New Seed Regulations Big Problem

A federal regulation that reand Marketing administration this year poses a big problem for Oregon seed growers that only plan-ning and cooperation can solve, according to Dr. D. Hill, head of the farm crops department at Oregon State College.

The difficulties lie in the fact that seed testing facilities would be snowed under with the job and that it would be costly to seed growers and warehousemen. Program Underway

Take-over date for cover crop seeds-vetches, crimson clover, peas and ryegrass-was February . That program is now underway. For hay and pasture seeds- alta fescue, alfalfa, ladino, alsike and red clover-the take-over is scheduled May 1. Sampling and testing of these seeds, involving perhaps as many as 20,000 lots, is the big problem.

Since the new regulation was announced at the Growers Seed league meeting in December, a joint committee from the league, Oregon Feed and Seed dealers, the state department of agriculture and OSC has managed, after great effort, to get a helpful modification of the rule. Samples Submitted warehouses must be submitted for test. If those samples conform to previous tests, the entire lot will be accepted. If they do not, the entire lot must be tested.

One other thing that brightens the outlook is that seed on which quality and quantity is guaranteed by warehousemen will be accepted without further test provided it has been tested since December 1 Dr. Hill urges warehousemen and growers to cooperate in this guarintee wherever possible to speed the program and to lighten the load on the seed laboratory in May and June. He also recommend early planning within the counties for prompt handling of the seed.

Members of the joint committee working on the problem include: Seed league-Joe Harland, Rickreall, Tom Ruckman, Imbler, and Willoughby, Harrisburg: geed dealers—Howard Hadley and James Jenks, Albany, and Robert White, Salem; state department of agriculture, Frank McKennon, thief, division of plant industry; OSC- Dr. Hill and Mrs. Louisa Jensen, seed testing laboratory.

Warned to Get Set for Thrip

Prune thrip season will soon be at hand and prune growers should be in readiness to meet it, D. L. Rasmussen, Marion County horti-cultural agent, said Wednesday. Sprayers and dusters as well as the material to be used should be prepared during the next three weeks, he added. DDT will be the recommended control material

Growers can use one of the folowing combinations: (1) A spray made of one pint of 25 per cent DDT emulsion with enough water to make 100 gallons of spray; (2) a spray made of two pounds of 50 per cent DDT wettable powder with enough water to make 100 gallons of spray; or (3) a dust made of 5 per cent DDT combined with sufur or other non-alkaline

Prune Growers | Farm Crops Meet | Slated March 28 At Woodburn Hall

A Marion County farm crops meeting is scheduled for Satur-day, March 28, in the Woodburn American Legion Hall, Hollis Ottaway, county extension agent, reports. The meeting commences at 10 a.m. and everybody is invited. Grain varieties, alfalfa and corn production, weed control, and crop fertilizers will be discussed at the all-day meeting. Included on the program will be Wilson Foote and R. E. Fore, farm crops professors; Tom Jackson, extension fertility specialist, and Rex Warren, extension farm crop specialist, all from Oregon State College. Robert Miller, Woodburn, Route 2, head of the Marion County farm crops committee will be chairman. Ample time will be allowed for individual problems and crop and fertilizer questions are invited.

Mice are proving hard on grass and grains this year in Willamette Valley fields, county agents in the area are reporting.

And while cats and cheese traps may answer the mouse problem in a basement, they are not entirely efficient in covering a field.

Mouse areas are easily noticed by the many dollar-size open holes. All grass immediately surrounding these holes has been eaten off and the loss is mounting, county agents say.
