Central Oregon C of C Opposes School Bill

PRINEVILLE (AP)—The Central Oregon Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night urged the Legislature to defeat Senate Bill 220.

Members said they feared it would run up school costs at Madras.

At Salem, legislative experts said, however, that the bill would not do that. They said it provides for children who live on government property and who attend school in adjacent districts to be counted for distribution of state basic school fund aid.

The chamber of commerce had feared the bill would put children from the Warm Springs Indian Reservation in the Madras schools and compel Madras to spend $500,000 or more to expand school facilities.

Legislative experts said the bill would not change the places where children go to school. It would merely give school districts more aid.

Strike Ends At Milwaukie

MILWAUKIE (AP)—The strike at the Milwaukie Plywood and Door Co-operative has ended, the firm president announced Wednesday.

President Tom Ford said an agreement assured the AFL Millmen's Union of at least 53 jobs at the plant. Vacancies occurring in the future will be filled by seniority, regardless of union membership, Ford said.

The strike started after many union workers were laid off after the co-operative took over the plant from Western Door and Plywood Co. Those laid off were those who did not buy stock in the co-op.

Community Sized Dams Favored at Irrigation Clinic

CORVALLIS (AP)—Small, community size dams hold the best promise for expanding irrigation in Oregon.

So speakers said at an irrigation clinic on the Oregon State College campus Tuesday.

Phil Bladine, McMinnville newspaperman, said a survey in 30 Oregon counties shows there are more than 5,000 sites where such small dams could be built to benefit 300,000 acres of land.

Other speakers urged long-range planning water use in order to avoid court fights later.

Beer-Drinking Dog Results in Fracas

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP)—A beer-drinking dog caused a fracas that wound up in Great Falls court with a jail term for a chaser.

City Judge David J. Ryan listened to this story:

Otto Michelson, 50, bar janitor, told Gene Trichie that Trichie should not let his dog drink beer at the bar. Michelson claimed the dog's master struck him to the bar room floor, breaking his dental plate.

The judge sentenced Trichie Tuesday to 30 days for assault. The judge commented that he also thought the dog's drinking from a glass at the bar was repulsive.

Palmerton Mill Back in Operation

KLAMATH FALLS (AP)—The Palmerton lumber mill here was back in operation Wednesday. A court-approved agreement sent its 370 employees back to work.

The plant went idle Feb. 13, when Loren L. Palmerton, a major stockholder, attacked operations under D. A. Weidler of Chicago, who had gained voting control.

Palmerton accused Weidler of operating the mill at a loss to feed Weidler's other lumber interests in Chicago. The court agreement did not settle basic issues, but started operations again while attempts to settle the affair are made.

POSTMISTRESS DIES
LONG CREEK (AP)—Funeral services for Mrs. Alice Porter, 61, postmaster here 30 years, were held Wednesday. She was struck by a heart attack while waiting at a high school dance Saturday. She died a short time later.
