman of the city aviation advisory commission, will take charge of arrangements. Bartlett is director of the State Board of Aeronautics.

Plans for promotional, lauding the age of powered flight, are to include programs before service groups, schools, military organizations and newspaper as well as radio feature material. In many sections inspections of aviation facilities and airplanes and flights will be featured to further introduce the progress of 50 years of flight. Dec. 17, 1903, will officially mark the 50th year since Orville and Wilbur Wright first flew a powered airplane at Kitty Hawk, N. C.

Other members of the governor's committee are James Snel, Portland; W. J. Merriman, Brookings; Claude Williams, Ivan Kesler, Klamath Falls; B. D. Isaminger, Pendleton; Ed Parsons, Astoria; D. L. Flynn, Medford; Leo Adler, Baker; M. D. (Doc) Woolley, Burns; Al G. Flad, Roseburg; L. O. (Dutch) Sherman, Pacific City, and Dr. George K. Hemphill, Eugene.

Boxing, Basketball, Dancing on Program to Aid Polio Campaign

They'll walk and dance and box this week in Marion County—so there'll be a better chance for persons who are the past and potential victims of poliomyelitis.

The annual March of Dimes is in the final week of its 1953 drive for funds to provide therapy for those recovering from the disease and to do research and provide materials that preventives and cures may be found.

To date, cash in hand totals $7,529, compared with the $29,500 raised a year ago. More than that total is essential "to keep our heads above water," asserted Earl Bourland, campaign chairman.

Most widespread event of the week will be the Mothers' March, from 7 to 8 p. m. Thursday. All over the county, 1,700 women are to call at any house with its porchlight on during that hour. This is the third annual "march" and is in charge of Mrs. Robert White of Salem. It brought in $8,000 last year, and workers hope to better that by 50 per cent Thursday.

Boxing Match

First program on the "Dimes" slate this week is the Salem Cherrians-sponsored boxing at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in Salem Armory. Amateur fighters from over the Northwest are on the card.

Other events whose proceeds will go into the polio fight are:

Wednesday—Free coffee in the afternoon at the Bon Ton cafe.

Thursday—Talent show in Eugene Field auditorium at Silverton, sponsored by Woodburn Eagles.

Friday—Basketball game at Jefferson High School, in charge of Gilbert Looney; basketball game at Woodburn, sponsored by Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Square Dance

Saturday—Square dance jamboree at 8:30 p. m. in Salem Armory, sponsored by Bustles and Beaux Square Dance Club; ball at Salem Eagles Hall, sponsored by Eagles, in charge of Leon Dubois; dance in old furniture store at Mill City, sponsored by Lions Club; dance in Woodburn, sponsored by Junior Chamber; three-hour marathon request program by station KOCO.

And, for the final time this year, Saturday will feature the "block of dimes" on Liberty Street between Court and State in Salem, with Boy Scouts in charge this week. This feature, which already has raised $3,225, is in charge of Stuart McElhinney.

Bourland said the drive this year had been quite successful so far but that increased demands, plus the growing carryover of therapy for past cases, means more funds are needed.

Half of the proceeds stay in Marion County and the remainder go to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for research and work on a national scale.

Most wines are of a type which do not improve with age.

Accident Kills R. L. Guiss on Mexico Trip

(Story also on Page 1) Statesman News Service

WOODBURN—A pleasure trip to Mexico ended in tragedy for Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Guiss on the day they were to start their return motor trip.

Guiss was struck dead by a falling utility pole as he crossed a boulevard which was being widened in front of the hotel at Guaymas where he and his wife had just checked out. Mrs. Guiss was in the car and her husband was crossing the street on foot to make a purchase.

A group of workers was removing a large telephone pole at the edge of the street. Somehow it slipped from its guy ropes and crashed to the street, striking Guiss and killing him instantly.

Dr. L. W. Guiss, a son, flew to the scene and took his mother back to his home at Pasadena. The parents had spent the holidays there before driving South into Mexico.

Guiss, native of Locke, Ind., was the son of a physician. Dr. Lewis W. Guiss, who brought his family to Woodburn in 1888.

The deceased was graduated from Willamette University where he was active in athletics. He became associated with his father and brother Samuel in a mercantile business, later served nine years as postmaster and then, in 1922, formed the drygoods and shoe firm he operated until retirement in 1943.

Surviving besides the widow, Helen Guiss, are sons Lewis, Pasadena; John, Portland, and Dr. Russell Guiss, Salem; five grandchildren.

He was a member of Woodburn Masonic Lodge, AF&AM, for 53 years. He was among the founders of Woodburn Golf Club.

Turner Tavern Robbed Again

A Turner tavern was broken into Sunday night for the second time this winter, and yielded about $100 worth of merriment, Brookings County sheriff's office reported Monday.

One or two persons entered Paul and Dell's Tavern between midnight and 6 a. m. Monday, according to Sheriff's Deputy Wayne Stevenson. They found no cash but took a restaurant toaster and quantities of cigars and candy.

The tavern was burglarized about two months ago, and Thomas E. Culver of Junction City now serving a State Penitentiary term for the crime.

Woolen Mills Change Name

A change of name to the Page Woolen Mills, in Brownsville, was created Monday in articles of incorporation filed with the State Corporation Department.

Articles, with 500 shares no par value, were filed by Chester A. Page, Raymond E. Page, Chester E. Page and Mary Page, all of Salem, and Thomas A. C. Johnson, Brownsville. Original sole owner was Chester A. Page who first bought the mill in 1935 and has retained it under the original name, Brownsville Woolen Mills, since.
