

Roger W. Morse, State Dairy Specialist Retires at OSC

By LILLIE L. MADSEN
Farm Editor, The Statesman

Roger W. Morse, for more than 30 years closely linked with the growth of Oregon's multi-million dollar dairy industry, retired this week as extension dairy specialist at Oregon State College.

Harold Ewalt, a member of the extension dairy staff since 1944, will succeed Morse, and Don Anderson, Malheur County extension agent, will join the staff to fill the vacancy left by Ewalt's move up.

Ewalt's home town is Woodburn; he attended schools there and following graduation from the Woodburn High School went to Oregon State College.

Morse was a key figure in combating brucellosis in Oregon dairy herds, now rated among the top in the nation for percentage clean-up.

P. M. Brandt, head of the OSC dairy department and father of Phil Brandt of Salem, credited Morse as largely responsible for the federal program of indemnity payments starting in 1935 for animals condemned under the brucellosis campaign.

Some 375,000 cattle tested in Oregon in 1953 showed nearly 10 per cent brucellosis infection or "suspected." Tests of 276,000 cattle last year showed less than 1 per cent infection, and 18 Oregon counties west of the Cascades a row accredited "Bangs-Free."

Morse was secretary of the Oregon Dairyman's Association for 21 of the 23 years he was OSC dairy specialist. A strong supporter of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, Morse assisted with its reorganization in the early 1930s. DHIA cows increased in annual production per animal from 6,860 pounds of milk and 308 pounds of butterfat in 1930, to 8,269 pounds of milk and 380 pounds of butterfat by 1950.

An Iowa and Washington farm boy, Morse was graduated from Washington State College in dairy husbandry, served in World War I and was county agent in Wyoming before coming to Oregon. He was county agent in Morrow County from 1923 to 1927, and in Baker County from 1927 to 1930, when he became dairy specialist.

Ill health, and not the retirement age, is bringing about Morse's retirement.

Salem 'Phone Union Okehs New Contract

Pacific Telephone and Telegram employees of local 9204, Communication Workers of America, CIO, Friday night ratified a new contract which was signed in Portland last Sunday by the union bargaining committee and the telephone company.

President of the local Peter Schweigert said the new contract affects about 150 Salem-area telephone company workers.

It provides for $1 to $3 per week increases in the basic wage depending upon job classifications and a cut from 6 1/2 years to 6 years in the time for a worker to become a journeyman as well as fringe benefits.

Other Oregon locals are currently voting on the ratification. A bargaining committee spokesman said it is expected the contract will get state-wide approval.

7,000 Acre Hanley Ranch Sold to Cliff

The Bell A Ranch, comprising 7,000 acres in Harney County, was purchased Friday by Cameron Cliff of Silver Lake, reported F. J. Hutchinson, now an employe of the state tax commission, who will become business manager of the ranch when the formal transfer is made next April 1. Heirs of the late Bill Hanley sold the ranch.

The Bell A Ranch is considered one of the finest livestock properties in Oregon and is located on the Silves River on what was originally the Piute Indian reservation.

Cliff is the owner of other ranches in Harney and Klamath counties.

Sale price of the Bell A Ranch was reported as approximately $350,000.

State Rep. Alva Goodrich, Bend, represented both Cliff and the Hanley heirs in the transaction.

State Income From Tourist Trade Climbs

Income in Oregon's tourist industry for 1953 was 3 per cent greater than that of the previous year, the State Highway Department estimated Friday after surveys by interviewers who queried outbound visitors at 18 sections of the state.

Visitors spent a little more money per day on an average than in 1952, and the average length of stay was slightly longer which offset the fact that fewer cars visited the state.

Figures based on the number of out-of-state cars interviewed during the survey show that some 997,000 foreign-licensed cars carrying vacationists visited Oregon during the 1953 tourist season, as compared to 1,005,000 in 1952. Oregon's visitors spent an estimated $125,000,000 during the year as compared to the previous record of $121,000,000 in both 1951 and 1952.

