Air Explorer Unit Open to Boys 14 to 18

A Boy Scout Air Explorer unit, first of its type in the Cascade Area Council, is being formed in Salem for youngsters interested in aviation, it was announced Saturday.

The unit is organized in co-operation with the Air Force reserve officers training corps at Willamette University. It is designated as Explorer Air Squadron 6 and is sponsored by St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Registration is open to all boys in Salem, age 14 to 18, who are "sincerely interested" in any branch of the Air Corps, according to Lt. Col. Chester Fritz of Salem, Squadron 6 adult "advisor" or leader. Prior Boy Scout experience is not necessary.

Boys may register for the unit at the Salem Boy Scout council office in the Ladd & Bush Bank building in downtown Salem. The unit will meet regularly and permanent plans for meeting and a meeting site will be announced later.

The scout air unit will have the cooperation and assistance of the Willamette ROTC unit and of the regular Air Force personnel at the AF Base in Portland. Lt. Col. Norman W. Todd, head of Willamette's ROTC department and Capt. T. M. Velde, Scout Explorer program officer, at Willamette, are assisting in organizing the unit.

Assistant to Col. Fritz in directing the unit will be M/Sgt. Robert Howard, of the Air Force ROTC, formerly with the 20th Bomber Command and 20th Air Force in World War II. Fritz, an air corps reservist, has had about 20 years in active and reserve service.

Activities for boys in the unit are to include films and demonstrations of various Air Force phases and an annual Explorer Air Encampment at one of the West Coast Air Force fields with flights and training.

Honor Goes to Three Adult Scout Leaders

These three adult scouters were presented Vigil honor awards by the Order of the Arrow, scout honor campers society. They are (left to right) Lou Amort, William McKinney Jr., and Gordon Gilmore.

Ticket Sale Begins For Scouting Fair

Tickets to the second annual Salem Scouting Action Fair at Bush's Pasture Park October 10 and 11 will be on sale this week by members of local Boy Scout troops, the Salem scout office said.

Cub Scouts, Scouts and Senior Scouts will be selling the tickets in a city-wide canvass. The fair is sponsored by Salem Exchange Club. Purpose is to acquaint the public with scouting.

Tiny Parakeet 'Flies Coop.' Owner Reports

Budgie, a tiny three-month-old parakeet, flew out of his cage and into the big wide world Friday night and was still being sought Saturday by an anxious owner.

Owner Courtney Jacobs, 795 Churchdale Ave., reports the yellow and green bird, too young to talk, probably could not survive very long in the cool night air.

Scouts Bestow Vigil Award At Convention

An award, rare in the Boy Scout world, was presented Saturday night to each of three adult Salem scout leaders at a state-wide convention of the Order of the Arrow, scout honor campers society.

The award, the Vigil honor of the camping society, went to Gordon Gilmore, Cascade Area Council scout executive, Lou Amort, council camping and activities chairman, and William McKinney Jr., Willamette University student active in scouting.

Presentation ceremonies were made at a campfire program Saturday night at Camp Silver Creek, site of the two day annual Order of the Arrow convention. Approximately 200 youth and adult scouters are in attendance for five lodges in Oregon.

The Salem men were among a group of other adult scouters to receive the Vigil honor sash and pin. They are among the first in the Pacific Northwest to receive the honor. The awards were made on basis of "outstanding service to boyhood."

Announcing the names came as a surprise to the un-warned recipients.

Amort is a holder of the Silver Beaver award and is adult leader of St. Vincent Explorer Post 16 in Salem.

Approximately 40 boys and leaders from the Cascade council are in attendance at the Order of the Arrow convention. Activities include camping demonstrations, handicraft, lectures and conferences. Election of officers will close the convention today.

Richard Verbeek of Mill City is the local council's lodge chief and James Bowers is Salem Chapter chief. Also in attendance are Malcom Nichols, lodge advisor, and James Kerns, both field executives.

Portlanders to View Chrysanthemum Show

The 15th annual chrysanthemum show sponsored by the Portland Chrysanthemum Club and the Portland Kiwanis Club's under-privileged children's committee will be held this year Oct. 31 and Nov. 1 in the sunken ballroom of the Masonic Temple, Portland.

Considered one of the outstanding chrysanthemum shows of the year, the two-day event will draw entries from mum growers throughout the Northwest.

CAP Classes Set to Resume Monday Night

Civil Air Patrol cadet training will resume Monday night at McNary Field with an expanded list of subjects, Capt. Wilber D. Garrett announced Saturday.

Aims for the new year, says Garrett, are for building a larger, more permanent structure for the school, enrolling 200 more boys and girl cadets, interesting more adults in the program, having everyone in Salem familiar with CAP, and expansion of the program to include flights in Silverton, Woodburn, Independence and Dallas.

Classes will resume on a regular basis Monday with sessions scheduled for 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Lt. Thomas Lloyd of the Aviation Cadet selection team at Portland Air Base will present a short talk and will show several movies. The general public is invited to the first meeting.

Garrett reviewed the activities of the Salem unit, listing major accomplishments of the squadron since it was organized 17 months ago. The unit has completed a 75 watt radio station in the national CAP radio network, flown on search missions for three lost aircraft, sent the largest contingent to Air Force summer camp, logged 108 hours of cadet flight, totaled 12,480 hours of classroom instruction and organized an all-gil military drill team.

Officers of the unit, besides Garrett, who is commanding, are Lt. John Toevs, executive and operations; Lt. Clare M. Garrett, adjutant; WO Niel Kluckman, fiscal officer; Lt. John Gill, supply officer; WO Robert Suing, communications officer; WO Clinton Cooter, engineering officer, and Lt. Niel Boehmer, training officer.
