Safeway Agrees, Mr. & Mrs. Consumer You Do Have A Right To Know The Quality of Meat You Buy

Reprinted below are the first four paragraphs of the editorial on meat grading which appeared in THE OREGONIAN on Friday, February 13th. We have made comments on certain points in this editorial as a means of calling attention to Safeway meat policies.

Meat Grading

When controls on meat were abolished last week more than price curbs went by the boards. Compulsory grading of meat, a part of the OPS-enforced program, also came to an end. As a result, much of the meat marketed in Portland no longer bears along its fatty edge the plebeian U. S. government grading stamp attesting to the quality of its flavor and tenderness.

It is the general practice of distributors, who pay for the federal grading service, to have only higher grade carcasses stamped when grading is on a voluntary basis. Thus, housewives who buy by grade will still find cuts stamped "choice" and "good" at retail counters. But there is very little, if any, marked "commercial" or "utility." Producers and distributors quite frankly admit that these lower-quality cuts can claim a higher price if sold ungraded or under such purely unofficial designation as "grade A".

The U. S. grade has nothing to do with the sanitary conditions under which meat is prepared and marketed. Nor are the poorer cuts any less nutritious than those of higher grade. Grading simply provides a uniform scale by which the consumer can tell the degree of flavor and tenderness to be expected, much as does a nationally advertised trade name.

The League of Women Voters in recent years has advocated compulsory grading as a means of preventing the sale of ungraded meat at premium prices. The housewife who hasn't the price for "choice" or "good" cuts, the League contends, should know what she is getting when she buys the lower grades. Some producers, distributors and retailers also favor compulsory grading as an incentive to production of higher grades and an insurance of the premium prices asked for "choice" and "good" cuts. The meat industry is haunted, however, by the consumer's resistance to the "commercial" and "utility" stamps.

Because we know many folks have learned they can depend on Safeway for top grade meats at lowest competitive prices, we are continuing to make this fine meat available to our customers.

Safeway will continue with federal grading service. Every cut of beef, lamb and veal sold at Safeway bears the U. S. grade marking. At Safeway you are ALWAYS SURE of the GRADE of meat you buy.

At Safeway you will find ONLY "U. S. Choice" and "U. S. Good" grades of beef and lamb. You will not find ANY cuts of beef, lamb or veal without a U. S. grade mark. Safeway continues to handle ONLY the TOP grades.

All Safeway meats are inspected for health and wholesomeness. All carcasses bear the familiar round inspection stamp. This is not to be confused with the U. S. grade marking.

Safeway's self-imposed grade marking policy means you will never be asked to pay top-grade prices for lower grade meats.

Safeway's keen interest in the increased production of higher grades of beef is borne out by its continued support of F.F.A. and 4-H Live-stock programs and Fat Stock Shows.

How Federal Grading Differs From Federal Inspection

Federal grade markings designate QUALITY only. These markings must not be confused with the round purple stamp that guarantees the meat has been Federally inspected and is certified WHOLESOME.

Safeway sells only "U. S. CHOICE" and "U. S. GOOD" beef, lamb and veal because these top Government grades offer greatest value. They have a high percentage of well-marbled meat and provide the eating satisfaction we know our customers demand.

How Safeway's Controlled "Aging" Program Brings You Beef that is GUARANTEED to Cook Deliciously Tender

Starting, as we do, with just the top grades is vitally important to Safeway's plan of bringing you fine-eating meat. But it's not enough. To make certain this meat reaches your table in perfect condition, Safeway makes certain that all beef and lamb receives the correct aging before it is offered for sale.

This aging process permits enzyme action to soften and break down tough-tissues and fibres in the meat. This results in the TENDERNESS and FLAVOR for which Safeway meats are famous. It is an important reason why Safeway offers this guarantee. "Your meat must cook TENDER and delicious—or your money back!"

And Here is How Safeway's "Trim Before Weighing" Gives You MORE VALUE For Your MEAT DOLLAR

RIB ROAST, for example, has end section of short ribs and heavy chine bone removed.

CHUCK ROAST, for example. Our trim retains for you all the good-eating meat that belongs on this cut.

RIB PORK CHOPS, for example, have tip end of chine bone removed. Excess fat also trimmed off.

RIB LAMB CHOPS, for example, have long "tail" removed. Tip end of chine bone is also chopped off.

LEG OF LAMB, for example, has long portion of shank bone cut off. Excess fat is also removed from side of roast.

LAMB SHOULDER ROAST, for example, has neck and shank trimmed off. (Roast is not "robbed" for chops.)

Safeway does not, nor never has offered for sale any New Zealand frozen beef
