On Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. When a man is accompanying a woman up or down some steps, should he walk beside her, ahead of her, or behind her?

A. If the steps are very wide, he walks beside her. But when they are too narrow, he allows her to go up the steps ahead of him. When descending, however, he goes first. In both instances, he stations himself below her so as to be in position to catch her should she stumble.

Q. What should a divorced woman do with the rings given to her by her first husband, after she remarries?

A. Some women dispose of both rings. Others wear the first engagement ring on the right hand, provided of course the second husband does not object to this.

Q. Is it ever proper to use a fork to put the butter on a piece of bread or biscuit?

A. No; the knife should be used for this.
