

During the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1952, angling in the U.S. reached a new all-time high with a record sale of 17,-127,896 angling licenses. This record figure represents an increase of 1,101,197 licenses over the preceding year.

It seems strange to this column that why, with figures such as the above, there still remain groups in this country who feel that our fish and wildlife resources should take econd place to more (?) important issues.

It is also interesting to note in the figures compiled by the Sport Fishing Institute that on non-resident licenses, our neighboring state of Washington sold 20,583 as against 2,346 sold in Oregon. Could this ten-to-one ratio be on account of Oregon's high tariff?

Weather Man Not Kind to Steelie Anglers

The weatherman loused the steelhead fishing up again over last week-end after having got off to a fine start during the midweek fishing days. Just as the water was getting right and the anglers were wearing a smile again, the downpour took up where it left off and put the rivers out of condition again;

At this writing the skies are again clear and things are once more looking up for the steelheader who is finding time running out on this fishing calendar. Less than a month to go now on the coastal streams and the fish, to date, have had things just about their own way since the start of the winter season

The Nehalem river, noted this year for the size of its steelhead if not the quantity, recently gave up another fish over the twenty-pound mark. This latest "big one" weighed in at 24 pounds, 3 ounces.

At last Monday evening's meeting of the Salem Spin Fishing Club it was announced that the South Salem Chamber of Commerce has offered the Spin Club a portion of a recently acquired site on Battle Creek for a possible tournament casting and wading pool. This will mean much to Salem and the surrounding area once it has reached completion. There will be great opportunity to instruct the young followers of Ike Walton in the art of fly, plug and spin casting.

Keith Henderson and Jan Janicek, Salem Spin Clubbers, were awarded prizes for outstanding catches made during the 1952 season. Henderson was awarded a complete Airex spinning outfit while Janicek walked off with an attractive trophy cup. (See photo this page.)

Denmark Angler Wants Some Red Yarn

From the mail bag comes a letter from an angling gent in far off Denmark. He wants to know (of all things) where he may obtain some of the fluorescent red yarn to try out in his home waters. The angler in Denmark states that he fishes for sea-trout (salmo trutta) and that he can see no reason why the yarn should not work as well on them as on steelhead. The sea-trout of which he writes (salmo trutta) could be no other than a sea-run brown trout.

We may be surprised to know that brown trout go to sea but the gent evidently knows whereof he speaks and it should settle the debate in this area as to whether or not brown trout will become sea-run if given the opportunity. Evidently they like the salt in Denmark, anyway.
