Prize-Winning 'Glad' Blooms Put on Display

SILVERTON — During the past two months, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hallett have topped the Gladlious shows of the Pacific Northwest and as far south as Sacramento.

Saturday they rented a hall, and arranged a show for the home folk. Displayed were huge baskets of their prize winning blooms, smaller baskets of choice blooms and individual blooms of still choicer varieties. On one side was a table displaying the trophies and the ribbons won.

Home town folk and other friends showed their appreciation of the showing by attending with several hundred registered by the time the doors closed at 10 p.m. After the show the baskets were sent to churches, to ill friends and given to others who happened to be there at closing time. Prize winners

Included in the Saturday showing were such prize winners as Tiboli, a shell pink and Evangeline, also a light pink. There were the beautiful white Florence Nightingale, and a new white champion, a frilled seedling as yet unnamed. This seedling was originated by Carl Fisher at St. Charles, and sold to Hallett who developed it at his Pacific Sunset Gardens at Silverton.

Henry DeGreeve proved a popular apricot-shaded specimen, medium in size, while Wilma Dittman and Phantom Beauty were on the peach-colored side.

A butter-yellow which brought forth many admiring exclamations at the Saturday showing was Catherine Beath, and another popular yellow was Terrific.

Among the very fine red ones on display were Majestic, Poinsettia, Birch Red and the ever popular Mid-America. King David, ivory deep, and Queen of Night, almost black were among the fine novelties.

Four new ones shown by Hallett for the first time were the light pink Pink Chiffon, the large Ruffled Ebony, a deep red with a silver tinge on the edge of its ruffle, and Sparks and Heirloom.

Visitors signing the register at the show were from Woodburn, Salem, Mt. Angel, Lyons, Stayton, Portland, Molalla, Eugene, Clackamas, Idanha, Brooks, Independence and the Silverton communities.

Discuss Pre-Nuptial Pact

LAS VEGAS, Nev.—Dick Haymes and Rita Hayworth consult with Rita's attorney, Bartley Crum (center) at Las Vegas, Nevada, on pre-nuptial pact whereby Haymes waives any rights he may have as her husband to any of her wealth or future earnings. Nora Signs Waiver Permitting Haymes To Wed Rita Soon

LOS ANGELES — Nora Edgington Flynn Haymes decided Sunday to sign the controversial waiver that should clear the path for crooner Dick Haymes' marriage to Rita Hayworth on Thursday in Las Vegas.

In the interim, the crooner must get a Nevada divorce from Nora, but that's considered a formality at this stage. The waiver will clear the way for the marriage by giving up Nora's right to a 30-day period in which to answer her husband's divorce suit.

Nora's mother, Mrs. Becky Johnson, said Sunday that the waiver has been signed but that it must be notarized Monday. Earlier Haymes' attorney, David Marcus, had said action on execution of the waiver was expected in the morning.

"Public Decency"
Saturday, Nora's attorney said she was delaying her signature as a "matter of public decency" and thought Rita and Dick should wait at least six weeks before getting married. Mrs. Haymes, former wife of actor Errol Flynn, wasn't available to say why she changed her mind.

Haymes and Miss Hayworth plan to be wed in a quiet ceremony in Las Vegas, in marked contrast to the extravagant affair in Europe when the actress married Moslem Prince Aly Khan whom she divorced early this year.

Deportation Action
In another action involving the singer, arguments are scheduled Monday in Federal Court here on whether to impel a special constitutional court to hear proceedings in a deportation action brought against the singer by the Immigration Service.

On Aug. 28 during arguments on Haymes' petition for a Federal Court injunction against the proceedings, his attorneys dug up an international treaty made with his native Argentina in 1855 under which they claim he is entitled to the special panel.

Judge Finds Man Innocent

Howard Paul Shermer, 3590 S. Commercial St., was found innocent Sunday of a charge of driving while intoxicated after Municipal Judge Douglas Hay had taken the man's case under advisement since his trial Sept. 10.

Introduced at Shermer's trial was a tape recording of the man's voice, made while he was being booked at city jail. Judge Hay said the recording had no bearing on the matter and the man was freed on the facts of the case.

Recordings of this nature are often made, chiefly of persons accused of driving while intoxicated. Usually police do not inform the defendant that the recording is on, but often play it back to him later. If movies are filmed of persons so charged, the accused must first give his consent.

Miners Meet To Discuss Falling Prices

SEATTLE — The nation's miners converged on Seattle Sunday for four days of wrestling with the problems of falling prices, increasing competition and other ailments of the industry.

Upwards of 2,000 mining men were expected for the Metal and Non-metallic Mining Convention of the American Mining Congress. Most will be from the United States and Alaska, with a sprinkling from Canada, Mexico and other foreign countries.

Two top administration officials will address the congress at the opening session Monday.

Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, will report on mobilization progress and Felix E. Wormser, assistant secretary of the interior, will discuss government mineral policies.

A public lands panel in the afternoon will be led by Sen. Dworshak (R-Idaho). Panel members include Sen. Malone (R-Nev.); Reps. D'Ewart (R-Mont), Saylor (R-Pa), Engle (D-Calif) and Ellsworth (R-Ore), and representatives of the mining, cattle, wool and forest industries.

Delegates, here for the first Seattle convention in the 56 year history of the congress, took side trips Sunday to the nearby Puget Sound Naval Shipyard at Bremerton and the University of Washington's School of Mineral Engineering. The final day of the congress has been set aside Thursday for an excursion by boat to Victoria, B. C.

Over 3,000 PWs Returned To America

SAN FRANCISCO — The great repatriation of American war prisoners neared an end Sunday when the naval transport Gen. A. W. Brewster slid into its berth with 301 POWs, including a Medal of Honor winner.

Those aboard the big grey transport — the eighth repatriation ship from Korea — brought to more than 3,000 the former prisoners returned home by sea since the armistice was signed. The ninth and last ship is due next Wednesday.

The first man off the Brewster was 1st Lt. James L. Stone of Hot Springs, Ark., awarded the Medal of Honor for leading his platoon in "a brave and hopeless last-ditch stand" near Sokkoge, Korea, Nov. 21-22, 1951.

The slightly-built, 30-year-old officer started down the gangplank at a trot when he spotted his mother, Mrs. Idell Walker, on the pier.

Salute Given
Then he noticed a salute from Brig. Gen. James Lewis, commanding general of Camp Stone-man, where the lieutenant was stationed before going overseas.

Stone stopped abruptly, smartly returned Lewis' salute, then embraced his mother. She smiled through her tears.

"Topsy Turvy"
Later Stone told newsmen: "Everything is topsy turvy. I don't know what I'm going to do." Regarding his winning the nation's highest military decoration, he said "All honors should go to the men in the platoon — not to me."

"They did the fighting," he added proudly. "There was not a man in the outfit that wanted to leave the hill."

Stone was wounded three times in leading his platoon in defense of a vital outpost. Of more than 100 Americans holding the hill, all but six were killed.

Following the lieutenant down the gangplank were two litter patients, Sgt. I. C. Clarence Barnhart of Hagerstown, Md., and M. Sgt. Billy C. Knowles of Yakima, Wash. Waiting ambulances took them to Letterman General Hospital at the San Francisco Presidio.

One of the repatriates, M. Sgt. Delwayne Coddington of Portland, Ore., said there were some "pros" aboard the Brewster, "but we kept peace in the family."

He added, "I figure that just living with themselves is punishment enough for those guys. They are going to regret that stuff all of the rest of their lives."

The ninth and last repatriation ship, the Gen. Howze, is scheduled to dock next Wednesday with 290 former prisoners.
