Back Stretch View at Portland Meadows

PORTLAND—The annual Portland Meadows meeting is now under way, with racing on Tuesday through Saturday of each week. Here 10 thoroughbreds thunder down the back stretch during one of the feature races. That's Count Recess in front, with Jockey Schillings aboard.

The baseball seismograph is atwitter with the rumblings of possible franchise moves here and there-and the reverberations carry to the deep corners of the land. It's not only possible but probably that Los Angeles and San Francisco will be sporting major league clubs in the not too distant future, even at the risk of PCL Prexy Pants Rowland doing a swan dive off the Bay bridge

. . . Rowland maintains, with no lessening of vigor, that the Coast circuit can and will become a third major wheel, if given time ... But the Rowland crusade is confronted by an army of skeptics, all of whom agree that maybe three cities are ready to go major-but no more! . . .

If the PCL just happened to be split as under by a westward march of the National or American Leagues, several interesting possibilities could arise, effecting even our own WIL . . . F'instance, might have a reincarnation of the old Northwest League, embodying such cities as Portland, Ta-

Klamath Falls . . .

PANTS ROWLAND coma, Spokane, Vancouver, B. C., Salt Lake and Seattle-unless the latter metropolis found itself with a major franchise . . . Such an eventuality naturally would drastically alter the WIL picture and might bring into the fold such bergs as Eugene and Brownie Valdez. Statesman bowling columnist, is one of the men instrumental in helping the Kelly Lumbermen of Mill City fashion that long softball winning streak . . . How seriously some guys take the links sport may be noted by some of the gals playing with hubby in the Husband-Wife Tourney at Salem Golf Club . . . A lot of Deatmen Win the boys have to make hasty alterations on their golfing vocabulary for an affair like this. However, sometimes difficult-no matter who's around—when that two-foot putt refuses to drop . . . Bill Borcher, UO hoop mentor, pitches in a Eugene softball circuit and it's said Bill takes the game real seriously . . . Speaking of sofeball, the entire Industrial loop must have let out a howl of glee when their Ed's Market-Wolgamott's club humiliated the City League leading Salem Merchants in the exhibition the other night . . . Burdened with the label of being the town's minor softy circuit, the win gave a big lift to Industrial prestige . . .

The big bat Milt Smith toted when with the Senators not only made the adding machines white hot in recording his hit production but also was the fuse that set off the entire team in its offensive sprees. With Milt gone the Solons have slacked off . . . You might call it a contagious thing—one man's pace picking up the rest of the cast . . .

Similiar with the Brooklyns. The home run orgies by the Bums this season have become so infectious, that Preacher Roe, the elongated hurler whose name is synonymous with zero hitting, actually socked the first homer of his long major career . . .

Some guys reach the Majors and some don't. But Pitts-burgh's Frank Thomas, obtained by the Bucs as a clean-up replacement for Ralph Kiner, wonders how he ever got up there —and so do the Pirates. In a recent stretch of 68 trips to the dish, Thomas whiffed 35 times . . . SO you get the idea they kind of miss Kiner in the city of steel . . .

No More Worlds for Hogan to Conquer

If Ben Hogan should retire from active links competition it wouldn't be any great surprise. Ben is at the top of his fame; he has no more worlds to conquer. And further the Texan has solidly established himself as one of the greatest if not the greatest golfer of all time . . . Financially, Hogan should do well for a long time to come without needing to subject himself to the stress of any more tournament play. Among other things, Ben holds a $35,000 a year job as pro at a swank Palm Springs club—a job that calls for nothing more than lending his name for purposes of prestige . . .

They always said of Jack Dempsey that he was a tiger inside the ropes—but mighty, mighty human when not engaged in fistic combat... And the point is borne out in the case of Primo Carnera... In a recent article, Da Preem recalled the dark days when he was cast aside by his lecherous handlers. At the time Carnera had just been fearfully beaten and partially paralyzed by the blows of Maxie Baer. The men who owned Carnera had got their wad and were finished with the mammoth Italian—and as he lay in a hagnital Prima was not only a hadly lian-and as he lay in a hospital Prime was not only a badly battered man but a frightfully disillusioned one . . .

In all those weeks of tortuous confinement only one person came to see and cheer Carnera. That was Dempsey . . . Primo says the visit by the Manassa Mauler restored his faith in mankind. And the big guy's faith had need of plenty of restoration . . .

Dempsey supplied the tonic that pulled the Italian up from the depths and made him feel he wasn't an entirely forgotten

NEW YORK & - The Cleveland Indians defeated the high flying New York Yankees in Cleveland Tuesday night for the first time this season. The score was 8-3, more runs than the Indians have scored against the world champions in any game this year. Bob Lemon scored seven hits in winning his 13th game while his mates battered three Yankee pitchers for 13 safeties including a home run by Al Rosen.

The loss cut only half a game off the Yanks' lead over the Chicago White Sox who were rained out at home against Boston. New York now leads by 5 ½ games. Cleve-land moved ahead of the Red Sox into third place, 10 games back. A two run double in the 10th inning by Don Lund gave the De-troit Tigers an 8-7 decision over Washington in the only other American League action.
