Wrinkle Resistant Clothes, Cottons Popular for Packing

By JERYME ENGLISH

It is a joy this year to assemble a wardrobe for summer vacations, as never before have clothes been so attractive, colorful and practical. Cottons definitely lead the parade for daytime as well as evening wear. There are cotton suits for the city, dresses of all design for sight-seeing, traveling by car, cottons for cruises or the beach and dressier cottons for dinner and dancing.

Many new synthetic fabrics are on the market that are wrinkle resistant, perfect for suitcase packing. Pleated skirts are more popular than ever due to permanent pleating.

If one's vacation is to the big city, such as New York or San Francisco, wardrobes will vary slightly. It is wise to take dark suits (definitely no white shoes) for vacationing in the city. Black, brown and navy blue cottons are desirable for the warmer cities and for San Francisco wool suits may be worn year round. Dressy cottons, taffetas and silk suits may be worn in the evening for dinner, dancing or the theatre. It is well to remember that a dark, simple ensemble is always smart for the city, regardless of the season.

Playclothes Attractive

For the seashore, lake resorts and mountains there is a wide selection of play clothes to choose from. Denims have come into popularity this year, with sail cloth, terry cloth, the traditional cottons, gabardines and corduroy also available in all colors of the rainbow. For the beach one should have a pair of shorts, bra, a sweater and skirt with cotton blouses for changes are also a must for the beach and mountains. The same attire is also practical for a motor trip to the parks or a trip traveling along the coast or about the state viewing the scenic spots.

Knit dresses and suits are another popular wardrobe number for vacationing. They may be worn at night for dinner, where formal dress is not required. Knits are grand for the mountains and beach in the evening when it is a little cooler. Knits are perfect for traveling by car, train or plane, where one must sit for hours at a time. They do not wrinkle and are so easy to pack, just roll right up in the side of the suitcase. They take very little room and shake right out as soon as taken out of the case.

Strapless Cottons

So smart this year for resort wear, where it is warm, are the halter and strapless cottons with little boleros, spencers and jackets. Some sheath style cottons are worn with little matchbox jackets. Separates are also a favorite with many. Gay, colorful cotton blouses worn with full skirted print or plain skirts and accessorized with flowers, wide belts and jewelry.

Scarves, capes and stoles also play a major role in the fashion picture for summer vacationing. Scarves add a dash of color to an outfit or dress it up for dinner in the evening. Capes and stoles add smartness to an ensemble and at the same time are that much needed extra bit of warmth when the evening becomes cooler.

A top fashion this summer and a must in a vacation wardrobe is the summer sweater, so smart and pretty. Air conditioning and night air brought about the sweater's summer era. Nothing has a newer elegance than a pastel cardigan worn as an evening wrap for summer evenings on the patio, at a dance, riding or jacketing the bare shoulder of a strapless dress. Hand knit pull-overs are worn over a pair of shorts or peddle pushers; thus, sweaters may be seen from sunrise to sundown.

Sweaters a High Fashion

For 1953 there are pillbox sweaters, halter sweaters, blazer sweaters, city sweaters, beach sweaters and even bathing sweaters. Cardigans are lined to match cottons, boleros are fashioned with borders of ribbon and linen. Then there is the off-shoulder style sweater, bare, but not quite bare to wear with full skirts. Sweaters are ribbon trimmed and adorned with jewels.

Summer suits are always an important part of the vacation wardrobe. Cotton suits are as smart today as the wool ones. They are beautifully tailored and chic and come in a variety of colors, as well as being non-crushable. For traveling by any other conveyance than car a cotton suit is a must.

If one is planning a trip to the Islands cottons for daytime and evening wear with a variety of play and sun clothes for the beach are the essentials. It is wise to take along a tweed suit and heavy topcoat if planning vacation at the beach or mountains, because there are cool, foggy days and it does rain occasionally in the summer.

For the vacationist, who plans occasional weekends away during the summer months or a vacation right in his own backyard and patio, there are numerous wardrobe suggestions. You can go and come anywhere in cottons and linens (which are now non-crushable), with sweaters and a short coat, possibly a wool jersey or tweed suit if it's a weekend in the country. For the patio, garden or pool cotton print suits, sundresses, separates, shorts and swim suits are desirable.

Accessories Important

Accessories play an important role in the summer wardrobe. Straw baskets for purses grow to suitcase size and are smarter than ever with summer outfits. The newest packable hat is a cotton lace or a fruit bandeau and for jewelry the perennial dependables are gold and white. Linen pumps, dyed to match the outfit, always a smart accessory as well as pretty scarves and stoles. So many of the stoles matching the dress or lined with the material of the dress.

Summer cottons are as smart as they are fresh daily. Their care is a minimum. No preservatives of any kind are used with the exception of soap and water. For the majority they are hand washable and drip dry with self-ironing. Rayon and nylon cluster pleats are permanent. Summer cottons give no hint of their low cost on the smartly dressed girls and women in town.
