Services for Mrs. McGhee Slated Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Rose Ward McGhee, 54, operator of the Bligh Hotel from 1941 to 1950, will be held today at 1:30 p.m. in W. T. Rigdon Chapel with private concluding services at Mt. Crest Abbey. The Rev. Collis C. Blair will officiate.

Mrs. McGhee, late resident of 555 S. 17th St., died Monday in a local hospital following a brief illness.

Born in Salem, Mo., Aug. 22, 1899, Mrs. McGhee came to this city in 1941 from Port Orford. Previously she had lived in Klamath Falls.

Three years ago Mrs. McGhee gave up the operation of the Bligh Hotel and for the past year she had been employed at Oregon State Hospital.

Surviving are her widower, Robert D. McGhee, Salem; daughter, Beatrice Maher, St. Louis, Mo.; step-son, James L. Bennett, Olympia, Wash.; father, Thomas G. Prater, St. Louis, Mo.; two sisters, Mrs. Edith Walden and Mrs. Ella Yard, both of St. Louis, Mo.; four brothers, George, Bradley, Burse and Speaker Prater, all of St. Louis, Mo.; and six grandchildren.

Chest Leaders Wrapping Up Fund Drive

Salem Community Chest campaign leaders said Tuesday the last "loose ends" of the campaign were being wrapped up this week.

"There is still about $8,000 or $9,000 out in uncollected cards and in promised gifts from firms with headquarters away from Salem," said Otto J. Wilson, campaign chairman.

Wilson predicted the campaign this year would collect about $120,000. The goal was $140,000. He said there were still some firms in Salem, several large ones, where the collections have not been completed. In some instances campaign workers have not distributed the cards, he reported.

Wilson said he and several other leaders would probably visit these firms whose contributions this year have not measured up to contributions of other firms in their class.

Salem Firm's Bid Low On State Hospital Job

Contracts Let For Polk Burn Rehabilitation

Rehabilitation of another portion of the 1945 Polk County burn, which damaged over 6,000 acres of timberland administered by the Bureau of Land Management in the Black Rock area west of Dallas, began this week, according to Salem District Forester Rodney O. Fety.

Snow Reforestation Service of Portland has been awarded a contract for planting 175,000 two-year-old Douglas fir seedlings on about 300 acres of land near the center of the burned area. Robert E. Snow, manager of the firm, expects to complete the contract before the end of November. His bid of $27 per thousand trees was low.

Another rehabilitation project in the Black Rock area calls for the cutting of 4,600 snags to make a snag-free corridor along the summit of the Coast Range which divides the Polk County burn. Fety said that Wilfred H. Hollowell of Dallas has been awarded the contract to cut the snags which will extend the corridor by about 1½ miles.

Hollowell is commencing operations on the extension this week. Both he and John B. Woods Sr., Salem, are holders of contracts under which the project was begun last year. The corridor is 500 feet wide and will be two and one-half miles long when completed.

During 1950, 1951, and 1952 approximately 2,300 acres in the Polk County burn were aerially reseeded to Douglas fir by the bureau. Preliminary checks indicate successful establishment of trees on the northerly slopes by this method. Further survival examinations will be made early next spring.
