The move also provided a break for 19-game winner McNulty, who was going to give up the baseball ghost if he didn't get another try with a Coast League team next spring.

Bevens himself was all smiles Wednesday, for he had earlier indicated he wanted to play in the Northwest in 1953 rather than in San Francisco. He will be pitchercoach for the '53 Senators.

The club directors are also elated over the strong possibility that the Coast League Seals will send two or three optioned players to Salem next season. The Senators already have a limited working agreement with both the San Diego and Sacramento clubs. "What with the way the ticket
