PARIS (AP) — Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway won his battle Thursday for the funds for the 1933 military construction program he had laid out for European defense.

Lord Ismay, British secretary general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, said the 14-man NATO Council had approved an additional allocation of 224 million dollars for construction of air bases, jet fuel pipelines, communications systems and headquarters installations in western Europe this year.

At its meeting last December, the council had balked at the request of Ridgway, NATO supreme commander, for a minimum of 425 million dollars and sliced it to 224 million dollars, or almost half.

"Too bad it's come two months late," was the very comment Thursday night of a spokesman at Ridgway's Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe, who asked not to be named.

"We didn't expect any announcement until the next ministerial meeting on April 23," he added. "The pressure must have been

Italy Synod Opens Fight Over Ouster

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Italy's Methodist synod Thursday took up the fight for an American Protestant pastor ordered to leave this predominantly Roman Catholic nation.

The National Synod of the Methodist Church of England and the United States, sent this telegram to the Rev. Anthony Callandro in Naples:

"The synod at its annual meeting deposes the government decision for your ouster, and raises a vibrant protest against Italy's violation of religious freedom."

Methodists returning here from the four-day synod at La Spezia said it adopted unanimously a resolution protesting "persecution of Protestants" by the Italian government.

The resolution called on Interior Minister Mario Scelba to rescind the order directing Callandro and his family to leave the country.

heavy to get them to announce it ahead of time."

The heaviest pressure was put on by Ridgway himself.

Sun Allergy Keeps Victim Under Mask

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Harry Brockley, 29, an employe of the Wyoming Game and Fish Department, must wear a pillow-case mask when he is out in the sun.

He suffers from lupus erythematosus, which means simply that he is allergic to sunlight.

Brockley says there is no known cure for the rare malady, which he believes he caught while serving for three years as a crew member on a patrol torpedo boat in New Guinea and in The Philippines. However, the disease did not become apparent until last fall.

The disease also causes severe rheumatism which curtails his physical activities, he said.

A few minutes of direct sunlight, Brockley explained, causes a breakdown of the connecting tissues — blood, nerves and cartilage,

Safe Looted During Business Activity

ASHLAND (AP) — Seventy-five dollars in cash vanished from the safe at the Simpson Hardware store Friday.

Police, in their search, expressed some bewilderment. The theft was at noon while a number of customers were in the store but none reported seeing anyone go to the safe, whose door stood wide open.

resulting in a skin rash and nausea.

When he goes outside, he wears the mask and uses a skin cream that filters the ultra-violet rays from the sun.

Brockley said he spent three months in veterans' hospitals here and in Denver and the doctors finally told him to "go home and take it easy. There haven't been many cases and the doctors have not had much of a chance to study it."

Knight Named Journal Head

PORTLAND (AP) — The Oregon Journal elevated William W. Knight, general manager, to become publisher and president Friday.

He succeeds Philip L. Jackson, son of the Journal's founder. Jackson died Saturday.

Mrs. Marie C. Jackson, widow of the founder, and majority stockholder said she wanted to lay to rest rumors that the newspaper might be sold to outside interests.

She said, "The Journal has not been and is not for sale. We long ago provided that the Journal will remain a home-owned newspaper."

Knight, who is 44, is an attorney who formerly was secretary of the Pacific Northwest Newspaper Association. He joined the Journal staff in 1946, and became general manager 13 months ago.

Knight said he planned no staff changes.

Bishop Grant Speaks Here

A real meeting with Jesus Christ would make a deep difference in how a person views other persons and how he appraises world events, Methodist Bishop A. Raymond Grant said Thursday night in his first Salem appearance. He spoke at the Wesley Fellowship second annual world friendship banquet.

Even though much has been learned about Jesus, to the vast majority he remains a stranger, declared Grant.

Real knowledge, he pointed out, would allow you to "see every man clearly" and to realize that no man or nation is great enough to live alone.