A comparison of 1952-53 tourist figures shows that the average vacationer stayed in the state 6.5 days this year as compared to 6.3 last year. He spent an average of $5.35 a day in 1953, $5.07 in 1952. The average occupancy for each car was 3.06 persons who spent $107.85 during their stay in the state in 1953, as compared to $95.98 last year.

Motorists who stayed in campgrounds, as well as those who patronized hotels, auto courts, and resorts, were interviewed to provide a thorough cross section of Oregon vacation travel.

The Travel Information Division published and distributed over 400,000 promotional booklets, folders, and maps during the 1953 season. In addition, over 300,000 promotional folders of chambers of commerce and regional organizations were distributed by the division. Its national advertising campaign in newspapers and magazines generated 96,000,000 printed invitations to visit Oregon's vacationlands.

Approximately 50 per cent of out-of-state cars came from California in 1953. Following were Washington, Canada, Idaho, and Texas.

Woman's Club Votes $300 To Parsonage

Salem Woman's Club came to the aid of Salem's "Save the Parsonage" effort Friday.

The women at a general meeting voted to contribute $300 toward the expense of moving and restoring the landmark Parsonage building, now at 13th and Ferry Streets where Salem School Board is clearing ground for a new administration building.

Believed to be Salem's second oldest building, the two-story frame structure was built in 1841 to house the pioneer Methodist missionaries in this area. It was built about the same time as the Jason Lee house which also still stands.

The Woman's Club financial aid added to a $500 donation of Dr. Burt Brown Barker provides funds enough for moving the building within a few days, announced Murray Wade, historical sites chairman for the Marion County Historical Society which has been planning to convert the old house into a museum.

Salem School Board, which donated the building to the society, is offering temporary use of property adjacent to Washington School on Lansing Avenue for the Parsonage. Wade told the board this week that plans were underway to seek legislative permission for putting the building at the State Fairgrounds.

Also under consideration, Wade said Friday, is an offer from Paul Hendricks of a South Commercial Street lot as site for the building. This would be in the 1900 block.

The historical society already has several of the original windows, which are very small after the style of the period. Otherwise, the Parsonage is just about as built except for two interior partitions and an added room, which will be discarded, said Wade.

C. C. Weimals Joins Police Department

Police Chief Clyde Warren announced Friday that Clement C. Weimals, 23, of 2090 N. 19th St., has joined the police department as a patrolman.

Weimals was discharged from the Air Force Sept. 17 after nearly three years service. He was a staff sergeant.

The city's new policeman figured in recent news stories when his six-year-old niece, Hyacinth Bandy of Salem, was taken fatally ill with polio.

An attempt was made to reach Weimals, who was in Korea, as well as his brother, a Marine bound for Korea aboard ship, in an effort to bring them to Salem before the girl died.

Weimals reached here for his niece's funeral, but his brother was unable to get an emergency leave.

A graduate of Hill Military Academy, Portland, Weimals also attended Sacred Heart Academy in Salem.

He fills a vacancy on the force left by the resignation Aug. 24 of Howard Eshleman.

Panther Hunt Fails to Lift Hazing Plans

GARDEN CITY, N. Y. (AP)—City again the poor college freshman—as usual, he never had a chance. Adelphi College sophomores drew up a rule this year, that any freshman bringing a live panther onto the campus would be exempt from the traditional hazing.

The sophomores little reckoned with the craftiness of John Dodd of Merrick, N. Y.

Dodd took out a newspaper ad making known his need for a panther. Game hunter and author Bill Longnecker of nearby Rockville Centre promptly offered to supply two of an African species.

Thursday, Adelphi's new crop of freshmen latched onto a long rope tied to the panther's cage and hauled the beast onto the campus—thus qualifying for the hazing exemption.

But their gratification was short-lived. After a parley the sophomores ruled that the freshmen couldn't be exempt, except for one lucky lad chosen by lot.

The sophomore reasoning: Hazing freshmen is a tradition, and freshmen need it.

Firemen Quell Three Blazes

A cigarette in a sawdust pile, a roast in the oven and trash in the grass kept Salem firemen on the go Friday.

