Meat Packers' Profit Down $22 Million

The meat-packing industry as a whole netted about 1/4 of a cent profit per pound of meat sold in Oregon in 1952, figure received by G. F. Chambers, president of Valley Packing Company, showed Tuesday.

The figures were taken from a compilation made by the American Meat Institute which showed that net earnings of the meat packing industry nationally totalled 3/5 of a cent per pound of meat and all other products of the industry, including by-products, were given at $11 1/4 billion.

The 3/5-cents profit totalled $63 million—$22 million less than the previous year. Sales declined 3 per cent. Production workers' average weekly wages increased from $68.80 to $73.39. Chambers said that meat packers' profits have been so small for the third straight year that they have been insufficient to provide properly for research, expansion and improvements needed to supply meat efficiently for our rapidly-growing population.

Milk Producers Protest Plan to Include Marion County in Portland Pool

By LILLIE L. MADSEN
Farm Editor, The Statesman

By a show of hands and definite testimony, 24 milk producers in Marion County and the Lebanon area, told the Milk Marketing Administration Tuesday they didn't want to help bear the "cost of the inefficiency" of Portland's milk distributors.

The hearing at which the testimony was taken, was held at the conference room of the State Library and conducted by William S. Weidel, milk administrator, and Sam B. Weinstein, deputy attorney general.

Weidel and Weinstein explained that there were 89 producers in the Salem area who have quotas in the Portland pool, and the proposal of the administration was to incorporate the two pools—Salem's and Lebanon's into a market wide pool zone, which included Portland.

The purpose of this extension of the pool to include the mid-Willamette areas is, said Weinstein "to see to it that there is an equity in payout." He pointed out that Curly's Dairy now has a higher payout without "carrying their share of surplus."

For Producers
Gordon Hofstetter and his father, Hans Hofstetter, of Curly's Dairy took the witness stand for the producers.

The younger Hofstetter told the administrator and his attorney that "we have had no difficulty around each Wednesday during the long season. Curly's representatives brought out that their firm had spent a considerable sum to install a milk holding tank by which they saved surplus milk and were able to narrow the spread between the producer and consumer.

Spread Surpluses
"One basic requirement of our administration is a uniformity in payout. In districts where costs are similar all producers should get about the same money. Surpluses should be spread out among the producers in the area," Weinstein insisted.

And to this Hofstetter replied: "We have had no difficulty here with our producers. We have made more money for the farmers and the farmers are happy. We also sell our milk to the consumer cheaper. If inefficiency in other pools was done away with the producers would receive as much as we pay. It seems this should be done

New Charge Laid Against Seattle Man

Another charge of obtaining money under false pretenses was brought against George D. Knight of Seattle, Wash., Tuesday in Marion County District Court.

Knight, who was bound over to the grand jury recently on a charge of insufficient bank funds, pleaded innocent to the new charge and preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 30. He was held Tuesday night lieu of $2,500 bail.

An initial charge of obtaining money under false pretenses brought recently was dropped and a second similar charge was changed to insufficient bank funds.

Two Charges
The latter two charges have been brought against Knight by the manager of a Salem hotel.

In other District Court action Tuesday, a charge of larceny by against E. K. Stewart, 1990 Frederick St. Salem.

Judge Val D. Sloper said the charge was dropped when witnesses for the state failed to appear for the trial.

Stewart was charged with embezzling 85 cents in fares last March while driving for a Salem cab company. He had pleaded innocent to the charge and trial was set for yesterday.

Assault and Battery
Charges of assault and battery were lodged against Troy Dugger, 25, and W. E. Dugger, 29, both of Brooks Route 1.

Troy Dugger was released on his own recognizance and W. E. Dugger posted bail of $150. Both were cited to appear at a later date.

Marion County Sheriff Denver Young said the pair was arrested Tuesday and charged with being involved in a fracas in a Woodburn motel.

Postal Station Bids Reopened After Protest

Reopening of bids for a contract postal station in the Highway 99E South-of-Salem area was announced by the Post Office department Tuesday, apparently as a result of a recently-filed protest.

The new bids will be accepted until 2 p.m. next Monday, Postmaster Albert Gragg said. Specifications and forms are available at the Salem postoffice.

The contract for the area now is held by Vista Variety Store, and was awarded until 1955. Several weeks ago Dickson's Market and 284 petitioners protested that the Dickson bid had been lower than Vista's and that Dickson's should have the contract.

The area in which the contract station must be located is bounded by Browning, Madrona, South River Road and Hoyt Street.

Gragg said this area as listed in the new bid call is the same as that originally set up by the Post Office department. It was not adhered to in the last bid call, however. It does not include Dickson's Market.

testimony, closed the hearing. A decision on the controversial matter of the proposed change should be reached in the near future by the board of agriculture, Weidel said upon adjournment.

He Knows His Rolling Double Eagles!

Bob Schunke, 2065 Bruce Street, Salem, is shown above (center) as he receives the congratulations of Russ Bogart, general manager and (right) Harland G. Brock, president of Master Service Stations Incorporated. Just prior to the taking of the picture, Mr. Schunke had been notified by Mr. Brock that he was the lucky winner of 4 white sidewall nylon Double Eagle Tires by Goodyear. Schunke's guess of 3,186 miles as the distance traveled by the rolling Double Eagle Tire at the Master Service Station Booth at the recent Oregon State Fair, was the earliest correct guess. The tire, as mileage by an official speedometer, actually traveled exactly 3,186 miles during the time it was whirling in the eight days of the Fair. Many others among the nearly 18-thousand entrants in the guessing contest indicated the exact mileage, too. However, Mr. Schunke's guess, in accordance with the rules set forth, was adjudged winner by the contest judges because his was the earliest according to the official IBM time-stamp.
