Turkey Talk—The Little Extras

Garnishes, Menus for Festivities Discussed for Cooks' Assistance

By MAXINE BUREN
Statesman Woman's Editor

Third in a series of six articles on turkey and the Thanksgiving dinner to appear in the Oregon Statesman on Wednesdays and Saturdays. Save them all for a complete story about the festive dinner and the fixings. Next Saturday's story will be on the stuffing.

Tradition plays an important part in the choice of menu for the Thanksgiving dinner. Perhaps more than any other meal in the year, families want certain foods on that day, without much variation.

But there are households, where traditions are just being made, or where some changes are demanded, and that is where we come in.

Traditional foods for Thanksgiving include such favorites as Waldorf salad, glazed sweet potatoes, buttered Brussels sprouts, cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie—all easily found in the cookbook.

We've listed here a few which you may not have, or which you may like to try again:

This cranberry relish, for which we've already had requests this year, may be served as a salad in lettuce cups, in orange shells as a garnish and relish, or in gelatine for salad. You may add nuts if you like, or include some celery for bulk and to lighten the flavor a bit.

CRANBERRY RELISH
1 large orange
1 cup sugar
Grind whole orange and cranberries together, add sugar and set aside for at least an hour before using.
Add 1 cup nuts, and/or a cup of celery if desired.
A favorite of ours is this stirred cranberry sauce, which takes whole berries, but turns out to be a smooth, tender but firm jelly of smooth consistency.

STIRRED CRANBERRY SAUCE
1 pound cranberries
2 cups water
Cook cranberries and water together for about 10 minutes, mashing each berry with the back of a spoon or wire whisk. Add sugar and let cook for 10 minutes while stirring with the whisk or potato masher. Remove from stove and beat for 5 minutes while sauce is cooling.
Do not double recipe—if you want to use more berries, make the recipe twice.
We have a special recipe for glazed sweet potatoes of which we are fond. (It is in our cookbook we offered some time ago and which is still available at the office on request, or by mail for 10 cents.)

HONEYED SWEET POTATOES AND MACE
Boil sweet potatoes in their jackets until almost done, peel while hot. Cut in 3/4-inch slices and pack in a shallow pan. Make syrup of 2 cups honey, 2 cups hot water and stir until well mixed. Add 3 tablespoons butter, 1/2 teaspoon mace and 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel. Pour syrup over potatoes and let simmer slowly on top of stove, turning and basting occasionally until potatoes are transparent. Sprinkle lightly with more mace just before serving.

Nuptials Held At Withrow Residence

The Berry Street home of Mr. and Mrs. V. L. Withrow was the setting for a lovely wedding on Monday night when their daughter, Miss Barbara Ann Withrow, became the bride of Lacy George Bowsly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lacy E. Bowsly, all of Salem.

Judge Joseph B. Felton officiated at the 8 o'clock nuptials before a setting of chrysanthemums in the autumn shades. Alfred L. Withrow, brother of the bride, lighted the candles. Miss Kay Wesely was the bride's only attendant. She wore a brown afternoon dress and a corsage of bronze carnations. Robert A. Bowsly stood with his brother as best man.

Mrs. Withrow selected a green afternoon dress with corsage of white carnations for her daughter's nuptials. Mrs. Bowsly attended her son's marriage in a gown of old rose and silver with corsage of white carnations.
