BIBLE SHOP ENTERED

Burglars gained entrance to the Bible Book House, 150 S. Liberty St., sometime Friday night but nothing of value was reported missing, investigating police said. Entry was made by removing a glass panel from a door which led to the basement. A locked door prevented the intruders from getting into the shop itself, said police.

Eight Persons Hurt in Crash Near Jefferson

Two persons remained in Salem Memorial Hospital Sunday following an auto accident early in the morning near Jefferson, in which eight persons were injured.

Hospitalized with severe facial lacerations were Billy McGraw and wife, Lorena. McGraw, resident of Arizona but currently picking beans near Jefferson, was driver of a car which collided with one driven by Samuel Robert Chapman, Portland, state police reported.

Police reports show the accident occurred a few minutes after midnight early Sunday at the junction of the Jefferson Highway and the Pacific Highway about 10 miles south of Salem.

The McGraw car was traveling south and was making a left turn on the Jefferson Highway, police said, when it and the northbound Chapman auto collided head-on.

Passenger in the Chapman car was listed as Dale Charles Spore, Portland. Passengers in the McGraw car, in addition to Mrs. McGraw, were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Smith and two small children, Linda and Jimmy Smith, all working on the Jefferson farm.

All sustained injuries police said, and were taken to the hospital by Willamette Ambulance service of Salem. They were treated and all released, except the McGraws. No arrests were made. Both cars were severely damaged, police said.

Road Board to Leave on Tour Of Inspection

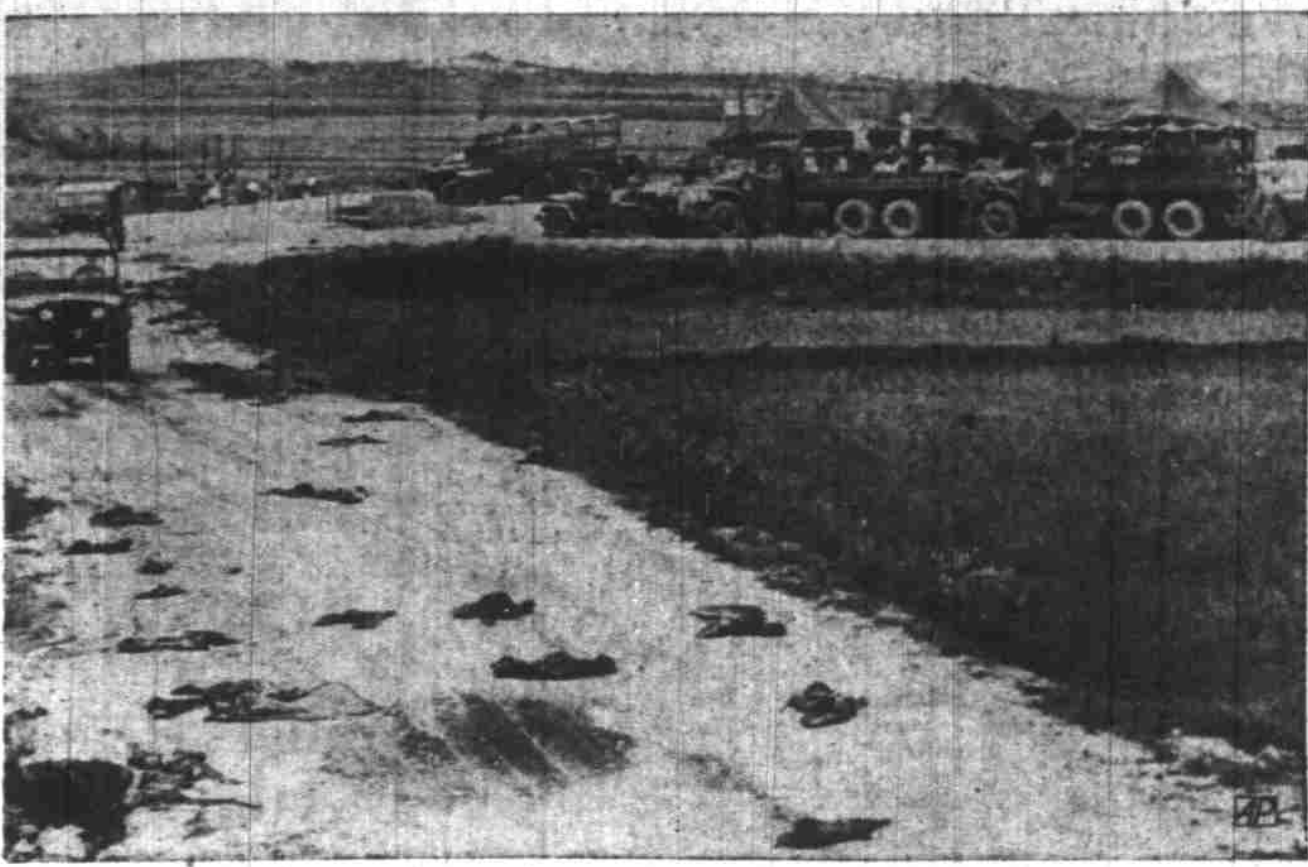

Members of the State Highway Commission, along with State Highway Engineer R. H. Baldock and other commission staff members, will leave Portland early today on their fourth and concluding inspection tour of highways for the current year.