The cigarette set off a sawdust pile beneath a table saw in the yard of the new county courthouse but caused no damage.

A neglected roast at 2315 Hyde St. filled the house with greaseladen smoke about 3:45 p.m. and coated walls and ceilings, firemen reported. Smoke ejectors cleared the dwelling.

Trash in a lot in the 500 block of Mill Street touched off a small grass fire which was quickly extinguished. Firemen were called at 12:40 p.m.

Children Aid Group Forms, Picks Officers

Lawrence C. Merriam Jr. was elected president of the newly-formed Salem Association for Retarded Children at an organizational meeting Friday night at Salem Public Library attended by 36 persons.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Clarence Ferguson, vice president; Mrs. Wyn Jenks, secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Albright, treasurer; and Dr. A. W. Niemela, special education director of Salem public schools, board member at large.

Purpose of the organization is to help retarded children and their parents, and to further public understanding of the problem, Merriam said.

The Salem organization has affiliated itself with the state association and expects to link up with the national soon.

Similar groups are now operating in Portland and Eugene.

Under discussion at last night's meeting was means of transporting children to the pilot class for retarded children started this month at Hoover School.

Speaker at the next meeting Oct. 8 will be Mrs. Elizabeth Waechter, director of a school for retarded children in Eugene. Parents of retarded children and the interested public are invited.

Two Hurt When Car Strikes Deer

MILL CITY — Two Bend persons were injured just west of here Friday about 9 o'clock when their car struck a deer on the Santiam Highway and rolled over.

Taken to S. A. Memorial Hospital at Stayton were Mrs. Adie Pyne and R. P. Halvorsen, 49. The car was badly wrecked.

Milk Hearing Postponement Move Denied

PORTLAND — William S. Weidel, state milk marketing administrator, Thursday denied a request by Safeway Stores for postponement of Tuesday's scheduled milk price hearing.

Safeway said the hearing was unnecessary. The chain accused the milk marketing administration of ignoring consumer interests and trying to get a price increase for distributors when they had not asked for one.

Weidel replied that the administration feels it is its right to hold hearings when in "their judgment the economic welfare of the industry is in jeopardy."

He said the distributors' margin in Portland is the lowest in the United States and that three distributors have gone broke in the past year and a half.

A previous hearing was held Sept. 9.

Pioneer Phone Firm Granted $328,000 Loan

WASHINGTON — The Rural Electrification Administration has approved a $328,000 loan to the Pioneer Telephone Cooperative of Philomath, Ore., to expand and improve its system in rural areas of Benton, Lane, Polk and Lincoln counties.

The loan is the second received by the cooperative. In April, 1951, REA loaned the company $1,306,000.

According to REA, the new money will be used to build 197 miles of new line, rehabilitate 345 miles of existing line and construct new dial central offices at Harlan, Kings Valley, Blodgett, Summit, Chitwood, Tidewater, South Beach, Triangle Lake, Morton, Lobster Valley, Deadwood, Asea, Waldport, Philomath and Yachats.

Service without toll charges is under consideration between some of the areas.

Some More of Same, Weatherman Claims

Fair weather today and most of Sunday is predicted by the Weather Bureau with the chance of light rain Sunday night followed by local frost conditions Monday or Tuesday.

Fog is called for in the morning hours over the weekend.

Temperatures are predicted to remain about the same.

The low reading Friday was 37 degrees in Salem.

Dreams All Too Real, Wife Cut by Knife

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Helen Buckingham, 19, told police she had a nightmare in which her husband, Gene, was choking her.

"In my dream I struggled with him. I tried to scream, but could not. . . . When I awoke, I could hardly breathe."

When she got out of bed, she said, she found herself covered with blood from cuts on her arms and neck. On the floor was a blood-stained butcher knife. Her throat bore evidence of attempted choking.

Her husband, a 26 year old steelworker, was gone.

Police found him at his mother's home. Inspector Delbert Creeks said his wrists had been slashed with a razor blade, but his condition was not serious.

He was held for investigation of attempted murder.

"I don't remember anything," he told Creeks. "It's like a dream."
