Hoss to Explain CONELRAD Plan In Woodburn Talk

How the CONELRAD (controlled electronic radiation) program will affect the public in a civil defense emergency will be explained by Dave Hoss of station KSLM at a public civil defense meeting at 8 o'clock tonight in Woodburn Armory.

The program calls for broadcasting spot official information for the public's benefit, and at the same time preventing attacking aircraft from using broadcast frequencies as navigational aids. The meeting is sponsored by Woodburn company of the Marion County sheriff's reserve, headed by Capt. Frank W. Covey. Sheriff Denver Young will preside.

Other speakers will be Eugene F. Stoller, editor of the Woodburn Independent, and Wallace S. Wharton, county CD director. The program will include a walkie-talkie demonstration and motion pictures of civil defense relief work.