Commission members said they were anxious to inspect highway construction operations already completed under their $72,000,000 construction program and map out further operations.

The concluding trip will take commissioners Ben R. Chandler, chairman, Charles H. Reynolds and Milo K. McIver to Remond, and Klamath Falls, through Medford to Ashland, from Gold Hill to Crater Lake and thence to Vida and Albany, and return to Portland Thursday afternoon.

The itinerary covers 838 miles of the primary and secondary highways of these sections along which some of the most important projects of the reconstruction program are under construction and proposed.

Sprague Sees Dairy Product Trend Toward Fluid Milk

By LILLIE L. MADSEN Farm Editor, The Statesman

NEWPORT — There will always be a tremendous demand for dairy products but this demand will lean more and more toward fluid milk, rather than the factory dairy products, Charles A. Sprague, publisher of The Statesman, told some 200 Oregon Jersey Cattle Club members and guests at their annual summer picnic held in Yaquina Park here Sunday.

Sprague admitted that the dairy people had many problems before them if they were to profitably survive the changing times, and not least of these, he said, was a better promotion program.

Education Program "While magazine, newspaper and radio advertising help," the editor went on, "they alone won't solve the problems." An educational program to promote the value of the whole milk as a food, not just as a container of butterfat, was suggested.

The speaker pointed out that milk production in Oregon had dropped from 1,420,000,000 pounds in 1941, to 1,190,000,000 pounds in 1951. Dairy butter production had dropped more than 50 per cent. Other dairy products, with the exception of fluid milk, had followed suit.

He urged the dairymen not to accept this indication as final, however, as demand would increase following the period of transition he believed. To attain this increase, he urged the Jersey folk to continue their program of giving the public a better program in a richer milk, to continue their increased production per cow, and their educational program.

Neal Miller, Woodburn, presided as president of the state club. He also presented two trophies, the first one awarded to the Oregon club for its work in Jersey promotion, given by The Jersey Bulletin, national breed publication. Honor for winning this trophy went especially to Mrs. Charles Couch, Sherwood, secretary for the past year.

Production Award The second trophy was the club's annual production award which went to Ralph Cope of Sixes on Opal Crystal Lady whose production for the past 30-day period was 1,003 pounds of butterfat.

Mayor Frank Gilkey of Newport welcomed the guests, as did also Jeff Modlin, Otis, president of the Lincoln County Jersey Cattle Club, host organization. Special entertainment was a baton dance by Sherry Hall.

Announcement was made that the annual Jersey Queen contest would be terminated at the Oregon State Fair, with all candidates to register at the Jersey booth there on Sept. 7, at 10 a.m.

First Aid Saves Woman's Life After Car Crash

Jail Escape Attempt Fails At Medford

MEDFORD (AP) — One of two men being held here in connection with a California slaying made an unsuccessful attempt to escape from jail Sunday.

Raymond Hodges, 37, San Francisco, overpowered a relief jailer in the city jail after tricking the jailer into opening his cell door by dropping his breakfast tray. The jailer, George Mead, was knocked unconscious.

Running down the corridor, Hodges met the regular jailer, Reuben L. Janzen, and was subdued. Janzen hit him on the head with a large ring of jail keys.

Hodges and Duane R. Hall, 40, Salinas, Calif., were arrested by Oregon State Police in June. They now are awaiting extradition for questioning in the slaying of Ray Ellsworth Happham, whose body was found in a Mt. Tamalpais lake in the San Francisco Bay area.

Bertha Gibson, 77, Succumbs At Woodburn

Statesman News Service WOODBURN — Bertha Holcomb Gibson, 77, died at her home here, 935 N. 6th St., Saturday night following a year's illness.

MAMMOTH OAK USED

SAUGUS, Mass. (INS) — The butt of a mammoth oak tree, already 150 years old when Columbus discovered America, was used as the base for an anvil at the forge of America's first successful ironworks at Saugus, three centuries ago. Discovered while excavating an ironworks site, the cross section of the huge oak is now on permanent exhibit at the First Iron Works Museum.

IT'S BELLHOPS NOW NEW YORK (INS) — One large New York hotel no longer has bellboys. They have bellhops. A very common complaint from these employees was that they resented being called bellboys, according to a survey taken by Hotel Edison owner, Irwin H. Kramer. Most of them are over 30 years of age and cite instances when they have experienced great embarrassment from being referred to as boys.
