Phillips Describes Inauguration in Talk to Chamber

With the awe and enthusiasm of a schoolboy, William L. Phillips of Salem told Salem Exchange Club Wednesday of seeing a U. S. President inaugurated.

Phillips, a Salem auto dealer, went to Washington, D. C., in January as an aide to Gov. Paul Patterson for the Eisenhower inauguration. He also was one of 35 persons who saw the swearing-in of former governor Douglas McKay and seven other Cabinet members.

McKay as secretary of the interior is getting no vacation in the new position, said Phillips, who said he's too busy to know what kind of a rug is on his office floor.

Bollerslav Talks To Rotary Club

Karl B. Bollerslav of the industrial relations department of the Oregon forest products laboratory at Corvallis, predicted in Salem Wednesday that the Oregon hardwood lumber industry would soon equal that of eastern states.

Salem Woman Thrown From Car in Wreck

A Salem woman was injured when she was thrown from her car in one of two-car collisions investigated by city police Wednesday.

Police said Emma C. Cucera, 1940 N. Front St., suffered facial abrasions and head contusions. She was treated at the scene by Salem first aid men.

The accident occurred about 3:15 p.m. at Laurel and Columbia Streets when her 1942 Nash and a 1951 Chevrolet driven by Neil P. Witting, 2240 S. High St., collided.

The Witting car was damaged on the right side and the other vehicle received a smashed front end, police said.

Cars driven by Leoda M. Levens, 1000 N. Capitol St., and James R. White, 1460 Olive St., collided about 12:15 p.m. at North Winter and Market Streets, but police said there were no injuries.

The right front of the Levens car and the left side of the White car were damaged.

Grand Jury Told to Reconsider Charge

Resubmission to the grand jury of a larceny by bailee charge against Richard S. Arslanian, 1295 Alder St., was ordered Wednesday by Marion County Circuit Court as a scheduled trial started.

The order was the result of a finding that indictment by the grand jury last Jan. 21 was insufficient because it failed to name the mortgagee of farm equipment which Arslanian allegedly concealed last November.

The court set aside the previous indictment.

Ezra Cornell, founder of Cornell University, was one of the pioneers of the telegraph industry.
